DOLLAR SURGES IN RESPONSE

Ottawa Lops $370M Off Aid to Provinces

OTTAWA (CP) — Welfare and other federal payments to the provinces will be cut by $370 million next year.

Finance Minister Jean Chretien and Treasury Board President Robert Andras said the cuts would amount to about 3.5 per cent of the $10 billion in tax money shifted to provinces from the federal government each year.

The two acknowledged that they will have to renegotiate federal contracts with the provinces under which the payments are made, raising the possibility of further friction between the two levels of government.

But Chretien said at a press conference taxpayers will have to wait for a new budget to be presented "before the end of the year" to see whether promised federal tax cuts are coming.

Andras said the government was wrapping up the economic-recovery program promised by Prime Minister Trudeau Aug. 1 with today's statement.

In a series of statements, the government announced that $300 million is being set aside for a program to aid industry next year.

The cutbacks announcement had an immediate effect on the Canadian dollar.

It gained today against its American counterpart for the first time this week. By noon it was trading at 86.47 U.S. cents on the inter-bank wholesale market, up 7-100 of a cent from Thursday's closing rate of 86.40 cents.

At his news conference, Andras presented item-by-item spending changes that he said show total expenditure reductions for the current financial year that started April 1 and for next year of $2.5 billion. Most of the reductions — about $2 billion of the total — are reductions from next year's plans.

But Andras insisted "the cuts are real" and said he and Chretien were presenting "an exercise in open government" by revealing the spending changes each department has been asked to make.

The statements show spending will total $48.3 billion this financial year and rise by nine per cent to an estimated $52.6 billion in the financial year starting April 1.

Deficits to be covered by borrowing from the public will amount to about $11.8 billion this year — more than originally forecast — and to $9.7 billion in the 1979-80 fiscal year.

But the government said these totals could change with a new budget to be pre-

THREE-WHEELED LUXURY: The latest in motorcycle opulence is this $3,200 three-wheeled vehicle powered by a six-cylinder car engine. Sue Archer, 30, and her mother, Betty Clutters, 53, both of Ontario, Calif., travelled from Tiajuana to Richmond in the vehicle, completing the 2,500-kilometre trip in 64 hours. Motorcycle also has automatic transmission and an AM-FM CB radio.

Watch Plot Thickens

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — The plot thickened in the Japanese watch drama Thursday as the customs department got into the act.

It seems there may be $76.20 owing in duty and federal tax on each of three Seiko watches given to Vancouver aldermen Marguerite Ford, May Brown and Bernice Gerard by visiting civic officials from Yokohama.

They're the watches that somehow went missing at city hall between Aug. 21 and Tuesday, when the trio finally got them.

But entering the scenario Thursday was Hugh Cameron, head man at the Vancouver customs office who has been following the case with more than idle interest. On Thursday, he assigned one of his investigators to check department records to see if duty was paid on the watches.

It wasn't, he suspects, which means that Ford, Brown and Gerard probably will be stuck with the bill.

Meanwhile, back at city hall the man in the middle of the muddle, Gerry Lenoski, also was given one of the Seiko watches. Lenoski, executive assistant to Mayor Jack Volrich, got the watch given to former alderman Orson Banfield, who was in charge of a civic reception for the visiting Japanese dignitaries last month.

"I gave it to Gerry and that's that," Banfield said. "It was an afterthought. But I've already got two. The last thing I'd want is another one, so I gave it away to someone who was entitled to it."

Banfield said the affair was blown out of proportion.

"For the love of Pete, let it alone to die a natural death," he told reporters.

There's no tax on items like the $1,600 lantern given to the city of Vancouver by the Japanese delegation because a customs loophole allows a government to receive duty-free gifts from another government.

Token gifts can usually enter the country duty-free, too, if they are worth less than $15.

But the watches, valued at $175 each in Japan, are subject to a 20 per cent duty, a 12 per cent sales tax and a 10 per cent excise tax. It adds up to $76.20.

Lenoski doesn't know if the duty has been paid. He's out $300 of his own money after buying a Seiko watch for Ald. Darlene Marzari, who also was supposed to get one left by the Japanese group. That one disappeared.

SOCIALISM . . . ALCOHOLISM

WARSAW (Reuter) — A Polish sociologist startled a world alcohol and drugs congress Thursday by suggesting that alcoholism was linked with socialism.

His argument brought a swift reaction from other Polish delegates, who accused him of getting his facts wrong.

Dr. Zbigniew Wierzbicki, of the Polish Academy of Sciences' Institute of Philosophy and Sociology, started the dispute by quoting statistics showing that people in Communist countries were the world's leading drinkers of hard liquor.

Speaking from the floor during a plenary session of the 32nd International Congress on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence, he cited 1972 Finnish-prepared figures putting Poland, "Soviet Russia" and Hungary first, second and third respectively for per capita consumption of spirits.

Wierzbicki blamed this situation on the centrally-planned economies of the Communist countries. In Poland, ministries had to fulfill plans for ever-increasing production and sale of alcohol, he said.

Wierzbicki received loud applause from several hundred delegates, but Polish psychiatrist Zbigniew Thielle sprang to the microphone, and charged his compatriot with oversimplifying a complex problem.

It would be just as easy to say drug abuse was linked with capitalism, he said. "I do not think this is good propaganda for either side."

Bullets Halt Iran Protest

TEHRAN (AP) — Troops fired into a crowd of several thousand anti-government demonstrators in Tehran today and unofficial reports said as many as 100 persons were killed. The clash came just hours after the Iranian government imposed martial law in the capital and 11 other cities.

No official death count was available, but the government-owned radio Tehran said "many" died.

The martial-law order, which bans gatherings by more than three persons and imposes a curfew from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. daily, is an effort to end rioting by opponents of the shah of Iran's liberalization program. An estimated 1,000 persons have died in the disturbances in the last eight months.

The angry protesters in Jaleh square, in the eastern section of the city, shouted down religious leader Ayatullh Noori who had appealed to them to disperse.

Led by teen-agers and followed by women in their traditional Moslem veils, the demonstrators marched toward a line of soldiers and began throwing bricks and rocks, witnesses said. The soldiers fired sub-machine-guns into the air and then into the crowd.

Witnesses said "many" blood-soaked demonstrators fell to the ground and were hauled away in trucks after the two-hour battle.

The demonstrators set fire to several buildings, gasoline stations and department stores and tried to pull down statues. That section of the city also includes Baharestan, the parliament square.

"As they fled from the scene, they burnt down anything they could find that was flammable," said one witness.

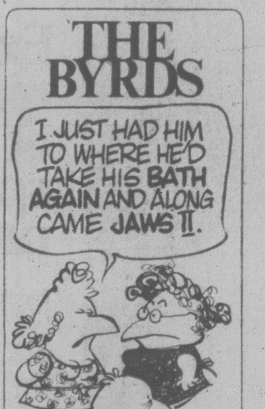
By noon (1:30 a.m. PDT), there was only sporadic shooting.

SUMMIT AT CORE?

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — Egyptian and Israeli officials today hinted that the Camp David summit has reached the core issues dividing the Middle East, and the atmosphere remains favorable as the talks grow more serious.

The first crack in the news blackout came after two days of direct talks between President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel.

500 Layoffs Seen In B.C. Shipyards



THE BYRDS
I JUST HAD HIM TO WHERE HE'D TAKE HIS BATH AGAIN AND ALONG CAME JAWS II.

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

Prospects for work at B.C. shipyards are bleak and the layoff total is expected to reach more than 500 within the next month.

The situation has union and management officials concerned.

Yarrows has a work force of about 525 but once a self-propelled log barge is completed early in October, more than 200 employees are expected to be laid off.

Burrard Dry Dock in North Vancouver, the West Coast's largest shipbuilder, laid off 40 workers today and 60 were let go last week.

The company is employing about 850 now but once work on an icebreaker is completed in the spring, another 300 employees will be without jobs.

At Bel-Aire Shipyards in North Vancouver, only a skeleton staff of 20 to 25 employees has been working since July when 200 workers were laid off.

"We're quite concerned," Yarrows general manager Don Challinor said today.

The worrying thing is that there doesn't appear to be any work on the horizon, he added.

Challinor said the federal government could help if it went ahead with some of the work it knows has to be done.

It also would improve things if Ottawa would state

Rhodesia Guerrillas Pursued

UMTALI, Rhodesia (Reuter) — Security forces today pursued the black nationalist guerrillas who attacked this border town with mortars Thursday night, wounding two civilians.

A security forces spokesman, announcing this, said that the guerrilla group—numbering more than 20—unexpectedly did not head across the nearby Mozambique border but instead went north towards the Rhodesian town of Penhalonga.

The 30 82-millimetre shells fired in a 10-minute bombardment Thursday night from a hilltop two kilometres from the city centre was the first such attack on Umtali by guerrillas from inside Rhodesia.

It may have marked a new strategy by the black nationalists, as the other two attacks on Umtali in the last two years were from inside Mozambique and were blamed on the Mozambique Frelimo forces by the Rhodesians.

Meanwhile, Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda said today he would not rule out summoning help from outside Africa to protect his borders.

Police Probe Sought In Munro Phone Call

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police have been asked to investigate a phone call made by John Munro, federal labor minister, to a provincial court judge, a spokesman for the Ontario attorney-general's office said today.

Munro confirmed Thursday that he called Provincial Judge Albert Marck on Aug. 18 shortly before the judge sentenced Julius Butty, a resident of Munro's Hamilton East riding. Butty, a Hamilton landlord, had been convicted of common assault for hitting a tenant with a hammer.

Judge Marck fined Butty $500 with the option of six months in jail.

In a statement given through an aide, Munro said the call was to provide a character reference for Butty and was not an attempt to influence the judge. The aide said Munro has no plans to resign.

Opposition leader Joe Clark Thursday said conduct rules for cabinet ministers were set after the 'judges affair' in 1976 and "if Prime Minister Trudeau is serious about his standards, he'll enforce them, and in enforcing them, he'll have to ask Mr. Munro to resign."

Clark said Trudeau's handling of the matter "will be a test in the kind of leadership we have in the government of Canada now."

Munro's aide said Butty and Munro are not friends but have known each other for several years through community events.

Judge Marck recessed court to receive Munro's call in his chambers.

CP Air Pact Voted

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Air's 1,800 ground service employees have ratified a new, two-year contract with the Vancouver-based airline, Ralph Steeves, of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, said today.

City Trustees to Fight 10-12% Teacher Hikes

The Greater Victoria school board has no intention of agreeing to a 10 to 12 per cent wage hike the B.C. Teachers Federation (BCTF) wants its membership to demand this fall.

Board chairman Susan Brice said today she is confident the Greater Victoria Teachers Association (GVTA) can sit down with trustees and work out a much more reasonable settlement.

"There's absolutely no way the district can afford an increase of that percentage," Brice said.

GVTA spokesman Trevor Calkins said today the association wants to create a good rapport with trustees and is not prepared to make any public statements at this point.

Calkins said the association will decide its priorities at a general meeting this month.

They were commenting on an announcement by the BCTF that it is urging its 30,000 members province-wide to ask for increases that will add up to more than $2,000 a year for the average teacher and up to $4,000 for some principals.

Salaries now average about $21,000 for a teacher and up to $40,000 for principals.

Teachers are prevented from striking by the Public Schools Act.

During the last few years negotiations have been fraught with bad feelings on both side and ended in arbitration.

Both Brice and the GVTA want to avoid going to arbitration this year.

Federation president Pat Brady said inflation, which he placed at 8.2 per cent, and growth in productivity, which he said is five per cent in B.C., are the basis for the advised wage increase.

The proposed salary hikes are in line with the now dead Anti-Inflation Board's guidelines that raises should cover increased living costs and should also allow workers to share in any improvement in the country's productivity.

The proposals have been condemned by B.C. School Trustees Association president Dave Kandal and Vancouver area trustees.

Kandal said the proposed wage hike was "outrageous and unrealistic."

Each local must determine its own bargaining position by Sept. 30.

The federation also recommends that teachers negotiate:

—An agreement that would allow them to honor other school strikes or lockouts without reprisal;

—Better leave-of-absence provisions and improved sick leave;

—Continued participation by school boards in premium payments for income security benefits.

Many City Schools Admitted Firetraps

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

If a fire inspection took place tomorrow in Greater Victoria's public schools very few of them would pass, according to school district community relations officer Bill Stavdal.

Stavdal's admission came after Gordon Collins, manager of the Insurance Corporation of B.C.'s loss prevention unit, said in Vancouver Thursday that most schools in the province are firetraps.

Collins said few schools meet today's building code requirements and only about 65 of the 1,700 B.C. schools surveyed carry fire insurance.

Virtually none of the 53 schools in the district meet ICBC fire standards.

And none of the schools are covered completely by fire insurance.

Only five of the largest secondary schools in the district are covered for fire damage exceeding $5 million. The rest are not insured.

High fire insurance costs are the reason.

In 1977 Education Minister Pat McGeer set a $5 million deductible, which means individual districts foot the bill for that amount and the ministry pays any additional replacement costs of a fire-destroyed school.

Lower deductibles can be negotiated at premiums too expensive for the district to even consider.

Luckily, the only fire in recent memory occurred in the $6.5 million Victoria high school attic.

Replacement value of buildings and equipment is $150.5 million, roughly $5,000 for each student enrolled in the district, according to a 1978 administrative report.

Many schools are a high fire risk because they were constructed cheaply in the 1950s and 60s of wood.

A lot of these schools are wood frame and the halls are lined with plywood or hardboard.

According to a recent survey by ICBC, the problem is province-wide.

Stavdal says ICBC has been increasing demands to have stringent fire standards met.

Stavdal said the standards are always changing and expensive to implement.

But continuing pressure from ICBC has resulted in recent fire protection improvements, including a $2.7 district-wide renovation project this year.

All schools in the district have fire alarms and some are equipped with burglar alarms.

"It takes less than a minute to get students out of a school," he said.

Fire losses in B.C. dropped from $12 million in 1976 to $1.2 last year, according to an education ministry spokesman.

But Collins said ICBC is not satisfied and will be taking "desperate measures" in future to prevent school fires.

Those measures include installation of intruder alarm systems in every school and either a sprinkler system or subdivision by firewalls, plus a fire detection system.

ACTIVE WEEKEND

A good variety of events awaits Victorians and late summer visitors this weekend.

Here is the lineup:

SATURDAY

2 p.m. Visiting British and New Zealand warships open to the public, Dockyard and Inner Harbor, until 5 p.m.

8 p.m. Great Inner Tube Race dance, Victoria Curling Rink.

9 p.m. Vintage cars form gaslight parade around Beacon Hill Park.

SUNDAY

11:30 a.m. Deadline for Great Inner Tube racers and parade entries to register at Gorge Park.

Noon. Great Inner Tube parade begins, along Tillicum and then west on Gorge Road to Craigflower Bridge.

1 p.m. Great Inner Tube races begin.

2 p.m. Open house on British and New Zealand warships, Dockyard and Inner Harbor, until 5 p.m.

3 p.m. Presentation of trophies for Great Inner Tube Race, Gorge Park.

Boss Blamed for Air Stress

TORONTO (CP) — Fear of causing accidents and responsibility for others' lives produce less stress for air traffic controllers than the stress caused by air-traffic management, says a study by the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry.

The study of Ontario air controllers, released today, says controllers regard responsibility for others' lives a challenge and source of satisfaction in an otherwise routine job.

Controllers, employees of Transport Canada, said they are trained for their assertiveness and decisive action but work in an organization with a reputation for having the opposite traits.

Controllers said that with civil service regulations making it almost impossible to fire an incompetent controller, someone who cannot handle the job is promoted to an administrative position.

"From this lofty position he formulates policies for which he lacks experience," one controller said.

"This procedure frustrates me to no end."

The report says that as a result of the stigma attached to promotion, a controller may stay on the job when it might be in the public's interest for him to quit.

The survey, based on questionnaires mailed in 1976 and 1977 to about 400 controllers in Ontario, was answered by 274 controllers, eight of them women.

Survey researcher Arlene MacBride said in an interview Thursday that 50 per cent of those who responded had no one or only one person to confide their problems to.

Most turned to spouses for support which often caused a strain on the marriage, she said.

Controllers do not confide in superiors or staff doctors for fear their problems will not be kept confidential.

Mrs. MacBride said 70 per cent of those surveyed thought the public misunderstood the nature of the stress controllers undergo.

She said it is not the universal kind of stress some people think but more related to poor health and a poor relationship with spouse and family.

Housing Starts Rise

Local housing starts in August were higher than the same month in 1977 for the first time in five months, but only because construction hit a slump in August, 1977.

There were 128 starts during the past month, up from 70 the previous August. In both years there were no apartment starts during the month.

Construction of single-family homes continues to be a bright spot with 126 started in August, up from 64 in the same month last year.

During the first eight months, there have been 751 houses started, up from 470 in the first eight months of 1977.

There were no starts for row housing or apartments in August. There were two duplex units started, along with the 126 single-family homes.

At the beginning of September there were 193 new apartment units vacant, down from 278 at the same time last year.

The condominium surplus continues to decline month by month. Now there are only 40 new condos unsold, down from 353 at the same time in 1977.

There are 171 new unsold houses on the market, down from 255 last year.

30,000 Phones Hit

TOKYO (Reuter) — Police increased their vigilance today after radicals severed cable lines and paralysed almost 30,000 telephone and Telex links in three cities in a sabotage attempt against Tokyo's new international airport.

Engineers worked throughout the day to repair damage to lines in Tokyo, Chiba and Narita. The damage did not disrupt flights at the airport.

Last March, leftist radicals climbed through an unguarded manhole at the airport 60 kilometres from Tokyo and smashed vital equipment in the control tower.

At least six persons have been killed and more than 8,500 injured in almost 12 years of fighting between riot police and radicals who support farmers and environmentalists.

RESCUE THEME PLANNED

Search and rescue operations will be the theme of the 30th national convention of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association at The Empress Oct. 11-14.

The convention will be hosted by the 800 Pacific Wing, 105 Wilson.

Before the first luncheon on Oct. 12 a rescue demonstration will be staged in the Inner Harbor by members of the 442 Search and Rescue Squadron from CFB Comox.

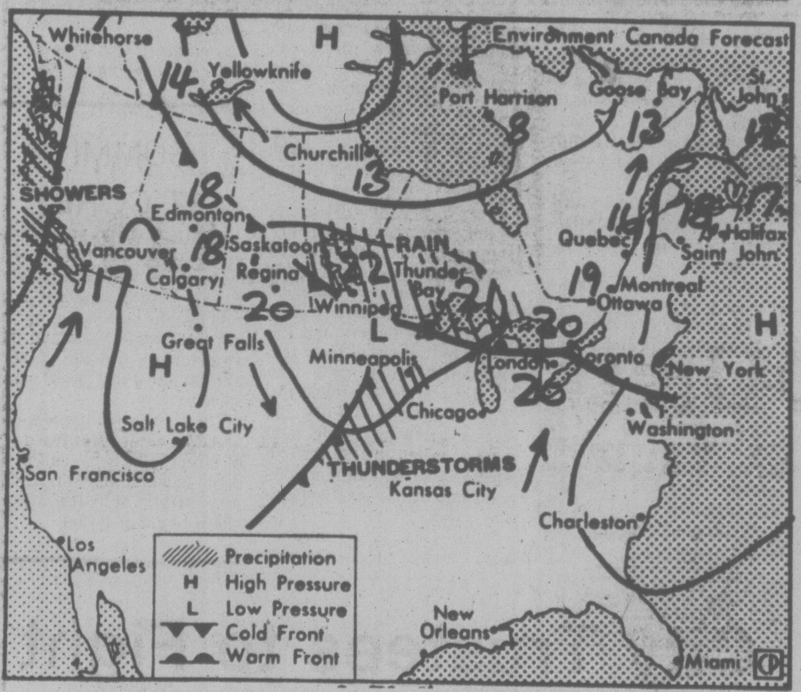

Map valid until noon Saturday

The last of a series of disturbances which have been invading B.C. from the south moved into southern B.C. overnight spreading cloud and rain to the southern sections of the province. As it moves northeastwards to Alberta today some clearing will occur. Elsewhere skies were mainly clear overnight. However, for coastal B.C. a series of moisture-laden disturbances from the west are already posing a threat. The first disturbance is expected to reach the south coast late today followed by a second on Saturday. These disturbanceswill eventually move to the B.C. Interior later. However they are expected to weaken.

SOUPED-UP CARTS FOR SUN CITY SET

SUN CITY, Ariz. (AP) — Residents of this retirement community, not content to glide gracefully from one tee to the next, are souping up their golf carts to go as fast as 80 kilometres an hour.

"There are some people out there souping up golf carts the way kids soup up 1946 Chevies," said Bob Langguth, deputy director of the state Motor Vehicle Division. "There is a guy, I was told, who souped up a golf cart to go 50 (mph)."

Langguth's agency licenses golf cart dealers under a year-old law that defines the vehicles as two-passenger, 1,300-pound conveyances with three or more wheels on the ground.

Dealers in the Sun City area say it's not unusual to see the carts — their electric motors whining and fringed tops flapping — zipping down the street toward the supermarket.

"For $66.50, we'll put on a high-speed unit that'll make it go 20 miles per hour," said Dale Williamson, mechanic for Letterly Enterprises. "We'll make them go faster than that only on request. But we try to persuade people not to go that fast."

Williamson said he has one cart "that the guy before me souped up. It's got eight batteries instead of the original six from the factory, and 15-inch radial tires." He said it goes about 65 kmh.

Sheriff's deputies are aware of the state law defining a golf cart as a vehicle capable of travelling 15 miles an hour — 25 km/h — but they take no action unless posted speed limits are exceeded.

Influence by PM On CBC Charged

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC got a double jolt Thursday when it was disclosed on a highly-acclaimed CBC radio program that its award-winning journalist Peter Kent has filed a brief against the corporation.

Kent, newsreader for The National, was replaced for one evening on the nightly TV news after the disclosure that he had filed a personal intervention with the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission in the CBC's licence renewal application.

However, Kent said in an interview that the CBC radio program As It Happens misrepresented his submission to the CRTC.

The radio program quoted him in the brief as saying the CBC was compromising itself by acceding to requests for television coverage from the prime minister's office.

Cliff Lonsdale, chief news editor at CBC English television services, denied the As It Happens story, saying editorial decisions at the television network are not affected by political pressure.

Kent said Thursday he does not claim in the brief that the office of Prime Minister Trudeau tried to interfere with the news operation of the publicly-owned network. He was complaining about the way the prime minister's officials get live coverage of events involving the prime minister.

Kent added that his criticisms were directed only at CBC management, not the news service.

KENT
. . . network compromising

The 34-year-old journalist assumed the $65,000-a-year job as newsreader on The National in November, 1976, after Lloyd Robertson resigned from the corporation to join the rival CTV network.

Kent joined the CBC in 1974 after several years with CTV and won an award from the Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists (ACTRA) for his battle-scene coverage of Cambodia.

After his contract as newsreader expires in November, Kent plans to open the CBC's first news bureau in Africa.

Meanwhile, Lonsdale said the As It Happens story is based on incomplete notes submitted by Kent to the CRTC in the belief that they would not be made public.

As It Happens quoted the Kent brief as saying that the CBC changed its position about live coverage of a number of events involving the prime minister after Trudeau's office approached the network.

Meanwhile, the CBC announced that Kent will appear tonight, reading the nightly news.

Guards' Gunfire Rakes School

MASAYA, Nicaragua (CP) — National guard troops shot their way into a Roman Catholic school, sprayed gunfire in the interior, searched four priests and took two students away as prisoners, school officials said Thursday.

In Managua, a human rights leader said guard members raided a church, and employees of a radio station said two persons identifying themselves as leftist guerrillas took over the station briefly.

In Esteli, 128 kilometres north of Managua, guardsmen were reported to have arrested opposition leaders and businessmen who led the strike aimed at forcing President Anastasio Somoza to resign.

SCHOOL BUS HIJACKER GETS DEATH

PRAGUE (Reuter) — One man was sentenced to death and his brother to 25 years in jail Thursday for hijacking a packed school bus in an abortive bid to escape from Czechoslovakia to West Germany.

The official Ceteka news agency said Robert Bardes, 22, was sentenced to die and his brother, Vaclav, 20, was sentenced to 25 years.

Taj Mahal Above Floods

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Floodwaters from the Jamuna River surged into the ancient Indian city of Agra today but the Taj Mahal, which stands on high ground beside the Jamuna, was reported in no danger.

The official death toll for the whole country moved close to the 1,000 mark with reports from witnesses indicating it may be higher.

The floods submerged low-lying areas of Agra, 200 kilometres from New Delhi. Farther east, the combined waters of the Ganges and the Jamuna flooded areas of Allahabad City, where the two rivers meet.

Rene Divorce Granted

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque and his wife Louise L'Heureux were divorced today, with Levesque agreeing to pay $27,800 a year in alimony.

Associate Chief Justice James Hugessen read the agreement aloud in Quebec Superior Court shortly after Levesque, who originally filed for divorce in July, 1977, signed it.

The premier, looking calm but rushed, was surrounded by several bodyguards and six uniformed courthouse guards as he was quickly ushered into a small meeting room while lawyers ironed out details of the settlement in another room.

The divorce was granted on grounds of permanent marriage breakdown.

Besides the alimony payments, which amount to $2,316.66 a month, the agreement requires Levesque to pay $2,500 to his former wife to help defray her court expenses.

It gives her ownership over all "furniture, works of art and other objects" at their former residence in the Montreal area of Outremont and makes her the beneficiary of all Levesque's insurance policies, of which eight are listed in the settlement.

Levesque's total salary this year is $76,500, of which $7,000 is non-taxable.

Runway Improved

OTTAWA (CP) — Extension of the present runway and other improvements to the Aklavik, N.W.T., airport will cost $147,000 this year, Transport Minister Otto Lang said Thursday.

This Is Utopia?

It's interesting to look at the Utopian B.C. of the future as it exists in the mind of the provincial Chamber of Commerce. Utopia, in the chamber's view, consists of a booming economy in the style of the mid-1960s.

In the chamber's Utopia, B.C. would be growing increasingly competitive in the world market because government would be holding wage increases down to a maximum of five per cent or so each year.

Many areas of the province that now are wilderness would be being logged off. New industries would be pouring into the province because the government would have eliminated red tape — and pollution standards — to allow them in and their property taxes would be immensely low since businesses would pay property taxes at the same rate as ordinary homeowners. Thousands more people would be employed on a massive government program of road-building.

Those, at least, are some of the ideas suggested by the chamber's president Jack Greenwood when a delegation from the group met this week with the provincial cabinet.

In theory it sounds like an economic dream. But there is another view of what the province would look like a while after the chamber's recommendations had been put into effect.

Property taxes would indeed be low for businesses, but they would be so high for homeowners that almost no one would be able to afford to own their own homes. A change of the type suggested would mean huge increases in homeowner taxes, especially for residents of Victoria proper and other cities with a large commercial or industrial base.

The government might have created thousands of make-work jobs by doubling its road construction business, but every citizen of the province would be paying significant tax increases to finance the new highways. Since the highways construction budget this year is about $200 million, to double that would require another $200 million — a sum that woiuld require a two point increase in the sales tax or some similar tax jump to cover it.

Some new industries might be coming to B.C. if pollution standards were relaxed, but at the same time B.C. communities would be becoming choked with smog, wildlife would be being killed, and our tourism and fisheries industries would probably be suffering drastically.

In the labor field, the government might be trying to hold salaries down, but eventually such a unilateral program would be leading to massive labor disruptions. The workers could not be expected to go along with wage increases of four or five per cent for long if the cost of living continued to rise by eight or nine per cent a year. The disruption would be even more severe if B.C. was the only province with such a program so workers here were watching their counterparts in other provinces keep up with inflation while they fell further and further behind.

If that's Utopia, we think we prefer our present reality, imperfect as it is.

The Emergency Game

The armed forces of western nations regularly carry out simulation exercises so they can figure out the best way to act in a particular crisis situation. Hospitals and rescue workers hold mock disasters to find how they would cope if an unimagined worst became reality. Academics use simulation games in a wide variety of fields.

The idea, though, has never been much used by politicians or others involved in the democratic process to try to determine what could be done to best preserve democratic values in national crisis situations.

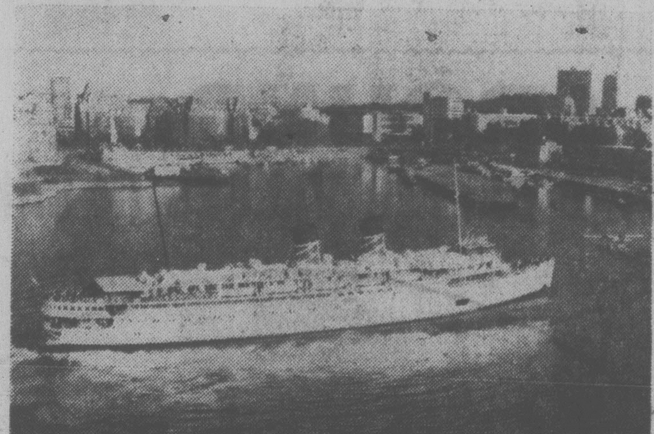
Last month, however, a first step was taken in this direction when 60 distinguished judges, lawyers, journalists and civil servants from Britain, the U.S. and India gathered in Delhi, India to play "the emergency game." The game was based on India's unpleasant experience a few years ago when then-prime minister Indira Gandhi imposed arbitrary government and took away many civil liberties; the players also had the opportunity to consider the same basic questions in relation to Britain's difficulties in Northern Ireland and the American Watergate experience.

Even in the short time available to them, the participants did come up with some ideas that would influence their own behavior in a crisis situation. They noted, for example, the need for civil servants to give ministers sound advice, not just do what they were told like automatons. More important, however, they began to understand the deep conflicts of values and needs that arise in these situations.

Surely this basic idea could profitably be transported to Canada. The Quebec Crisis of 1970 would probably make a suitable base for a game involving Canadian players. Another idea might be to make up a situation, perhaps based on a unilateral decision to separate by Quebec.

Far better that Canadian judges, lawyers and officials gain the experience of a crisis in a simulated session arranged at a university than that they try to gain it in real life when the crisis has already occurred.

B.C.'s Flagging Flagship



The Marguerite: Do service, modern decor match exterior finery?

A recent voyage to Seattle and the King Tut Exhibit on the Princess Marguerite undid a lot of illusions about the qualities of her interior appointments and service.

Seen from the Causeway it is easy to imagine gleaming brass, highly polished woodwork, overstuffed chairs, potted palms and immaculate white-tunicked stewards. Accustomed to the usual discrepancy between advertisement and product, it was still quite a shock to board what could and should be the flagship of B.C.'s fleet.

Certainly it offers more in the way of atmosphere and congenial surroundings than do the regular B.C. Ferries, but this is more the result of the age and charm of the vessel than of any deliberate attempts by management. The oddly-shaped windows actually open, the woodwork and decking are genuine wood, ceilings are low and snug (no mess of plumbing and wiring exposed overhead), corridors and decks are narrow. There is the feeling of camaraderie engendered that is usually found on ocean liners. Designed for a slower and more stately age and clientele, it still casts a spell even under todays crowded conditions.

Lured by the thousands on the summer runs between Seattle and Victoria, the masses of people aboard create steerage conditions. Seating is hard to find even though decks are littered with cafeteria and beer parlour style chairs. No deck chairs or traditional wooden benches here.

In fact the new decor imposed upon the ship fails totally to complement or enhance its character. Arrogantly contemporary formica wood-grained tables, gaudy carpeting, motel-modern curtains, commercial stainless steel chairs, tables and sofas, plants in plastic pots and corrugated fibreglass awnings fight the ship's classic lines. The odd historic photo and print are the only concessions to taste. A less sympathetic treatment would be hard to imagine and this fact was not lost on visitors seeking their first real impressions of Victoria.

An informal survey revealed complaints: that the forward lounge was self service and the lineups interminable, despite the heroic efforts of the lone bartender; that only B.C. wines were available, a perennial comment on our parochialism; that there was Muzak; that lounges and restaurants were quickly packed out; that the ship did not leave Seattle early enough nor Victoria late enough. Some people seemed willing to leave Seattle at 6:00 a.m. rather than 8:00 a.m. and Victoria at 8:00 instead of 4:30 p.m. On reflection, three and a half hours ashore doesn't seem very long to spend compared to eight hours afloat.

The discrepancy between being able to drink aboard the Marguerite but not aboard the B.C. Ferries was also noted and discussed. This governmental paradox could not be resolved unless: (1) the government believed Americans hold their liquor better than British Columbians or, (2) we hold our liquor equally well but any alcohol-inspired accidents on the other side of the border did not appear in B.C.'s records.

It was decided that the government could not be that mercenary.

The paradox remains as does the paradox of governmental attitude toward the Marguerite. No one in control seems to know how to handle its success. Despite its scheduling, decor, crowded conditions, desultory service, it's a smash hit with tourists and, one presumes, local merchants. Its age, style and grace make it an incomparable drawing card but also mitigate against its continued use as a passenger carrier. U.S. pollution standards costs also weigh in against it, although $300,000 to bring her up to code is a pittance compared to the millions spent on two or three miles of highway.

It is a cliche to say that there are things that matter more than money. In our consumer society there are fewer and fewer things do. This irreplaceable part of our past actually falls into that shrinking category and on top of that it works — it produces revenue.

Instead of quibbling about its continued existence, stinting on its interior decor and service it should be lovingly restored and put in tandem with an equally well restored Prince George or Princess Patricia to share the Victoria-Seattle run.

These ships should be maintained and run until the insurance companies refuse to re-insure and then they should be retired as permanent attractions in the Inner Harbor — somewhere around the year 2000. By that time the scarcity of such antiques would make them truly world famous. Only consider the success of the tall ships to see the future. — Thomas R. Palfrey, 941 Meares Street.

The New, New Mathematics

OTTAWA — Albert Einstein, just possibly, might have understood. Since most Canadians are dumber than Einstein, none of you would have had a clue.

"When all the changes are implemented," Employment Minister Bud Cullen said proudly at the start of his press conference to announce changes in the Unemployment Insurance Act, "there will be a net annual saving of $50 million to $100 million to the employer-employee account. It is likely, therefore, that premiums can be reduced for 1979."

Hooray for you and me. Hooray for our friendly employer. Hooray for Bud Cullen.

Press Gallery reporters, though, are showing disquieting signs of beginning to understand Ottawa's New, New Mathematics. They got their first lesson in it from Finance Minister Jean Chretien at his never-to-be-forgotten lecture a week ago when he claimed as "savings" $690 million worth of spending cuts — all of which it turned out were being re-spent on different programs.

Sums Unsnarled

Cullen came to the brink of, but did not quite fall into, the same chasm as Chretien. He walked away from disaster by explaining, "I'm not a numbers man," and by then leaving his officials to unsnarl the sums.

After two hours of questions reporters had begun themselves to unsnarl the sums. There'll be no saving to employers and employees next year. Instead, premiums next year will be higher than they would have been if Cullen had said nothing, rather than be lower as he claimed.

Cullen conveniently forgot to explain that of the $580 million drop in unemployment insurance spending that Ottawa will enjoy as a reslt of its reforms, $400 million will be paid for by increased payments by employers and employees.

How then could Cullen still claim that premiums next year will be lower? Because they will be. The existing employer-employee UIC account is in surplus by well over $500 million, as Cullen forgot to mention because to have done so would have been to admit that premiums, for too long, have been too high. By wiping out this surplus, which is larger than the proposed increased UIC charges to employers and employees, Ottawa will be able to lower the premiums, though by less than they ought, long ago, to have been lowered. If you follow.

Another example of the New, New Mathematics. Spending on job creation will increase by $145 million next year, Cullen claimed. Yet, it turns out, the year to year difference in spending will be only $88 million higher. How so? Simple. Ottawa, it seems, actually planned to decrease its job creation spending next year — until Prime Minister Trudeau was reborn as an economist. Cullen measured his claimed $145 million increase from this hypothetical low mark.

If you can believe that at a time of mass unemployment, the employment department really once planned to reduce its job creation spending next year, then you'll have no difficulty believing that $88 million equals $145 million. It is all, as Einstein would say, relative.

This pre-election packaging aside, Cullen had much that was sensible to say. His reforms are aimed both at those who quit jobs needlessly to lay back on unemployment insurance — "job hoppers" as Cullen called them — and those who "use unemployment as a regular part of their income rather than as a stopgap between jobs."

These changes, Cullen admitted, will be "tough" on students. As well, welfare rolls will increase by up to five per cent.

The net effect of the changes, though, said Cullen, would be to reduce Canada's official unemployment rate by one per cent. The Economic Council of Canada two years ago arrived at the same conclusion that a too-generous unemployment insurance scheme creates unemployment, both by encouraging marginal workers into the labor force in order to be able to pick up benefits, and, as much, by making it easier for companies to lay off workers because managers know that for these individuals unemployment will be relatively painless.

Benefits Cut

Or used to be. The maximum benefit rate will be cut from two-thirds of insurable income to 60 per cent. First-time claimants — most of them young, and so to a degree protected by their families — will have to work longer to qualify. Those earning $22,000 or more will draw no benefits at all, which seems fair, but will still have to pay premiums, which is plainly unfair. Lastly, those who claim unemployment insurance year after year will be limited in the amounts they can claim.

These changes are hefty. And they will hurt. Critics, though, cannot both blame the government for spending too much and for reducing its spending.

There's no reason, however, to give Cullen any credit for his announcement. Cullen claims his reforms will eventually save about $750 million in a full year. The UIC act is seven years old. By refusing to listen to its critics all these years, Ottawa now is admitting that it has, so far, wasted about $5 billion of taxpayer monies. And that's $5 billion worth of waste in real Old Mathematics.

Don't Need CBC

I find it depressing to read that the Victoria council is going to ask the CBC to open its unnecessary and unwanted TV station here, in spite of the desperate deficits the CBC and federal government are incurring.

At present Victoria has the greatest TV selection in Canada, and to use money to duplicate CBU seems to me to be an appalling waste. There are so many more worthy projects. Also Hydro tells us the Island may be facing brown outs soon, so why build a redundant unit that will require electric power in the order of 1,000 kw?

Politicians, local and national, don't recognize (or won't admit) that all taxpayers are close to revolt over the ever-increasing cost of governments, whose deficits are mainly responsible for our inflationary troubles. Taxpayers don't want a multi-million dollar status symbol.

Cancelling the TV station here should slow down the Ottawa printing presses a trifle — at least it would be a move in the right direction. I'm sure the anti-inflation group would agree with me. — T. Hughes, Victoria.

Insensitive Headline

The headline, Balloonists Fried, on page six of the Victoria Times dated Aug. 30, referring to the unfortunate demise of three human beings in a balloonist accident, reached the utter nadir in poor taste and the apogee in callousness.

There is no press council in B.C. to which complaints can be directed. It is therefore suggested that the paper itself could make amends, by "roasting" the headline writer, and offering an apology to the community for this insensitive piece of journalism. — H. Shergold, 1102—360 Douglas Street.

Grace's Relatives?

In the Times of Aug. 18, a letter on page four (Hooray for Tourism) extolling the great achievements of the minister of tourism just does hit the bottom of the barrel in poor taste. Of course a commercial enterprise such as operated by the Zorn establishment would go overboard for anyone who would increase their garnering of "Golden Dollars" (their term). We will never know if the staff had such feelings, and it is noteworthy that the "U.S. senator" quoted so extravagently by Zorn & Co. is a mystery figure, no name or course. Anyone who would keep repeating (1) lovely, (2) magnificent, (3) wonderful, (4) marvellous, (5) enthusiasm and strength, recognized, appreciated, congratulated, etc. . . . must be kinfolk to the minister. As they say, they have reaped many "golden dollars" and must of course say "thank you".

Of course what they do not know is that the tourists would have come anyway, regardless of the thousands and thousands of dollars of taxpayers' money spent in that direction. Apart from the high exchange rate that attracted the tourists it was also the exorbitant living costs throughout Europe and the rest of the world. In fact tourists have become a real problem and a threat to peaceful living throughout the world. The Times writes of it in the issue of Aug. 25, page 5 by Peter Deeley, and Time magazine has a frightening account of just what tourism is costing the host countries. They have had tourists up to their neck yet here are we blinded by dollars and actually blind as to where it will all lead. God bless Oregon who say "Thanks, but no thanks, stay away."

Also speaking of cheap publicity, it is quite proper for the various provincial departments to make announcements, give warnings and helpful information, and this can all be done nicely. But it is in very poor taste and very expensive to hear some departments come on daily with the minister in charge bleating their names. It is cheap, and cheap campaign publicity. The greatest offenders in this respect are those who crave publicity — McCarthy, McClelland and Curtis. They are the worst offenders, and they will regret it. — D. D. Johnson, Brentwood Bay P.O., Saanichton.

Need Competition

If some informed Victorians are so upset about duplicating CBC national programs on our own Victoria station, then perhaps we should form a committee to close down CHEK as it already duplicates both CTV and CBC programming. It's funny how a little competition makes even mediocre enterprises respond. I'm prepared to invest in some competition for CHEK-TV. — Tom Sellgren, 1587 Hampshire Road.

Compliments

I would like to compliment your reporter, Derek Sidenius on his reporting on the conference of the World Federalists recently.

We all appreciate your coverage of this conference and the prominent placing of the resulting articles in the paper of Aug. 28. — James Loughery, P.O. Box 4101, Station A, Victoria.

NEWSPAPER GUILD OF NEW YORK ON STRIKE AGAINST THE NEWS

For New York newspapers, a summer of picketing

By LEWIS GROSSBERGER
Washington Post

Print deprivation is taking a heavy toll in New York as the newspaper drought continues.

The news-parched multitudes stagger about the streets, their clutching fingers hungry for the touch of flimsy paper, their vacant eyes fixing desperately upon stop signs, skywriting, passing T-shirts — anything for relief. Nothing satisfies.

They mill around the barren newsstands trying to engage the sulking dealers in small talk, commiserating with each other, listening half-heartedly for the sound that no longer comes: The hearty thwack of hurled newsbundle slapping sidewalk. Men have actually been spotted fishing the trash baskets for week-old papers.

No news is bad news.

Maybe it isn't really as drastic as it seems. The thing is, without newspapers, you have one less restraint against our New York-crisis-fuelled imagination taking over and declaring its own reality. Newspapers provide a constant, if deeply flawed, view of the world, a reality checkpoint to measure things against. This factor will, I hope, explain any portions of this report that sound too much like hallucination.

Anything is possible in a print-starved city. Fantasy and rumor may soon be running rampant.

Subway Escape

Already, undesirable side effects abound. In New York, the main newspaper reading room is found downstairs. It is called the subway.

People remove themselves from the harshness of subway life by escaping into their newspapers. Only bodies are left riding the subway. The minds are conveyed along tracks. Crossword puzzles alone sponge up millions of bored brain cells each day.

But now the subways are a disaster. People can no longer avoid each other's eyes. Unrestrained wild eyeballing is reported. Years of carefully crafted invisibility are being wiped out. Where this dangerous social interaction may lead, no one can say.

Of course, news transmission continues. The polls have informed us that the great majority now plugs into the electronic media to satiate its news lust.

Still, words on paper remain a necessity for many. These unfortunates can't make it through the day without their daily minimum newsprint requirement. Perhaps we are dinosaurs, who knows? All we know is without newspapers, our brains shrink.

Actually, this condition may have little to do with news. Newspaper ingestion is a habit. Many newspaper abusers don't even really like news. Some avoid it completely.

Like smoking, newspaper reading is associated with specific pleasurable events and locales. You can't carry the Six O'Clock News into the lunchroom with you and lay it on the counter. You can't carry it aboard your commuter train or into your bathroom. (Well, maybe you can, but it just isn't the same thing.)

The need is more physical. A newspaper has tangible presence. It gives tactile pleasure. You can hold it in your hands and it exists and so do you.

Dumb Items

TV news comes at its convenience and then disappears into the ozone layer. You cannot snip out the items that sound so dumb they make you laugh and mail them to your crazy cousin.

So the newspaper junkies search for a substitute fix. Lying in wait for them is a mirage.

It's amazing, really, how many newspaper look-alikes there are in town. So many publications printed in newspaper-sized stock bearing newspaper-sized newsprint. Words and photos and headlines they all have.

There are the sex sheets, the scandals, the show biz bibles, the hip weeklies, the shoppers, the journals of commerce, the religion rags, the foreign lingo press, the out-of-towns.

Sorry. These will not do in a pinch. They can't give any satisfaction. We don't know much about journalism hereabouts but we know what we like.

Though many imposters lay claim to the generic term "newspaper," there is but one (or in this burg, three) McCoy: the daily, home-grown, general-subject, comfortable, English-tongued hodgepodge we've nodded over for a lifetime, all the while cursing its many imperfections — the typos, the sensationalizing, the superficiality, the misleading headlines, sloppy reporting, insane juxtapositions, bad photo reproduction, the odd mix of prudery and prurience, the vital omissions, the miles of boring stories no one can read — in short, the indigestible jumble one craves and must have to sustain life on this planet.

In New York, this formula translates into the Times, the News and, just barely, the Post — although for many, that reduced entity has now transgressed the mysterious boundary that separates genuine newspapers from ersatz.

News Junkies

But they are AWOL. They strike and their readers are stricken.

The readers attempt to cope. They gingerly taste other selections from the emaciated news racks, sometimes closing their eyes in disgust and grabbing at random. But it seldom works.

You can't take the Philadelphia Inquirer down on the BMT. It just doesn't compute. An axe-murder in Camden does nothing for the Daily News reader. The eyewitnesses don't utter the correct cliches. The cops in the photos wear funny-looking hats. The addresses are unfamiliar. No, it's all wrong.

The other day a man sat down next to me at the neighborhood Greek spoon and placed an alleged tabloid beside his bran flakes. Soon he was moaning loudly. I asked him where the pain was.

"Look at this headline," he said. It read: The Disconcerting Sybil. He was reduced to reading an essay on George Sand in the New York Review of Books. "I can't take it," he said. "What I'd give for a Mets' boxscore."

The terror really struck home on Saturday night. This is now the night when the Sunday Times doesn't hit the newsstands. The impact of vast numbers of fat Sunday Times not hitting the newsstands all at once is devastating. It is the agonizing torture of the expected blow that does not fall.

Guilt-Edged

Perhaps this is not easily explainable to outsiders. At first, the deprived Times reader may feel a sense of relief: school's out. But soon guilt takes over: the knowledge that out there somewhere, a gigantic mess of raw information is piling up — uncollected, unedited, unprinted and undelivered.

That classic riddle about whether the tree falling in the forest really makes a noise if no one hears it is gnawing at our innards. If we're not reading about it in our newspaper, can it really be happening?

Is it possible to ever catch up or will we New Yorkers remain eternally uninformed of the events of this period?

This is the pervasive fear facing the print-oriented New Yorker today. We carry on our everyday lives as best we can, but we know that one whole dimension is missing. We cannot forget that there are eight million stories in the Naked City, all of them going unread. We can't help feeling that somehow, existence is on hold.

Are African Politics Duping Churchmen?

By ANTHONY SAMPSON
London Observer

How deeply should the churches be involved in African politics?

The current row about the World Council of Churches (WCC), which has been contributing funds to the guerrillas of the Patriotic Front in Rhodesia, vividly reveals the dilemma. The fight against racism and tyranny, which begins as the churches' duty, can become much more confused and controversial as the violence escalates and independence comes closer, involving rival African groups.

But another dilemma is now revealing itself in Namibia, where the WCC has also been contributing heavily to the guerrilla leadership of SWAPO which (like the Patriotic Front) also receives large quantities of arms from the Russians. The problem may be still more urgent, since Namibia is due to achieve the independence early next year. And a peaceful outcome in Namibia is considered very relevant to the future of Rhodesia.

In London last month, a group of influential churchmen boldly reaffirmed their support for the SWAPO leadership, which has just renewed its guerrilla warfare against the South Africans. An Anglican father, Ed Morrow, supported by the exiled bishop, Colin Winter, and accompanied by a Catholic father, Heinz Hunke, all insisted that Namibia can win freedom and independence only through SWAPO.

But the position in Namibia, as the churchmen know, is not as simple as that: In Africa it never is.

During the long years of courageous fighting for independence the case for supporting a single liberation movement was a strong one, whatever the misgivings; and the SWAPO leaders were accepted by the UN as the "sole authentic" representatives of the Namibian people. But now, under the terms of the five-power settlement, the road is open — albeit with many obstacles — to independence, and to free elections.

In the meantime, there have been growing worries among liberals and Africans about the democratic intentions of the SWAPO leaders. It is not simply that they are very close to Moscow, and are committed to a "scientific socialism" which is likely to establish a Marxist government. Perhaps more worrying are their intolerant tendencies.

After the first SWAPO leader, Herman ja Toivo, had been imprisoned by the South Africans, the movement was eventually taken over by a more autocratic leader, Sam Nujoma. When two years ago a group of dissidents led by one of the movement's founders, Andreas Shipanga, demanded free elections, they were summarily detained at Nujoma's instigation in African jails for two years; and Nujoma even threatened that they might be executed.

This autocratic behavior aroused protests from many churchmen, including Bishop Winter.

The dissidents have now set up their own party, called SWAPO Democrats, which is dedicated to democratic elections with no foreign interference and which has formed an alliance with the nonracial group in Namibia, the Namibian National Front, which includes white liberals and African nationalists.

In this context, should the churchmen lend their weight so emphatically on the side of SWAPO?

For the British, who are so deeply committed to alternative parties, it must smack of double standards to encourage Africans to one-party systems.

Behind the churches' dilemma in South Africa lies, of course, the deeper problem of the polarization that is provoked by the racial tyranny of the whites. It is the eventual nightmare, as with any other tyranny, that the alternative power will be as intolerant and inhuman as the power that provoked it; and the reality of that danger is already clear enough in Africa farther north.

In trying to mitigate that extreme, the role of the churches can be critical, proving to Africans that whites are prepared to take their stand against other whites.

But in any nation on the edge of independence, whether in Zimbabwe or Namibia, the churches should surely not confine themselves to the danger of white tyranny, but should look also to dangers ahead.

When Smoking Pot's Okay

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

A young man in Ontario is gravely ill with cancer. He is receiving cobalt and chemotherapy treatment. He is treating the side effects of nausea and depression by smoking marijuana. It is illegal but it works.

A middle-aged woman in British Columbia has glaucoma, which threatens her sight. The eye drops prescribed by her doctor cause irritation. Smoking marijuana, her doctor agrees, reduces the pressure within the eyeball as effectively as the prescribed drug and causes no irritation. But there is no marijuana he can prescribe for her. In the United States a glaucoma patient sued for and received the right to a prescription of six marijuana cigarettes a day. Canada's Bureau of Drugs, in the Health Protection Branch of the Health Protection Branch of the Health and Welfare Department, would scratch its head it if received a request for such a prescription, but would look for a mechanism to supply an answer.

There are many thousands of people in Canada who suffer from glaucoma and from extremely distressing side effects from cobalt and chemotherapy treatment for cancer; but they cannot legally smoke marijuana to treat glaucoma or relieve the side effects of cancer treatment. The government has not as yet, though it promised a long time ago to do so, removed cannabis (marijuana) from the Narcotic Control Act to the Food and Drug Act — which would not totally decriminalize the possession of the drug but might dispose courts to treat much less severely those convicted of possession.

Dr. Ian Henderson, director of the Bureau of Drugs, has no opinions to express on the leglaization of marijuana. He will say, with some eagerness, that cannabis "has been in the past a highly respected pharmaceutical drug" which "fell into disfavour because people couldn't rely on it, because a lot if its ingredients are unstable." An Israeli researcher has broken cannabis down into at least 34 components, which, when cannabis is smoked as marijuana, break further down into over 100 components.

Marijuana leaves . . . Law curbs medical uses, too.

One component, THC, has been isolated and stabilized and has proved useful, under clinical testing, in relieving the nausea, vomiting and depression that come with cobalt and chemotheraphy treatment for cancer. The Bureau of Drugs will entertain applications from doctors, institutions and manufacturers to test THC, or other cannabis derivatives, and institutions in Hamilton and Winnipeg (and shortly in Vancouver) are using THC to relieve the side effects of the cancer treatments. They will report to the bureau on the results of their research. A company may shortly be licensed to produce synthetic THC in Canada.

The Lancet, the British medical journal, has described many therapeutic possibilities in cannabis derivatives — among them, the suppression of the body's ability to reject kidney and other transplants, and treatment of epilepsy, nausea, glaucoma, high blood pressure and the pains that can attend menstruation. One derivative has been successfully used to treat asthma — if taken in a pure form. Smoked, in a marijuana cigarette, any help it gives the asthmatic is countered by the irritation resulting from the smoke.

Dr. Henderson argues, quite correctly, that the proper approach to cannabis derivatives is to determine through proper research which derivative produces which good results with which side effects, as is done with any other therapeutic drug before it is approved for use in Canada. He would welcome applications (which must be processed by the bureau in 60 days) from doctors, institutions or manufacturers prepared to undertake such research. No opthalmologist in Canada, for example, is at present experimenting with cannabinol acetate, the eye-drop drug which has been used successfully in the United States to treat glaucoma.

This would be the proper long-term approach, but it is long.

Peking and Puffing

Amid complaints of severe shortages of cotton and cooking oil, the state tobacco industy of the People's Republic of China turned out at least 725 billion cigarettes last year, 60 billion more than the United States.

But now, in another change from the day of that late, great nicotine addict, Mao Tse-tung, Peking is gently suggesting to the 900 million Chinese that smoking may be hazardous to their health.

The sudden anti-tobacco warning, after decades of benign neglect, comes in an article in the Kwangming Daily, a Peking newspaper aimed at intellectuals and professionals. Two distinguished Chinese doctors wrote that cigarettes may have some connection with bronchitis, emphysema, throat and lung cancer, hypertension and heart disease.

Although China is a long way from Marlboro Country, Peking's tobacco makers have benefitted for years from a powerful smoking promotion that would be the envy of Madison Avenue. The nation's most respected and emulated leaders, from Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai on down, regularly appeared in movies and on television flicking ashes.

Even Mao's less experienced successor, Chairman Hua Kuo-feng, has been seen in public lately puffing on a cigarette.

In a country otherwise committed to the socialist logic of single product lines, the cigarette industry offers an embarrassment of brands, among them Chungwa, Butterfly, Golden Deer, Mudan, Shanghai, Chungchow, Panda and Peony.

All this color and image promotion have helped produce a phenomenon familiar in the Unted States: Young people are smoking in greater and greater numbers. According to the Kwangming Daily article, that trend is what most disturbs the Chinese government, and has led it to break its official silence on tobacco hazards.

"Young people are the successors of our proletarian revolutionary cause, so the party and the state must show special care for their healthy growth," the article said.

How come China is so slow to jump on the anti-smoking bandwagon?

The article blames the delay on the Gang of Four, the now-much-maligned clique led by Mao's wife, Chiang Ching.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Soaring oil and gas issued sent the Toronto stocks sharply higher in active mid-session trading.

Dome Petroleum Ltd. continued to climb after a one-hour trading halt issued shortly after the opening due to an imbalance of orders. The stock was up 7 to $101½ on the sale of 31,924 shares, but fell back from a new high of $104½ shortly after the resumption.

Among other industrials, B.C. Packers B advanced 5 to 185 on 539 shares, Bow Valley Industries 2¾ to $43, Gulf Canada 1½ to $35½, Finning Tractor 1¼ to $28 and Westburne International 1½ to $40.

Maclaren Power A dropped 1 to $45½, Digitech one cent to $2.00, Abacus Cities ⅛ to $5⅛ on 543 shares, Alberta Energy ⅛ to $16¾ and Daon Development A ⅛ to $7⅝.

Rio Algom gained 1⅛ to $37½, United Siscoe Mines ¾ to $8¾ and Brenda ¾ to $13⅞. Campbell Red Lake Mines declined ¾ to $43½ and Redstone Resources one cent to 59 cents.

Numac Oil and Gas rose 2⅛ to $25⅞, Ranger Oil Canada ⅞ to $18½ and Trinity Resources 70 cents to $4.90. American Eagle Petroleum slipped one cent to $2.34 and Charter Oil seven cents to $2.60.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market shot ahead, propelled by news that two economic measures had turned in better performances than had been anticipated.

The market took its cue from announcements about wholesale prices and the money supply.

The labor department said today that wholesale prices had fallen 0.1 per cent in August, the first drop since August 1976 and one that had not been anticipated by analysts.

The news followed on the heels of the announcement by the Federal Reserve Board late Thursday that the nation's basic money supply had fallen $1.8 billion in the latest reporting week.

Investors, who'd played a waiting game all week pending release of the figures, came into the market in a buying mood.

The surge was broad-based, but oil and airlines stocks, which have been among the strongest issues recently, again led the way.

Pan American World Airways led the most-active list, up ⅝ to $10⅜, its highest mark of the year. Pan Am has been one of the most active stocks this week because of its plans to merge with National Airlines.

Other airlines showed strength because of their reports of substantially higher passenger traffic in August. UAL rose ⅞ to $44¼, American Airlines was up ⅜ to $19⅝ and Delta rose ⅝ to $57⅛.

Among oil issues, Marathon Oil rose ⅝ to $51, Texaco was up ⅛ to $24¾, Mobil was up 1¼ to $70⅜, Exxon gained ½ to $51⅝ and Alantic Richfield advanced 1⅛ to $54¼.

The NYSE composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks rose 0.43 to 59.93.

London

LONDON (CP) — Prices rose sharply near the close of active trading on the London stock market, spurred by Prime Minister Callaghan's decision against a fall election.

The Financial Times index was up 7.7 to 516.4 an hour before the close.

Leading industrials posted gains ranging into double figures, while gold issues were above the day's lowest levels.

Canadian stocks eased.

IMPERIAL SUBSIDIARY

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd. plans formation of a wholly-owned subsidiary, Esso Resources Ltd., based in Calgary, to manage the company's natural resource activities in Western Canada.

J. A. Armstrong, president and chief executive officer of Imperial, said the new company will permit effective management of the crude oil, natural gas, mineral, oil sands and heavy oil operations.

business

GW Steel

Great West Steel Industries Ltd. reported an increase in sales that put the company in the black for the first six months of this year.

Earnings before extraordinary items were $23,000 or one cent a share, compared with a loss of $514,000 during the same period in 1977.

An extraordinary gain of $21,000 from recovered income taxes pushed the latest period's final earnings to $44,000 or two cents a share. There were no extraordinary items in the 1977 first half.

The profits all came from business during the second quarter. In the three months ending March 30, GWS had losses of $116,000 or six cents a share.

Sales in the first half of this year moved up to $14,541,000 from $13,141,000.

President H. A. Magree said the trend is "encouraging and is expected to continue. Sales backlogs have improved considerably."

Afton Mines

Afton Mines Ltd. reported an operating profit of $3.47 billion in its first two months of operation ended June 30.

After providing for interest costs, depreciation and deferred income taxes, net earnings were $447,000 or 13 cents a share.

The company also reported that production at its Kamloops, B.C., operation in the two months was 10.7 million pounds of copper and 10,200 ounces of gold.

Trimac Ltd.

Trimac Ltd. reported that net earnings for the first six months of 1978 increased sharply compared with 1977 levels.

It said in a statement that net earnings totalled $3,862,000 or $1.61 a share to June 30 compared with $1,727,000 or 78 cents a share in 1977.

The substantial increase resulted from much improved operating profits together with the full consolidation of Kenting Ltd. earnings for the period compared with 56 per cent for the first four months of the corresponding period last year.

Had Kenting been wholly owned during the entire first half of 1977, the earnings would have been 97 cents a share, Trimac said.

The company also announced a quarterly dividend of 57 cents a share would be paid Sept. 30 to shareholders or record Sept. 15.

Merland Ex.

Net income for the six month period ended June 30 rose 42 per cent to $1,631,069 compared with $1,149,553 for the same period in 1977, Merland Explorations Ltd. said.

The company said gas production rates during the second quarter were substantially reduced from productive capacity levels due to restrictions imposed by gas producers.

Most of the volume restrictions now have been experienced, however, and production rates for the third and fourth quarters should be substantially higher, it said.

REBIRTH OF THE BLUES.

Licence Renewal Bid for Victoria CBC Outlet

The CBC is applying to Canadian Radio-television and Communications Commission for renewal of its television broadcasting licence for Victoria, even though the corporation said this week it would delay opening the station indefinitely.

CBUVT was to go on the air this fall. Its radio-television studio building is under construction on Kings at Blanshard.

But the federal government ordered a $71 million cutback in CBC spending and the local outlet was shelved.

The licence to broadcast TV programs from Victoria expires March 31, 1979, and an application for renewal was scheduled to be heard by the CRTC at hearings beginning Oct. 24 at the Four Seasons Hotel in Vancouver.

Other renewal applications set for the same hearings involve CHEK-TV Ltd. and community groups.

First Court Master Appointed in B.C.

Appointment of T.J. Halbert as the first master in B.C. of the supreme and county courts was announced Thursday by Attorney-General Garde Gardom.

Halbert, 53, has been registrar of the two courts for eight years.

A lawyer, he will have province-wide jurisdiction but will be based in Victoria and will conduct proceedings mainly on Vancouver Island, Gardom said.

Chief Justice N.T. Nemetz said Halbert will have jurisdiction in all preliminary matters except injunctions and specific duties which require the attention of a judge.

Halbert's appointment is one of several moves planned by the government to relieve the pressure on Victoria's overworked court system.

Last week Dennis Sheppard, associate deputy minister in charge of court services, said another provincial court judge will be brought in later in the fall. He added there are plans to have a third county court judge for the next assizes.

NEW BUILDING FOR FAIR?

Directors of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society will meet within two weeks to consider improvements to buildings on the Saanichton fairgrounds.

Under consideration is a proposal to replace four cattle barns with one new building.

"The amount of work we can do depends on how much money we have to spend once all bills are paid," said fair treasurer Clifford Clive.

He said paid attendance at this year's fair was 21,000, slightly down from last year.

Actual attendance was estimatad at 26,000. Children under 12 are admitted free, as well as society members.

Workers Battle Mud, Rocks To Unplug Railways, Roads

FIELD (CP) — A landslide that dumped mud and boulders half the size of boxcars on three rail lines likely will not be cleared before Saturday, a CP Rail spokesman said.

The slide Wednesday night blocked the CP Rail line and the Trans-Canada Highway at this community near the British Columbia-Alberta border. Part of an empty freight train was derailed and buried by the slide.

Hal Shepherd, Yoho Park chief warden, said he expected the highway to be closed for up to 36 hours.

The CP Rail spokesman said in Vancouver that transcontinental train passengers are being flown between Calgary and Vancouver because of the slide.

Passengers are travelling, at the railway's expense, on a jet chartered from Pacific Western Airlines, the spokesman said. Train passengers between Vancouver and the slide and between Calgary and the slide, are being bused to their destinations.

A Parks Canada warden said the slide originated in a glacier atop Cathedral Mountain which has been soaked with rain for three weeks.

Reporters flying over the slide area said a column of mud about 20 metres wide was meandering down the mountain sides from a point below the glacier, then spread out to more than 300 metres in width above the highway. From there, it veered west before splashing over a steep downhill section of the highway.

The slide area covers roughly a two-kilometre stretch of the highway. A derailed locomotive and car are mired in the mud.

Earl Olson, a CP Rail spokesman, said the slide appears to have followed a path similar to that of a slide which occurred Aug. 5, 1925.

Bob Ferguson, another realized the road was being covered by mud.

rail spokesman, said the railway would re-route trains through the Crowsnest pass, a detour of about 400 kilometres (250 miles). Travellers on the highway will have to make a 250-kilometre detour through Radium, B.C.

After the slide, 10 CP Rail employees spent Wednesday night huddled in the railway tunnel inside Cathedral Mountain, RCMP Cpl. Kent Hansen said. Nine men from the track repair camp on the siding escaped to safety.

The other man, from the freight train caboose, was unable to make it to safety before darkness fell, Hansen said. All were rescued Thursday and no one on the railway or highway was hurt.

Yoho Park warden Dale Portman, who was driving east at the time of the slide, said he first saw what appeared to be a thick fog roll over the highway. He then

But two east-bound motorists in a small foreign car tried to beat the slide despite Portman's warning. Their car soon became trapped, but they escaped by crawling though a window.

ANOTHER LINE UNBLOCKED

CHASE (CP) — Trains began rolling through this community Thursday after workers cleared 10 derailed CP Rail cars which had blocked the line for almost 24 hours.

Thirty men worked to right the cars loaded with sulphur.

Non-Teachers Still Out

CRANBROOK (CP) — Parents in rural areas of the East Kootenay have been forced to drive their children to and from school because of a five-week lockout of school board employees in six municipalities.

Clarence Lacombe, national representative for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, which represents the 350 non-teaching workers, including school bus drivers, said classes were being held despite the lockout in effect in Golden, Windermere, Kimberley, Creston, Fernie and Cranbrook.

Lacombe said contract talks broke off indefinitely after two unsuccessful bargaining sessions last week.

He said the provincial labor ministry is trying to get the two sides back to the bargaining table.

The B.C. School Trustees Association has refused to move from its original negotiating position, he said.

Major issues are wages and terms of the contract, which expired June 30. The school boards have served lockout notice for the past four years, Lacombe said, adding that a lockout in July and August saves them an estimated 17 per cent in wages. The union is seeking a contract which expires during the school year.

Plea for WCB Funds Freeloading: Unions

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia council of the Confederation of Canadian Unions has accused B.C. employers of trying to freeload by asking the government to contribute $25 million to the $189 million in unfunded liabilities of the Workers' Compensation Board.

The charge was made in response to a recent brief from the Employers' Council of B.C. to Labor Minister Allan Williams. The employers' council said $25 million would be about half of what a series of legislative changes since 1965 added to the cost of compensation.

Cathy Walker, secretary of the CCU's B.C. council and occupational health chairman of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers, said: "It's bad enough that B.C. mining companies are presently being subsidized by the taxpayers — since their health and safety inspection services are paid for by the Consolidated Revenue Fund rather than through the Workers' Compensation Board — now all B.C. employers are asking for a free ride."

She said that, in their brief, the employers quote the 1977 actuarial study of the WCB by Eckler, Brown, Segal and Co. Ltd. "when it suits their purposes, but they conveniently neglect to refer to the principles which are listed in the study which underly workers' compensation schemes in Canada, most notably that the cost of the compensation should be borne entirely by employers and should be regarded as part of their operating costs."

"Higher returns on board investment may be the professed aim of the employers' council when they demand that the board be allowed to invest in non-governmental bonds and funds," Walker said in a statement.

"However, we speculate their real interest is to get more control of the board by having its financial interests intertwined with B.C.'s major employers."

More Overseas Visitors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tourists from the United Kingdom, Japan, West Germany and other countries are visiting Canada at a rate that has officials predicting a 17-per-cent increase in tourism revenues this year.

Business from foreign visitors, not including the United States, should top $500 million this year, Roland Boire, director-general of marketing for the federal government's tourism office, said Wednesday.

About 80 per cent of tourism's $10-billion revenues comes from Canadians travelling within the country. Visitors from the U.S. account for more than $1.5 billion and offshore visitors the rest.

"We've had dramatic growth in visitors from the Netherlands, West Germany and Japan, Boire said. "The U.K. is still our best overseas market but its growth hasn't been as strong as others."

Ainu Meet B.C. Indians

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twenty-four representatives of the Ainu people of northern Japan arrived here Wednesday and met a group of British Columbia Indians--a people the Japanese say occupy a significant place in their legends.

In an unusual mixture of ceremonial dance and ritual at the Indian Centre Society, the two indigenous peoples united in friendhip.

Although their languages and customs are different, leaders of the two groups said they have common ground—both are native minorities struggling to retain their cultures.

George Manuel, president of the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs, said the problems facing the Ainu are similar to those of Indians but the Ainu have found to it more difficult to retain their culture.

The Ainu delegation is on an 11-day tour of North America, which will include a look at five Indian reservations in B.C.

James Mullens, an anthropologist involved in organizing the tour, said the Ainu are racially distinct from the majority of Japanese and speak an unrelated language.

He said their origin is a mystery but anthropologists believe the Ainu migrated to Japan from eastern Russia about 2,500 years ago.

Although they once populated most of Japan, they were forced to withdraw to the northern Japanese island of Hokkaido during the wars with the Japanese in the seventh and eighth century, he said.

They now number fewer than 50,000.

Mullens said the Ainu are similar to B.C. Indians because they traditionally have been hunters and fishermen.

"They have the same economic base, they live in the same ecological zone and they use similar tools for hunting and fishing. They also worship naturalistic gods such as fire and animal life," he said.

Indians Protest Test

VERNON (CP) — A decision by the provincial environment ministry to reduce its chemical treatment campaign against Eurasian milfoil to one experiment in the north arm of Okanagan Lake has met with opposition from a local Indian band.

The North Okanagan Indian band council said Thursday it has decided to oppose the application of 2,4-D in about a 15-acre area in the lake.

Provincial biologist Dwight Bailey said Wednesday the test, which must be conducted before Sept. 30, will take place about 11 kilometres from here and is not readily accesssible to the public.

Band spokesman Lyle Brewer said the council had decided to inform area environmentalist groups of its decision.

In Kelowna, Greenpeace spokesman Peter Chataway said the Indian move could place the government in an awkward position.

Puppyland Conviction: Operator Fined $250

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — A man who allowed puppies to starve was fined $250 Thursday and prohibited from owning any animal for 18 months.

Gordon Learmonth, former operator of Puppyland Kennels Ltd. of Abbotsford was convicted in provincial court of permitting pain and suffering to 19 dogs.

Police and SPCA officers seized five dead dogs and 14 sick and skinny puppies from Puppyland in March. One of the animals later had to be destroyed.

Court was told that autopsies showed the puppies died of starvation.

Body Identified

FORT NELSON (CP) — Arthur Ellworth Gordon, 44, of Fort Nelson, has been identified as the victim of a plane crash Tuesday near this northeastern British Columbia community.

Air Crash Probed

QUESNEL (CP) — The crash of a float plane near this central British Columbia community Tuesday, in which four persons died, was due to poor visibility, says a preliminary RCMP investigation of the crash.

Candidates Enter

RICHMOND (CP) — Sociologist Mercia Stickney, 45, was unopposed in her bid Wednesday to represent the NDP in the Oct. 16 byelection in Burnaby-Richmond-Delta riding.

In Tsawwassen, former Delta alderman Tony Schmand, 53, was successful by acclamation as the Liberal party's candidate. He is manager of a development company.

The two will compete against Progressive Conservative Tom Siddon, an engineer, and Communist Homer Stevens, a fisherman.

Fall Survived

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Bargiel, 27, of Vancouver, was reported in serious condition Thursday in Vancouver General Hospital with broken ribs, punctured lungs and a broken back after falling 24 metres from a guard rail.

Police said Bargiel was the driver of a car that hit a guard rail and overturned Wednesday evening on an approach ramp to the Granville Street Bridge.

Witnesses said that moments after the accident, a man climbed over the guard rail and fell to an area below the ramp.

Heritage Squandered?

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto art dealer says State Secretary John Roberts is squandering the national heritage by refusing to buy 19th century Canadian manuscripts that have been outside the country for 100 years.

Leo Heaps said in an interview that the collection, recommended for acceptance by the public archives in Ottawa, consists of 410 farewell addresses sent to Lord Dufferin when he left his post as governor-general of Canada in 1878 to return to England.

Heaps said he is trying to sell them for a private owner whose identity has not been disclosed.

The art dealer said the asking price of the two elaborate leather-bound books is a bargain when compared with general high prices in the world of art and antiques. He did not say what the price is.

A Roberts aide refused comment Thursday on why the secretary had refused to purchase the manuscripts.

NFLD. NEARLY FEUDAL STATE

OTTAWA (CP) — Newfoundland a feudal colony ruled by landlords and populated by runaway English Catholics?

It almost happened, say two documents written by Elizabethan explorer Sir Humphrey Gilbert and just acquired by the Public Archives of Canada.

Purchased from a U.S. owner at an undisclosed price, the papers have been described by experts as among the earliest "relating to English colonial experiments in North America ever likely to come on the market," an archives news release said Thursday.

Drawn up by Gilbert and co-signed by nine associates in 1582, they include detailed plans for a colony to be settled by persecuted English Catholics on any North American land claimed by England, said archivist Bruce Wilson.

Also included is a contract in which wealthy Catholics and other backers pledged money for Gilbert's planned trip in exchange for rights to parcels of any land discovered.

It was really a revolutionary idea at the time, said Wilson. Until then, explorers had only been looking for trade routes to China and the Far East.

Enough Gas, Says Firm

OTTAWA (CP) — TransCanada Pipelines Ltd. says there is enough natural gas in western Canada to meet demand through the mid-1990s.

Reserves are large enough to absorb additional exports to the United States, says TransCanada, sole supplier of gas from Alberta to the large eastern market, in a 200-page brief to the National Energy Board released Thursday.

The board has heard similar estimates from others in the oil industry as it prepares for hearings next month into the supply of and demand for the fuel.

A company calculation indicates a surplus of 9.4 trillion cubic feet of gas, the brief says.

About 2.7 trillion cubic feet now is produced — 1.7 trillion for domestic use and one trillion for export to the U. S.

The company estimates remaining marketable reserves of gas as of last December totalled 68.7 trillion cubic feet, almost all of it in Alberta.

N.W.T. Town Votes Dry

FORT RESOLUTION, N.W.T. (CP) — Residents of this community 150 kilometres south of Yellowknife have voted in favor of prohibition, the territorial government has reported. Fort Resolution is the 11th community in the Northwest Territories and the third this summer to vote for prohibition.

Olympic Cost Truth Vowed

MONTREAL (CP) — Public hearings into the $1.2-billion cost of the 1976 Olympic Games opened here Thursday with the head of the inquiry vowing to find "the truth" about how Games spending soared out of control.

Superior Court Justice Albert Malouf and his staff of 35 have been working behind closed doors since last November, when the Quebec government announced it would look into Games costs.

But it is the public hearings which have the greatest potential to embarrass Mayor Jean Drapeau, who brought the Olympics to Montreal amid widespread doubts about the city's ability to stave off astronomical expenditures.

Drapeau is up for re-election in November.

He added, however, that no special efforts would be made to examine the personal role of Drapeau or members of his administration before the Nov. 12 election. The hearings are scheduled to run until next June.

One of the first witnesses Thursday, an architect who worked on early planning of the main Games site, testified that the City of Montreal was unrealistic in estimating construction costs at $62.2 million when it won the right to stage the Games.

Michel Osterrath, who designed a scale model of the main Olympic park, said he believed in 1970 that the facilities would cost $250 million, and even that estimate did not take account of inflation.

Osterrath said he believed his firm was in the running to design the facilities until 1972, when he was invited to see a film showing French architect Roger Taillibert's plans for the installations. Taillibert received the job shortly thereafter.

The French architect has already been paid $4 million for his work, but is seeking between $10 million and $20 million more. Taillibert never signed a contract, the Quebec government says.

Arthur Lavigne of the Ernst and Ernst accountancy firm presented figures on spending for the main Olympic park, which includes a 70,000-seat stadium, the velodrome cycling hall and the swimming pool.

The documents showed Montreal's estimates climbed from $62.2 million in 1969 to $175 million in 1972, to $460.6 million by 1974, and to $828.9 million by December, 1975.

Another Witness Delay

OTTAWA (CP) — A royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing again has had to delay calling politicians and senior officials as witnesses.

Mr. Justice David C. McDonald, the commission chairman, was unable Thursday to say when these witnesses will be called but they won't be on the stand when hearings resume Monday after a five-week recess.

"We hope that we'll be able to set targets next week," he said in an interview.

He announced in March that the royal commission hoped to begin hearing senior witnesses in July. But later in the spring, the commission said these witnesses would appear in seven weeks of hearings beginning Sept. 11.

They are expected to include former solicitors-general Jean-Pierre Goyer and Warren Allmand, retired RCMP commissioners W. L. Higgitt and Maurice Nadon, Deputy Justice Minister Roger Tasse, and Michael Pitfield, who as clerk of the privy council and secretary to the cabinet is the highest-ranking member of the public service.

"Almost everything has taken more time than we expected," Mr. Justice McDonald said of public hearings so far. In these hearings, the witnesses have been the "field" Mounties who interpreted and carried out policy.

Sensational Smoking Experience

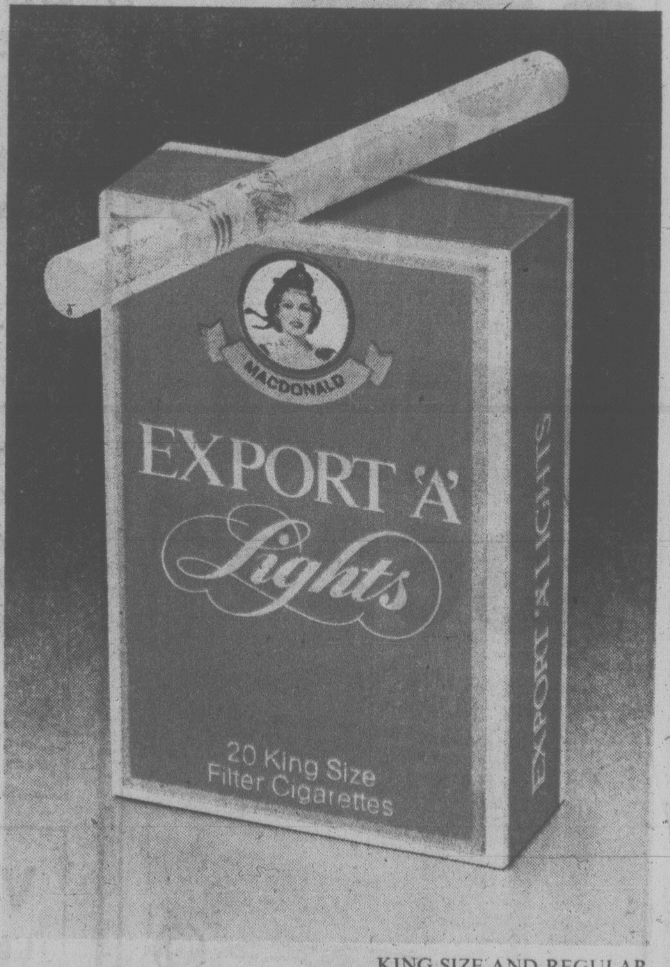
From "Gentled Tobacco" comes Export 'A' Lights, for smokers who have gone from strong to mild and are still unsatisfied.

In all our years of cigarette making (we started in 1858), we have never made a cigarette like Export 'A' Lights.

We took the finest, full-flavoured tobaccos available. Then gentled and blended them as never before, to produce total taste combined with a light smoke. All richness in, all harshness out. Not just another cigarette, but a truly sensational smoking experience with gentle strength.

If strong cigarettes are too much for you, and mild cigarettes not enough, you owe it to yourself to try Export 'A' Lights.

It's the one cigarette that's just right.



KING SIZE AND REGULAR

Export 'A' Lights.
The first just right cigarette.

Warning: Health and Welfare Canada advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked — avoid inhaling. 14mg "tar", 1.0mg nicotine.

Topless Rights Fight

TORONTO (CP) — Susan Ballantyne was stunned when she lost a job opportunity because she would not bare her breasts in public.

Miss Ballantyne applied for a job as a waitress at a Toronto tavern last April and would not comply when the prospective employer said: "Take your shirt off and let's see what you've got."

Her anger was aroused on seeing male waiters wearing shirts.

Her case is under study by the Ontario Human Rights Commission.

A commission official said this week the commission is studying three cases alleging sexual discrimination by Toronto taverns refusing to hire women who would not go topless.

Miss Ballantyne, 24, an honors graduate in philosophy, earned money waiting on tables while attending Trent University in Peterborough, Ont. After moving to Toronto two years ago and finding no jobs in her field, she worked full-time as a waitress.

"The only thing you can do is get an MA, a PhD, then publish and get a teaching job," she said.

Miss Ballantyne, who now has entered the University of Toronto law school, hopes that the commission will be able to reach a satisfactory solution to the problem with the tavern.

Filion Not At Meeting, MP Testifies

TORONTO (CP) — A member of Parliament testified at a conspiracy trial Thursday that Gerard Filion was with him during the hours that a previous witness said Filion spent at a meeting discussing the rigging of dredging bids.

Filion, former president of Marine Industries Ltd., of Sorel, Que., is accused with 10 other men and nine companies, including Marine Industries, of conspiring to defraud public agencies of more than $4.27 million by rigging bids on dredging contracts between 1969 and 1975.

Filion is charged in two counts of the seven-count indictment.

Filion's lawyer, Edward Greenspan, produced witnesses, including Florian Cote, Liberal MP for Richelieu, giving Filion alibis for both instances in which the Crown has alleged that he negotiated with competing dredging companies.

Greenspan said the Crown's case against Filion rests solely on evidence that he attended two bid-rigging meetings.

Greenspan said a Crown witnesss, Roland Thibault, a former vice-president of Marine Industries, had testified Filion attended a meeting at an Ottawa hotel on the morning of March 13, 1969.

Cote testified he had checked his records and found that Filion was in his Parliament Hill office from about 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on that date.

Cote said the meeting concerned a dredging contact that had been awarded to a competitor of Marine Industries.

Thibault also testified that on June 22, 1971, he telephoned Filion at the Montreal offices of Marine Industries and reported the outcome of another bid-rigging meeting.

Jeannine Prudhomme, a friend of Filion, testified Thursday that she accompanied Filion and his wife and daughter on a trip to the Kataska Club, 800 kilometres from Montreal. She said the group arrived at the club June 12, 1971, and returned to Montreal the next day.

She said that at the time Thibault said he had phoned Filion, they were about halfway back to Montreal.

In his opening remarks to the jury, Greenspan said Filion, 69, will testify on his own behalf and will deny any knowledge of bid-rigging.

Greenspan said he will call several character witnesses, including Claude Ryan, the Quebec Liberal leader and former publisher of the Montreal newspaper, Le Devoir.

Greenspan preceded Ryan as publisher of the newspaper.

Panic Budget - Levesque

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) — The federal government's recent budget cuts were inspired by panic, and reflect signs of wear in the Liberal government, Quebec Premier Rene Levesque said Thursday.

Levesque made the comments during a tour of the Saguenay and Lac St. Jean regions about 180 kilometres north of Quebec City.

The Liberals cut expenditures in every province but Ontario, where they need votes to win the next federal election, the premier said, adding that "the cuts were made in the most painful places."

Levesque referred to the freeze on construction at the $600-million Laprade heavy water plant near Trois-Rivieres, Que., where he said the budget cut by Ottawa will mean the loss of more than 1,000 jobs.

"The federal government isn't economizing by these cuts, but it is creating problems not only in Quebec but in all regions," he said.

"All this because of an election — it's beyond words."

Quints Born in France

TOULOUSE, France (UPI) — A 30-year-old child rearing specialist, Marie-Celine Losse, has given birth to France's second set of quintuplets this year and mother and children are reported to be doing well, hospital officials said today.

The quintuplets — three girls and two boys — were born Thursday, two months premature, and immediately placed in incubators where they were reported thriving, officials said.

Mrs. Losse, whose husband Christian, 37, is a computer specialist, underwent a fertility treatment in order to have more children, the officials said.

With news of the birth of the second set of French quintuplets, French Health Minister Simone Veil announced she would take steps to provide extra financial and practical assistance to families with triplets, quadruplets and quintuplets.

GOLDA PLANNED SUICIDE?

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — A book soon to be published says former Israeli Premier Golda Meir spoke of committing suicide in the early stages of the 1973 Middle East war.

The book by Israeli author Hanoch Bartov is a biography of the late General David Elazar, chief-of-staff at the time of the October war.

Bartov says in the biography entitled Dado that Mrs. Meir, premier from 1969 to 1974, talked of suicide after receiving a gloomy report from then Defence Minister Moshe Dayan on the second day of the war.

LONDON — An aged Jewish widow, Fanny Gedall, killed herself after watching the U.S. television film Holocaust, relatives said Thursday.

Mrs. Gedall, 81, whose husband's Polish family was killed by the Germans in the Second World War, left a note saying that after "seeing that terrible program she wanted nothing more to do with the world," said her daughter-in-law.

The dead woman's son, Hector, 47, said he found his mother dead in bed in her apartment at St. Anne's near Blackpool, Lancashire, with the note and her will. He said she apparently took an overdose of pills.

The first part of Holocaust depicting Nazi anti-Semitic propaganda and atrocities in the 1930s was shown by the BBC Sunday night.

Gedall said his mother was British-born and did not suffer personally in the war, but her brother-in-law and his daughter were killed by the Nazis in France and she looked after another relative who survived the Dachau concentration camp.

"She was frightened by the way things were going and was badly upset when a National Front leaflet was pushed through her letter box last week," Gedall said.

The right-wing front campaigns against non-white immigration.

JERUSALEM — Singer Joan Baez said Thursday she was delighted with the accidental controversy she caused by backing out of a concert performance in Israeli-occupied Arab territory because "at least people talked" about her doctrine of non-violence.

Miss Baez said she would not have agreed to perform if she had known Nueiba was part of Israel's 1967 war acquisitions. "Conquered territory anywhere is not a comfortable place for me."

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — W. Carl Jackson believes everyone has his mountain to climb and his ocean to sail, and he sailed his — from Boston to Ireland in 60 days.

"I feel like I'm damn fortunate to be alive and here," the 55-year-old Indiana University dean of libraries said after docking his 30-foot ketch at the Royal Cork Yacht Club Wednesday. "I wasn't sure I was ever going to make it."

SURREY — E. S. (Eddie) Johnson, chief of four Canadian Press bureaus during a 38-year career with the news co-operative, died Thursday after an apparent heart attack. He was 81.

Betrothed Rock Singer Dies

LONDON (Reuter) — Rock 'n' roll entertainer Keith Moon of the pop group The Who died Thursday of natural causes, a day after the announcement of his engagement, a spokesman for the group said.

Moon, 31, was found by his fiancee Annette Walter-Lax in his London apartment.

The spokesman for the group denied reports that Moon, who played the drum with the group, had died of a drug overdose.

"This is the first thing people think of but he died of natural causes," the spokesman said.

Patty's Hunter Pleads

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An FBI agent who headed the 19-month search for Patricia Hearst has joined a list of prominent officials seeking the newspaper heiress' release from prison.

Charles Bates, now retired, said Thursday he told Attorney-General Griffin Bell that "Miss Hearst has served sufficient time and that the sentence should be mitigated."

"Patty and her family deeply appreciate the active support that has been given her by Senator S. I. Hayakawa, Lt.-Gov. Mervin Dymally, Congressman Leo Ryan and now by former FBI agent Charles Bates," Patty's mother, Catherine Hearst, said Thursday in a statement.

Bates said he wrote to Bell because of his intimate knowledge of Miss Hearst

"'FOUL PLAY' IS HOWL PLAY. A VERY FUNNY FILM. IT DELIVERS MORE ROAR THAN ALMOST ANYTHING ELSE THIS YEAR. ALL THE ACTION COMES FAST, FURIOUS AND FUNNY. The total impact is super. It's all for fun. FINE SUMMER ENTERTAINMENT." —Bob Lape, ABC-TV

"A HIGHLY ENTERTAINING MOVIE. A MYSTERY-THRILLER, COMPLETE WITH HAIR-RAISING SHOCK EFFECTS. The film works very well as a fond evocation of Hitchcock's 'The Man Who Knew Too Much'. Goldie Hawn is delightful. Chevy Chase's customary pratfalls are laugh-provoking."
—Martin Mitchell, After Dark

"BRIGHT PERFORMANCES, GENUINELY FUNNY LINES, AND AN OVERALL IRRESISTIBLE FEELING OF CHARM. The cast is superb. Goldie Hawn is grand. Chevy Chase is adorable. They create an onscreen chemistry that is irresistible."

Space Shuttle Seat for SF Guru

By MARTIN WALKER
The Guardian

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — Arthur C. Clarke has made a deal with the National Aeronautics and Space Agency. He will come to the United States again on condition that they reserve a seat for him on the space shuttle.

It seems a reasonable arrangement. There is something fitting about sending one of the world's foremost enthusiasts and writers into the space which has so long obsessed him.

And there is also a measure of sacrifice in Clarke's agreeing to leave his home in Sri Lanka. He has arranged here, he proudly admits, what may well be the most satisfying environment on the planet.

He lives in an oasis of technology in an underdeveloped nation. The house itself is luxurious enough, the former residence of the bishop of Columbo, with an air conditioned Mercedes in the driveway. On the way up the stairs to the study are three large telescopes, one of them the latest eight-inch reflector, which makes the face of the moon look as close as the prime minister's house down the road.

In the study, one wall is dominated by a complex of stereo systems and tape decks, on which Clarke records himself reading his stories for the lucrative American record market. He can't understand why anyone wants to hear it more than once. I suggest that automated mothers might use them for bedtime stories for their children, and his brain visibly clicks into gear as he considers the possibilities.

On the desk is his own private computer. He spent three weeks programming it to produce an unending fountain-shape of figures on the display screen. There is a huge digitally-tuned radio, and a complex of TV and video systems.

This comes as a shock to a visitor who knows Ceylon. The island does not yet have TV.

Clarke points to the balcony where the eight-foot reflector used to stand before a gale blew it into the garden. A gift from the Indian government, it allowed him to receive the satellite TV transmissions with which the Indians are experimenting.

Below the balcony is the boathouse where the glass-bottomed boats for his tour company are built. Clarke has a local partner, a former Ceylonese boxing champion called Hector, and 10 employees and they run underwater safaris. Beneath the study is a room which houses a hundred or so aqualungs, diving suits and face masks. It was the barrier reef which brought Clarke here, more than 20 years ago, for the diving and for the attraction of that alternative to space, the deep sea.

"After I first came here, I wrote a book called 'The Shining Ones,' about an underwater power station," he says. He moves restlessly around the room as he speaks, his sarong ruffling in the breeze from the air-conditioner. He pulls out books from the shelves, overwhelming the listener with references, photographs, paragraphs. "And now I heard this morning that the Indians are starting to experiment with the system I described."

It happens often, this kind of second-stage eureka, when he hears of somebody somewhere starting to develop an idea which he once had. He invented the concept of communications satellites — the first five shares in the Communications Satellite Corp. hang on his wall. And in the movie "2001," one of his characters says during a crisis in space "Houston, we've got a problem." Five years later, when the Apollo mission almost failed, the first the world heard of it was Clarke's quote — "Houston, we've got a problem." The signal hangs on his wall, a present from NASA.

Clarke enjoys fame, and he name drops with a shamelessness that disarms criticism. The conversation moves to the Indian Ocean and strategy — "Lev Mandelovitch. The Russian chap who negotiated the space treaty and the SALT talks, he's now a sort of roving ambassador to the Indian Ocean. He dropped in here for a couple of hours. He's read all my books in English. He was a bit concerned about this private space venture the West Germans have in Zaire, The Otrag thing.

"Lutz Kaiser, the chap who runs Otrag, had been here too, just a couple of months before the invasion of Zaire. He has old Kurt Debus from Peenemunde working with him. Kaiser gave me a film of their operations. It's all a bit primitive, with a revolutionary launch gantry made of bamboo, but it seems to work. I showed Mandelovitch the film — made him quite thoughtful. I was telling Jim Fletcher of NASA about it when he dropped in the other day."

CLARKE

Clarke cannot sit still, stalking the room — which visitors enter barefoot, in the local way. He ties and reties the knot of his sarong, a bundle of nervous energy as he says that he has now retired. Retired? says the visitor, who has just been told of a planned series of 13 TV programs on scientific mysteries, of his book publishing company about to bring out his mother's memoirs, of trips here and celebrities there, of table tennis tournaments (his favorite sport), and diving trips and lectures.

"Well, I've just completed my biggest project, my new book. It's the most ambitious thing I have ever done. Everything is in it. Buddhist philosophy, ancient history, the ultimate space transport system. It's my magnum opus, and I'm calling it 'The Fountains of Paradise.' Two main locales, both in Ceylon, are awe-inspiring places. One of them is Adam's Peak, sacred to every religion. Christians and Moslems say it's Adam's footstep on the summit, Buddhists say it must be Buddha's mark, and the Hindus say the footprint is that of the god Shiva."

He turns to the bookshelf, bringing out a book of the space paintings of the Russian artist Leonov, and turns to a picture of a space station orbiting above the Earth, with a long thread hanging down to Earth's surface.

"The Russians invented it back in 1960, and the Americans re-invented it for themselves only recently. The space elevator is just a common or garden lift that goes up and down from Earth to the space station. It should reduce the costs of getting people and loads into space to about two dollars a trip because the energy you need to haul something up is returned when the lift goes down. The ultimate transport system. I'm so excited about the first publication of this — the book will be coming out first in the 25th anniversary issue of Playboy magazine."

Behind him as he speaks is a color photograph of Playboy's intellectual gurus, gathered once together in Hugh Hefner's garden. Clarke, Buckminister Fuller, Isaac Asimov, J.K. Galbraith.

Both Hijacked Pilots Shot Just Before Jet Crashed

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuter) — The pilots of a hijacked Malaysian airliner were both shot dead just before it plunged into a mangrove swamp last December, killing everyone on board, an official report said Thursday.

The investigation shed no light on who seized the plane, or the motive for the hijacking.

The Boeing 737 of the Malaysian Airline System was carrying 93 passengers and seven crew when it crashed on Dec. 4 in Malaysia's Johore state, just north of Singapore. It was hijacked during a scheduled flight from the resort island of Penang to Kuala Lumpur.

The dead included Malaysian Agriculture Minister Datuk Haji Ali Ahmad, the Cuban ambassador to Malaysia and Japan and a number of Americans, Australians, Britons, Japanese and West Germans.

The report said a hijacker's voice speaking a foreign language was heard on the plane's flight recorder during conversations with the pilots, but it was impossible to identify the language.

A transcript of cockpit recordings showed that as the plane approached Singapore, the pilot, Captain G. K. Ganjoor, told the hijacker that the crew "were not going to do anything funny." There was a discussion about the altimeter setting and background lights, a single shot rang out followed by a low groan. Ganjoor then pleaded "No, please don't."

A second shot followed and Ganjoor said, "No. Please, no." After a third shot, the captain said, "Please, no. Oh." And then his voice faded away.

"For a reason or reasons which may never be established, the hijackers suddenly incapacitated the crew as the aircraft descended for a landing at Singapore," the report said.

The report said 98 per cent of the conversations in the cockpit had been deciphered.

But, it added, "Regrettably, it leaves many questions unanswered, such as who were the hijackers, what were their intentions and where did they want to go."

Cattle Runners Fined

WASHINGTON (CP) — A Quebec corporation and four U.S. cattle dealers have been fined a total of $36,000 for conspiring to smuggle cattle from Canada to the United States and violating quarantine regulations, the U.S. agriculture department reported Thursday.

A department statement said a federal district court in Syracuse, N.Y., returned guilty verdicts against W.J.N. Inc. of Huntingdon, Que., and three New York state cattle dealers: William Donald LaPage of North Bangor, Chester Lawrence of Malone and William J. Neverett of Plattsburg. Also found guilty was Euclide Quesnel of Middlebury, Vt.

The company received a $2,000 fine, while Quesnel was fined $10,000 and given four years' probation, LaPage was fined $5,000 and three years' probation, and Lawrence was fined $5,000 and three years' probation. Neverett was sentenced to three months in jail in addition to a $10,000 fine and three years' probation.

Pan Am Merger Set

Washington Post

NEW YORK — Pan American World Airways announced Thursday it had reached a definitive agreement to merge with National Airlines, and — in a surprise development — also said it would soon end its service to Moscow and other points in Europe to save money.

New York-to-Moscow service was inaugurated simultaneously in 1968 by Pan American and the Soviet state airline Aeroflot, after 10 years of tricky negotiations.

At the time, the service represented an important, if symbolic, commercial link that ushered in a period of detente following decades of Cold War between the two superpowers.

But Pan Am, the only U.S. airline to serve Russia, has rarely made money on the route.

"We don't see that it represents any political signal to Moscow," said Michael Styles, director of the state department's office of aviation. He said Pan Am did not consult with the department in advance.

Pan Am said that, in addition to Moscow, it will suspend service on Oct. 29 to nine other foreign cities — Amsterdam, Paris, Vienna, Lisbon, Ankara, Belgrade, Budapest, Bucharest and Prague — and to Boston and Portland, Maine, in the United States.

Peacekeepers Duel With Machineguns

BEIRUT (UPI) — Syrian peace-keeping troops fought rocket and machinegun duels with Christian militiamen in today in the fiercest battle in a month.

The Israeli-supported Christian rightists poured heavy shellfire on the Palestinian-dominated town of Nabatiyeh in the southeast Thursday, leaving six persons wounded, on-the-scene reports said.

Fires were reported in several areas of Beirut but no casualty figures were available for today's fighting.

The twin battles came as Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat met at the Camp David Middle East summit conference hosted by President Carter.

Israeli warplanes streaked over southern Lebanon Thursday and the Jewish state's gunboats moved up the Lebanese coast as far north as Damour, just below Beirut, drawing Palestinian machinegun and mortar fire, witnesses said.

Diplomats said the Israeli reconnaissance efforts underscored earlier hints the Jewish state might intervene to head off a "massacre" against the Christians in Lebanon.

The right-wing Phalangist Radio today quoted diplomatic sources as saying Washington had warned Israel against attempts to increase tensions in Lebanon during the summit. It said Israel had asked the United States in turn to curb Syrian military activity.

Legal Aid -From Computer

WARWICK, R.I. (AP) — Lawyer Howard Haronian is opening electronic law offices in four discount drugstores, but he says his computer won't cancel a need for "the old-fashioned" lawyer.

Beginning Monday, Haronian plans to offer simple legal services such as wills and house closings by computer.

Haronian, along with a partner and four lawyers he has hired, will give a 20-minute legal consultation for $15, write a simple will for $25, do an uncontested divorce for $185 and close a house sale for $100.

Haronian doesn't think the computerized legal business will make conventional lawyers obsolete. He does, however, think it may free them for more-complicated cases.

"There's still a need for the old-fashioned approach, the in-depth services that need individual attention," Haronian said. "We've got an established practice that we don't want to change."

However, Edward Smith, executive director of the Rhode Island Bar Association, says he's not sure all clients will get the individual attention they need through Haronian's service.

"You get what you pay for, whether it's a will or a can opener," he said: "If you want a computerized will, if your problems are minimal, then of course, the lower the cost the better."

Haronian said a "computer word processor" with a television screen and a typewriter keyboard will be used to duplicate documents — at 450 words a minute — which are stored in the computer memory. The lawyer will fill in blanks in the forms as necessary.

NEW CAR AND TRUCK SPECIALS!

Brian McLean Talks About "Rolling Model Change"

What is "Rolling Model Change"? It is a term used by the automobile industry whereby the manufacturers build their current models (1978) up to a Friday and on the following Monday, the new models (1979) will be rolling off the line. There will be minor cosmetic changes of course, but the styling on most of the cars remain unchanged. This year at General Motors they are having a Rolling Model Change and this is one of many reasons by September is the time for the intelligent buyer to buy and take advantage of:

Our Stocking Problem
We have over 200 1978 cars and trucks in stock and all of them have been substantially reduced. They must be sold to make space for the 79's.

Price Increases
General Motors have announced an average price increase of approximately 5% for 1979 models. (some have increased as high as 10.5%) Get a double saving — buy a 1978 at a price reduction and save on price increases.

t Selection and Prices
.e early for best selection of 1978 models for colours, options, prices, etc. (Our salesmen have been instructed to present any reasonable offer). The longer you wait the less you have to choose from. Remember, the intelligent buyer buys in September.

Crawford Leaving Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Francis Crawford, a U.S. businessman convicted of violating Soviet currency laws and given a suspended sentence, said today he has received permission to leave the Soviet Union and will be on an evening flight to Frankfurt, West Germany.

"I'm sorry to leave," he said in a telephone interview. "I've liked doing business here. It was a real challenge."

Crawford received a five-year suspended sentence on Thursday after he was convicted on charges of black market currency dealings. He could have received eight years in a labor camp. Two Soviet co-defendants received labor-camp penalties and a third received a suspended sentence.

Russian officials had said it would take five working days for them to provide the 37-year-old Crawford with an exit visa, but he said he received the document today.

The court found Crawford guilty of buying 20,000 Soviet rubles at black-market rates from a Russian seamstress and her husband. The husband allegedly was the ringleader of an international currency-and-contraband ring. Crawford denied the charges.

"I've been to three county fairs, an ostrich race and a public hanging, but nothing like this," said Crawford after the verdict was read.

The light sentence was seen as an attempt to ease U.S.-Soviet tensions. Crawford was dragged from his car and arrested June 12 in apparent retaliation for spying charges against two Russian UN employees in New Jersey.

Who Took JFK's Brain? Two-Hit Theory Queried

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the first bizarre new development to emerge from two days of public hearings, the House Assassination Committee has revealed that John F. Kennedy's brain was not buried with him and its present whereabouts is not known.

The committee said Thursday it has been unable to trace what happened to the brain of the murdered president after it was placed in a metal container during the autopsy.

Dr. Cyril H. Wecht, forensic and pathology panel member who disagreed almost completely with the findings of his eight colleagues, said during his testimony Thursday the brain should be traced and its disappearance explained.

He said there was a possibility of another, unrecorded hit suffered by the late president, "but we need the brain" to check that out.

Eight members of the nine-man team named by the committee to study the accumulated forensic and pathology evidence, generally agreed with the conclusion of the Warren Commission in 1974 that two bullets hit Kennedy from the rear and that one of these smashed on into Texas Gov. John Connally who was sitting directly in front of the president in the limousine jump seat.

According to that scenario, not disputed by a majority of the new panel Thursday, one bullet entered Kennedy's back, exited through the throat under his adam's apple and wounded Connally in the chest, hand and leg.

Another bullet exploded open Kennedy's skull and a third missed the limousine and flicked a chip off the curb alongside.

But there were differences of opinion between the panel, the Warren report and previous expert studies on the exact location of the wounds, and some criticism of how the autopsy was carried out and reported.

Wecht strongly disagreed with the "one-bullet" theory, and said, "no single bullet could have caused all these wounds."

He said persistence in maintaining the lone assassin theory amounts to a "criminal conspiracy in every sense of the definition . . . because the moment you dismiss the single bullet, that moment you are into the second assassin."

JET BRAKES ON TAKEOFF, TIRES BURST

ATHENS (AP) — The pilot of a Trans World Airlines jumbo jet carrying 353 persons on an Athens-to-New York flight slammed on the brakes at the last minute Thursday after the plane developed engine trouble, airport police said today. There were no injuries.

The pilot hit the brakes just before the jet was to lift off, and all 16 tires burst, the police said.

They said the pilot acted after noticing that one of the engines was malfunctioning and trailing smoke. There was no fire.

Cancer Patients Helped

CHICAGO (AP) — Doctors and scientists reported striking results Thursday in treating hopelessly ill cancer patients with a pencil-thin beam of high energy particles produced at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory.

The American Medical Association said similar research elsewhere has shown only moderate success, but doctors associated with the project said neutron therapy may save twice as many lives as conventional therapy used for the same cancers.

The treatment is a byproduct of high energy physics research at the lab and consists of aiming a concentrated beam of neutrons on the cancerous tumor. More than 200 persons have been treated at the Fermi facility in the last two years, but some officials there say they could handle many more patients.

"The most exciting thing is that almost all of the patients responded favorably, either with a shrinkage of their tumors or, in some cases, complete disappearance," said Dr. Lionel Cohen, head of the project and director of the radiation department at Michael Reese Hospital.

The treatment at Fermi has been used as an alternative to disfiguring surgery.

Defrock Bishop Demand

ATHENS (Reuter) — Leaders of the 8,000-member association of Greek Orthodox priests demanded today that a bishop be defrocked whether or not he is guilty in an alleged "sex-and-snapshot" scandal.

The board of the association sent a letter urging the immediate defrocking of Bishop Stylianos, 66, to the church's governing Holy Synod and also a telegram to the bishop himself requesting his resignation for the good of the church.

Meanwhile, the Holy Synod said it has given the bishop, metropolitan of Preveza in northwest Greece, until next Friday to answer its previous request for his written explanations in the case.

Bishop Stylianos is alleged to have had sexual relations with a woman.

A photograph purporting to show the bishop and the woman naked in bed was sent to Ioannis Varvitsiotis, minister of education and religion.

S.A. Suspects Namibia Plot

WINDHOEK, Namibia (Reuter) — South Africa's chief administrator in Namibia, also known as South West Africa, accused the territory's black nationalist movement Thursday of planning a large-scale attack after United Nations forces have been deployed there.

Administrator-General Marthinus Steyn also said the South-West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO) wants to eliminate him and the political leaders.

Steyn, speaking at the opening of an agricultural show in Windhoek, said his information is based on broadcasts from Angola.

His speech came as South African Foreign Minister Pik Botha was returning to Pretoria from New York after objecting to key elements in a UN plan to bring independence to Namibia.

Botha objected to the size of the UN contingent and suggestion that a Dec. 31 target date for independence be set back.

FALL ELECTION RULED OUT

OTTAWA (FP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has definitely decided against a fall general election this year, high level government sources said today.

The decision was made based partly on the adverse Toronto findings of a private poll commissioned by the Liberal party, partly on the Gallup Poll released this week and also on a reluctance of the prime minister to have a fall election.

The Goldfarb survey—a Toronto-based poll often used by the Liberal party to take a sounding on political feelings across the country—has revealed the Liberals are running behind the Conservatives in several Toronto key areas, Liberal sources said.

This combined with the latest Gallup Poll which shows the Liberal strength in Ontario is softening is worrying the Liberal strategists. They are happy that the Gallup Poll showed the Liberals' over-all strength to be 10 percentage points ahead of the Conservatives.

But much of this improvement in strength comes from Quebec, a Liberal stronghold. The Liberal organizers want to see an improvement in western Canada and in Ontario as well as the Maritimes before going to the polls.

sented to Parliament before the end of this year. The statement said tax cuts, if they take place, could change the deficit and borrowing requirements.

The government said productive activity will have to expand at a greater pace for the rest of this year to achieve hoped-for real growth of four per cent for the full year.

Officials project growth in the value of production next year at around 11 per cent, including price inflation, saying "most forecasts" call for a real growth rate of four per cent. The government said it would be pleased if the growth rate reached five per cent — a target set at a July economic summit meetng in Bonn by Prime Minister Trudeau.

"Our objectives are to achieve a continuing decline in the rate of inflation and to achieve a real rate of growth which will bring down the rate of unemployment," the two ministers said in a joint statement.

Federal-provincial programs to be trimmed include equalization payments to poorer provinces and the Canada Assistance Plan, a welfare program for the needy.

Andras acknowledged that Ottawa has contractual obligations to pay the full amounts under shared-cost programs, but said he hopes to negotiate the reductions. He cited "the spirit of the provincial views" expressed at an August meeting of provincial premiers in Regina, where they called for economic restraint.

As plans stand, there will be a net reduction in spending this year and next, the ministers said.

"Is this appropriate to the needs of the economy," their statement asks. "Or should we return these savings to Canadians in the form of tax reductions? Or does stronger economic expansion require larger tax reductions, even at the expense of a larger deficit?"

"These questions can only be addressed with reference to the state of the economy . . . . The proper occasion for this is a budget speech delivered in the House of Commons."

TERRORIST MOVED

ASINARA, Sardinia (AP) — Renato Curcio, founder of the terrorist Red Brigades, has been secretly transferred from this penitentiary island to an undisclosed jail, officials say.

They said Curcio, 37, whose organization kidnapped and assassinated former premier Aldo Moro while Curcio was on trial in Turin, was transferred Monday night after a disturbance at the prison. The location of his new jail was kept secret.

Curcio was sentenced to 15 years in June for forming an armed band to overthrow the state and taking part in political kidnappings.

U.S. Dollar Higher

LONDON (AP) — The United States dollar opened higher against most major West European currencies today and strengthened against the Japanese yen. Gold prices fell in Europe.

Dealers said the dollar was helped by favorable foreign reaction to indications the U.S. Senate is moving ahead on an energy bill.

In Montreal, the U.S. dollar closed Thursday at $1.1574 in terms of Canadian funds.

The price of gold in London was $208.60 an ounce today, down from $211.25 Thursday.

Challinor and a union spokesman agreed the long-term solution to the shipbuilding industry's woes lies in a Canadian merchant marine.

Neil Hindle, business manager of the Victoria local of the Boilermakers Union, said the government should begin by requiring that all goods moving on coastal and inland waters be carried in Canadian-built, Canadian-owned and Canadian-manned ships.

"That would be the first mini-step toward the creation of a Canadian merchant marine," he said.

He also said provincial politicians as well as B.C.'s MPs must start making more noise about the plight of West Coast shipyards in order to get more work.

He was particularly critical of Conservative MPs Allan McKinnon of Victoria, and Donald Munro of Esquimalt-Saanich.

Hindle said both have been keeping a low profile as far as shipbuilding is concerned.

"I would say it was submarine style — you can't even see it."

Hindle said there has to be more representation in Ottawa.

Fancy Nautical Nuptials? Then Rent Ferry Lounge

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

BOUCHARD
. . . why not?

The bride and groom exchanged vows, surrounded by family and relatives as the B.C. ferry made her way on a regular run between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen.

It hasn't happened yet but B.C. Ferries' traffic manager Bill Bouchard is betting it could before next summer rolls around.

"We've regularly committed ashes to the deep from the ferries, we've had our first baby born aboard (in 1971) and given a lifetime pass. It (a ferry wedding) would be a good way of kicking things off — there must be lots of people out there who would be interested," he said.

Waterborne nuptial vows have been made possible by a new unadvertised program this year that is already gaining momentum. During the off-season when the large upper restaurant lounges are closed they will be available for social events, meetings, conventions and other gatherings.

The basic rate for use of the lounges on the scheduled Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen runs will start at $40 for a one-way cruise plus catering, the price being regulated by the type of meal served and the number of staff required.

Bouchard said the service was initiated after B.C. Ferries received a request from the eastern-based Honda company which is rewarding its top personnel with an across-Canada trip. A total of 450 Honda employees will travel to Victoria on Sept. 28, returning to Vancouver the next day.

Another group — this time 250 American insurance salesmen — is booked for Oct. 13. Some time in September B.C. Hydro will use the service.

Bouchard says B.C. Ferries is cashing in on the growing incentive travel market in which companies reward initiative by providing free trips.

"There's a surge in the incentive travel market. It's becoming pretty good and it's big business," he said. "There's a lot of interest and we're not using the space — why not?"

To assist sales and business meetings audio-visual equipment is available.

The winter package tours aboard the Prince Rupert, first started in the fall of 1977 as an experiment, are also growing in popularity.

These are being widely advertised and include a round trip from Tsawwassen to Prince Rupert with a stopover and tour in the northern part for $160, a triangle cruise between Vancouver, Victoria and Campbell River for $91 and a seven-day Inside Passage tour for $222 per person.

Bouchard said because of the overflow on one trip this spring people taking the tour were booked in five Victoria Hotels — The Empress, Laurel Point Inn, Harbor Towers, Executive House and the Chateau Victoria.

Up-Island hotels booked for the 1977 package tour program were the Discovery Inn, Haida, Austrian Chalet and Painter's Lodge in Campbell River, as well as the Qualicum College Inn.

This season the Olde England Inn in Victoria and the Island Hall at Parksville will be added to the list.

While Bouchard did not have the exact count, he said the ferries also carried a record number of passengers this summer, beating 1975, the previous top tourist season.

Meanwhile, George Baldwin, operations manager, reports three of the smallest vessels in the fleet — Powell River Queen, Mayne Queen and Bowen Queen — will have their capacities increased from 50 to 70 vehicles and their engine power increased. The work will probably be done between January and May 1979.

Ferries now have the space for weddings, banquets and meetings

American Beer Slashed in Price To Clear Surplus

High-priced American beer slid down to the bargain basement today as B.C. liquor stores moved to clear a massive surplus.

The sale will see the U.S. stock marked down to $4.85 a dozen — the current price of B.C. beer.

Savings to consumers on the import beer will range from 94 cents to $2.22 per dozen.

Tex Enemark, deputy minister of consumer and corporate affairs, says the average price tag reduction is $1 a dozen, and the government plans to sell off about 2 million cases.

That means the government will miss out on about $2 million in income. But even at the reduced price the U.S. beer will still sell at a slight profit.

Enemark said the sale is being held to open up shelf space for Canadian beer now being brewed following a three-month labor dispute in the B.C. brewing industry.

Locally made beer could show up in liquor stores as early as today if the American stock moves quickly.

Enemark said beer in stock and arriving this week was ordered in mid-August when both sides in the labor dispute were pessimistic about an early settlement.

"Every indication was that the dispute would go far into — if not through — the month of September," he said.

"Under those circumstances, the LDB had no choice but to maintain inventories of U.S. beer sufficient to meet demand."

B.C. liquor stores imported nine million cans and bottles of beer during the summer and stocked 17 brands of U.S. beer.

Early in the strike a case of beer was a rarity and huge line-ups formed at B.C. liquor outlets whenever shipments arrived. The limit was usually set at two cases per customer.

But as the dispute dragged on the government incrased it imports and towards the last few weeks of August stacks of U.S. beer — with largely unheard of brand names like Falstaff, 102 and Schmidt — were backing up.

Shortly after that the strike ended and B.C. breweries — which lost an estimated $50 million in gross sales over the long, not so hot summer — began clamoring for shelf space.

The brewing industry wasn't the only section hurt by the protracted dispute.

The over-all loss to B.C.'s economy has been estimated at $40 million to $50 million.

Losses in income to the 1,000 brewery workers is estimated at about $4,000 each.

Some 3,000 other workers in pubs, hotels and restaurants were idled by the strike. No figures are available on how much it cost them in lost wages.

Enemark said the strike was expensive all around and the government hopes its import beer sale will help return things to normal quickly.

He added, however, the province has no intention of buying back U.S. beer from pubs and hotels that built up huge stockpiles to see them through the dispute.

"Many people during the strike were very greedy," said Enemark. "They purchased all they could get their hands on; far more than they needed."

Now its up to them to bail themselves out, he said.

Whether they'll follow the government's lead and offer bargains on American beer remains to be seen.

Q. I would like to get new medal ribbons for my medals from the First World War in time for the coming Armistice Day. I have six — the Mons Medal, the two general service medals, the military cross and the distinguished conduct medal, in addition to the Canadian Decoration. Could you please advise me where I can get the ribbons attached to the bar? E.B.S.

A. This can be done in the tailor's shop at CFB Esquimalt. The telephone number is 388-6428. At the moment, the shop's supply of First World War ribbons is depleted but there is more on order. It is advised you check by telephone to find out when the new shipment will be in.

The Brits Are Coming And They're Riding Free

Two teams from England will be out to prove Britain also rules the tiny waves of the Gorge on Sunday in the Great Inner Tube Race.

Four sailors from the visiting flagship cruiser HMS Blake will form two teams and paddle down the Gorge in the races which begin at 1 p.m.

Their entry fees have been paid by Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy and Saanich Ald. Fred Severson.

Racing for Mrs. McCarthy will be Knocker White, 37, and Spike Hughes, 32, while Max Bygraves, 35, and Jack Darville, 37, will race for Severson — and the glory of England. All are from Portsmouth.

Their entry was organized by Wayne Mowat of Victoria who met the sailors at a local reception.

Entries for the big race closed at noon today.

All contestants are to gather at Gorge Park, across from the Gorge Hotel, by 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

Traditionally contestants go in the parade, even if they just walk, carrying their tube. Most are able to hitch a ride on one of the many floats and other vehicles.

Only vehicles going in the parade will be allowed into the park. Other vehicles can be parked in the area of the Gorge Hotel.

Three things are done by 11:30 at Gorge Park; contestants are registered and given a team number.

The parade is organized and costumes are judged, also from 11 to 11:30 a.m. at the Gorge Park.

At noon, the parade sets off for Craigflower Bridge by crossing the Gorge at Tillicum and proceeding west on Gorge Road.

The parade disbands at Craigflower Bridge and the first of the inner tube races starts at 1 p.m.

The races end at Gorge Park where trophy presentations will begin, starting at 3 p.m. Trophies for parade winners and costumes will be given out at that time.

Important: All contestants are reminded they must check in at Gorge Park by 11:30 a.m. and receive their number. After that they may go directly to the starting line or join the parade.

Hampton Park Hustlers, who are organizing the event, will sell official Great Inner Tube Race tee shirts at Gorge Park during the day.

Kinsmen will sell hot dogs and other refreshments at half price at Gorge Park on Sunday.

Egon Mikkelsen, inner tube race concession chairman for the Kinsmen, said all receipts go to help amateur sport. Kinsmen make a donation to the community by purchasing the food supplies from their own funds.

The Esquimalt and Saanich fire departments will each have a fire truck in the parade.

Capt. Cook (Kelvin Andrew) and bathtubber Frank Ney, mayor of Nanaimo, will be in the parade.

Anyone looking for small sails for a Capt. Cook float could phone Mrs. Roy Shepherd at 385-1019. The sails were used in a previous parade and are available.

The schedule:

Saturday, 8 p.m.: The Tubers Ball, a disco dance for couples, at Victoria Curling Club.

Sunday, 11:30 a.m.: All contestants and parade entries must check in at Gorge Park by this time.

Sunday, noon: Start of the parade.

Sunday, 1 p.m.: First inner tube race starts at Craigflower Bridge.

Sunday, 3 p.m.: Trophies presented at Gorge Park.

Farmland Review Asked

A proposal that the Land Commission review all farm land in North Saanich has been made by Mayor George Westwood.

The suggestion is expected to win support from aldermen at council's Sept. 25 meeting.

The mayor said today a review of the boundaries of all lands in the Agricultural Land Reseve would increase the credibility of the ALR and clear up some of the anomalies surrounding its operations.

"There are many people who think the quality of some agricultural lands has been rated much too high," he said.

"Others feel some lands not designated as agricultural lands should have been included in the ALR."

Westwood said he made the suggestion after council discussed the case of Donald and Jacquline Wilson, 9299 Canora Road.

The land commission exempted the Wilson's 14.4 acres from the ALR after the provincial cabinet removed an adjacent 33-acre farm from the land reserve.

Now some North Saanich aldermen want the commission to reverse its decision and to place the land back in the ALR.

Say, Aren't You Joe Who?

Nobody actually said the much-maligned phrase "Joe Who?" aloud on Monday when federal Conservative leader Joe Clark visited the Saanichton fair. But there was some evidence the Tories have not entirely conquered the Joe-Who problem.

While Clark met the Esquimalt-Saanich riding executive in a fair office, a number of aides and party officials waited patiently outside. After watching for a few moments a woman approached one of them.

"Pardon me," she said, "but aren't you Joe Clark?"

Perhaps her theory was that no one other than the leader himself would be wearing a suit and tie at the fair.

Saanich police chief Bob Peterson has been appointed to a third term as director of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police.

Peterson, one of six directors on the board, is also expected to be named chairman of the association's crime prevention committee, a position he's held for the past year.

The new president of the association which held its annual meeting in Ottawa last month is Stanley Raike, deputy chief of the Peel, Ont., regional police. Vancouver's chief constable Don Winterton, was elected first vice-president.

The members of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind here have come up with a novel way of handling an old, old problem.

They've built an outdoor biffy just for dogs at their 14-unit housing complex at 950 Humboldt.

In particular the facility is for Jackson and Mitchell, seeing-eye dogs owned by Hugh McLeod and Mike Brodsky respectively.

TOWN TALK

CNIB Vancouver Island director Isabel Beveridge says workmen poured an eight-foot by six-foot concrete slab in the back of the villa, installed a fence around it, and put in a hose and faucet and a drain hole connected to the sewer system.

The big trick has been, of course, in getting the dogs to use it. Jackson caught on in a flash. Mitchell's been a bit slower on the uptake. But, says Hugh, his dog had a slight edge.

"He got to use it first," he said.

Incidentally, the residents of the Humboldt complex have a name for the facility. You guessed it. The poop deck.

When Mrs. Olive Lawson joined the staff of the Royal Jubilee Hospital as a switchboard operator she intended to stay only a few months, just long enough to earn sufficient money to do some travelling.

Shamrocks Pick Right Time to Peak

Special to The Times

PETERBOROUGH — Victoria Shamrocks are still hitting the highs and lows in their Mann Cup Canadian lacrosse final against Peterborough Red Oaks, and Thursday night, for the second straight game, they arrived at one of their peaks at the right time.

Held scoreless for a 30-minute stretch from the 8:13 mark of the second period, the Shamrocks suddenly caught fire with only one minute left to play in the third, scored two goals to tie the score and went on from there to defeat the Red Oaks, 14-11, in overtime.

It was the second straight win for the Rocks after having dropped the series opener, 12-11. On Tuesday the Rocks needed six goals in the final period to come from behind a two-goal deficit to win 14-11.

Heroes of the piece in this one were Dan Green, who played his junior lacrosse here, and Norm Baker.

Green ended the scoring drought at 19:10 of the third with the Red Oaks holding an 11-9 lead at the time, and Baker got the tying goal just 20 seconds later on a booming 30-footer.

Both goals came with goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer being pulled for an extra attacker.

Forced into overtime after seemingly having the game won, the Peterborough team sagged noticeably in the extra time.

Brian Evans, who joined the Shamrocks from Nanaimo, scored the tie-breaker just 19 seconds into extra time. Gordie Lyons, who was the fastest player on the floor by now, then scored a pair at 56 seconds and 3:56 and the Shamrocks had things more or less wrapped up.

A double penalty to Peterborough's pickup policeman, Jim Branton, for hitting Shamrocks' Chriq Hall on the head twice with less than four minutes left, sealed the Red Oaks' fate as the Rocks simply ran out the clock.

Earlier the Shamrocks had started the game the same as in the previous two games—by jumping off to a quick lead and then watching Peterborough fight back.

This time the Rocks led 3-0 by the 2:57 mark on goals by Green, Ivan Thompson and Joe McCrea. But back came the Red Oaks with J.J. Johnston scoring twice on power plays. Ron MacNeil and Green scored for the Rocks before the period ended with the Rocks holding a slim 5-4 edge.

Then the Rocks showed their best. Two men short through penalties, MacNeil scored a short-handed goal. Then MacNeil scored his third of the night. Bob Wasson replied for the Red Oaks before Ranjit Dillon and Charn Dhillon ran the count to 9-5 and the Rocks appeared home.

But then they hit one of their valleys and the Red Oaks scored six goals without a reply to set the stage for Green and Baker to pull out the tie in the final minute of regulation time.

Peterborough, which has two pickup players, Branton of Brooklin and Brian Jones of Owen Sound, applied for an additional player following Wednesday's game but the appeal was rejected. Officials felt that as the Red Oaks had won the first game, Shamrocks the second and the third was an overtime affair, the teams were evenly matched.

Peterborough, which has been relying mainly on about 10 players through the first three games, were obviously beat in the late stages of the third period and overtime. Shamrocks, meanwhile, have been using their full bench to advantage.

"Our team was playing well, but there were a lot of mental errors late in the game," said Peterborough coach Ben Floyd. "Even on the tying goal, we backed up much further than we should have. We should have been pressuring the ball carrier

"Then, in the overtime period, we didn't even have the ball. They were up two goals before we even knew it."

Green, who scored three goals and had two assists, was named the game's outstanding player.

MacNeil also had three goals and Lyons two. Singles went to Thompson, McCrea, Dillon, Dhillon, Baker and Evans.

J.J. Johnston scored three goals and Paul Evans, Bob Wasson and Tom Parnell two each for the Red Oaks. Scott McLean and Larry Ferguson got one goal apiece.

Fourth game of the series is tonight. Radio station CJVI (900) will carry a game broadcast beginning at 5:45 p.m.

Fifth game is Sunday.

Pam Cheerful, Very Talkative And Straight

PAM SHRIVER. . .the new whiz kid

NEW YORK (AP) — There's no wow-ee or gee-whiz in the manner of tennis' newest whiz kid. Sixteen-year-old Pam Shriver is cheerful, animated and very talkative, but it's straight talk.

She knows how she got to be the youngest semi-finalist ever in the U.S. Open tennis championships—with a big serve, aggressiveness and plenty of ambition.

"I have the drive. No one needs to push me ... nobody pushes me ever. If they did (she pauses to laugh), I'd tell them to take a hike," said the Lutherville, Md., teenager Thurday after beating Lesley Hunt of Australia 6-2, 6-0 to win a berth in a women's singles semi-final today against top-seeded Martina Navratilova.

While that might awe most youngsters, Shriver's attitude was gleeful, but businesslike, too.

"She doesn't have any glaring weaknesses," Shriver said of Navratilova, who won Wimbledon this year. "She is the strongest woman player. But I'll just go out there and play my game."

Maybe part of her confidence stems from the fact that she could pass for older. She is articulate and doesn't stammer or giggle in front of lots of people.

And she is six feet tall.

"I don't think much about my age all that much," she said. "Maybe not as much as other people do. I just think about trying to be No.1."

She could be well on her way. She won a Futures Circuit tournament in Columbus in the winter, made it to semi-finals of the Dallas women's tour stop before bowing to Evonne Goolagong and made it to the final of the U.S. Amateur Indoor, losing to 19-year-old Anne Smith.

At Wimbledon, she lost to England's Sue Barker in the third round.

And at the Family Circle Cup in April, she lost to Navratilova in the second round—their only previous meeting—but not before taking the more experienced players to three sets.

She told reporters Thursday not to compare her to Tracy Austin, the 15-year-old who's been playing with the big kids for more than a year now. "We're so different, it's not really right."

Austin, who lost a quarter-final match against Chris Evert Wednesday, plays a much different game—pounding away from the baseline—while Pam would prefer to run and fling volleys. Their temperaments are different, too. Tracy is quiet and sometimes short-tempered with questioning elders. Pam is comfortable with adults and eager.

Shriver is about seven months younger than Evert was when she made the Open semi-finals in 1971. She admitted that she felt a little pressured when she realized the milestone she'd reached.

But what a topping for a summer.

"School started today," she noted with a grin. "It'll be a bit of a letdown going back, but I'm looking forward to it. My school's great. They let me go whenever I want to play a tournament."

Borg, Connors Move into Semis

NEW YORK (AP) — Playing tennis against Bjorn Borg or Jimmy Connors can be a very frustrating experience.

"I hit short, long, everywhere ... and I can't beat him," Raul Ramirez said Thursday after bowing to the top-seeded Borg 6-7, 6-4, 6-4, 6-0 in the quarter-finals of the U.S. Open tennis championships.

"Is there anything tougher than playing Jimmy Connors? Maybe fighting Muhammad Ali," said Brian Gottfried, the No.6 seed who was eliminated by Connors 6-2, 7-6, 6-1 Thursday night.

The victories moved Borg and Connors into Saturday's semi-finals, where Borg will face his friend and practice partner Vitas Gerulaitis, the No.4 seed, and Connors will meet 15th-seeded John McEnroe, the brash 19-year-old.

In women's action, 16-year-old Pam Shriver, the No.16 seed, became the youngest semi-finalist in U.S. Open history with a 6-2, 6-0 victory over Australian Lesley Hunt and fourth-seeded Wendy Turnbull of Australia struggled past 15th-seeded Kathy May 3-6, 7-6, 6-3.

A crowd of 19,433, including 17,862 paid, attended Thursday night's session, a U.S. Open record and the first sellout for the new National Tennis Centre.

According to a U.S. Tennis Association spokesman, it was the largest crowd ever to watch a tournament tennis match, surpassed only by two crowds in Australia for Davis Cup matches and the crowd of 30,472 that watched Billie Jean King beat Bobby Riggs in the Houston Astrodome Sept. 20, 1973.

Ramirez, the No.8 seed, said that playing Borg creates special problems.

"I have to do a lot of thinking out there because I know I can't overpower him," said the mustachioed Mexican. "He's volleying better, his serve is stronger and it's still not easy to pass him because he's so quick. There really isn't much you can do."

Borg, who has complained about the fast artificial playing surface being used in the tourney, said he was gradually getting accustomed it.

"Still I think it might be too fast," he maintained. "I'm getting more used to it, but I'm still not comfortable."

It was Ramirez who looked uncomfortable Thursday, especially following the opening set, which he took by winning the tie-breaker 8-6. It was downhill from there.

Borg began to dominate play at the net in the second set and that turned around the match. It quickly developed into a rout, with Ramirez winning just seven games in the final set.

"I'm a little more aggressive than I used to be," said Borg, when asked to evaluate his game. "I'm feeling more confidence in my volley. I know that I can come in and win points."

The second-seeded Connors used those same serve and volley tactics to rout Gottfried. Only the second set was a contest, Connors taking it with a 7-0 score in the tie-breaker.

Connors declined to be interviewed after his match.

Gottfried, meanwhile, said he was impressed by his opponent.

"He plays with emotion" said Gottfried. "I've never seen him play a dead match. I was always under a lot of pressure. He never got mentally down, not even after I broke his serve."

Turnbull was in trouble against the 22-year-old May, a tall, willowy Californian who found the fast surface to her liking. So she changed tactics after the first set.

World Cup Team Berth For Mick

TORONTO (CP) — Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., David Mick of Victoria, Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver and Yves Tremblay of Tracy, Que., were named Thursday to represent Canada at the world amateur team golf championships in Fiji next month.

The team was announced by Jack Heywood, past president of the Royal Canadian Golf Association and chairman of the RCGA's international team selection committee.

First alternate for the team is Pierre Archambault of Candiac, Que., and second alternate is Keith Alexander of Edmonton.

RCGA president Bruce Bailey of Calgary and executive director Geordie Hilton will accompany the team.

BURNABY'S LATE BURST PROVIDES 2-1 LEAD

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Burnaby Cablevision scored nine goals in the third period for an 18-14 come-from-behind victory over Whitby, Ont. Builders in the Minto Cup Canadian junior box lacrosse championship Thursday night before 1,375 fans.

Burnaby now leads the best-of-seven series 2-1, with the fourth game scheduled here Saturday.

Whitby led 6-2 at the end of the first period and 12-9 following 40 minutes of play.

Whitby coach Jim Hinkson criticized the refereeing, but added that "if my comments are printed, I'll sue. If I say anything about the referees, they will only come down on me that much harder in the next game," he said.

Burnaby coach Dan Mattinson said he couldn't explain his team's third-period superiority. Burnaby outscored the Builders 9-2 in the final period of Thursday's game and outscored the Ontario squad 8-1 in the final frame Wednesday to win that contest.

Dan Perrault scored three goals and added two assists to lead the winners.

Woodinville Passes Series

The championship of the Northwest Fastball League apparently is in limbo.

Seattle Woodinville has declined to meet Victoria Budgets for the championship.

Budgets manager Harvey Stevenson wanted to play Woodinville for the championship this weekend here but neither Stevenson nor league president Carl Erickson have been able to convince the Seattle team it should play off for league honors.

Woodinville and Budgets tied for the first-half championship while Budgets took the second-half title with an 11-1 record.

Erickson ruled that Budgets and Woodinville should meet in a one-game playoff for first-half honors and, if Woodinville won, then there would be a best-of-three championship final in Victoria.

Woodinville, however, has indicated their season is over as they don't play after Labor Day.

Stevenson says otherwise. He charged that if Woodinville had won their regional playoff they would have been playing in the U.S. nationals this weekend. "You can't tell me they woud have passed up the nationals," he said.

Stevenson also said that Budgets offered to pick the Woodonville team up at the ferry and pay the hotel charges.

And there the matter rests. Budgets have three-quarters of a title to go with their fourth straight Canadian championship. Woodinville has the other quarter and is holding.

Mandatory use of helmets and facemasks in minor hockey leagues this year might have a dangerous effect on the players, officials said in Ottaway.

"If they are dressed as gladiators they will play like gladiators," said Dick Cordick, vice-president of the Ottawa District Hockey Association.

"The kids don't realize the danger of a high stick when they are wearing a mask and helmet," said Keith Duke, ODHA president. of the association.

And University of Toronto Blues coach Tom Watt, who runs a summer hockey school, said boys aged 7 to 13 showed "absolutely no fear."

"They fly into corners with no caution," Watt said. "Maybe we should be looking at rule changes to the game itself rather than protective equipment."

This is the first year that helmets and facemasks have been made mandatory by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for the estimated 900,000 boys and girls playing minor hockey in Canada.

And on the topic of hockey, the British Columbia Junior League will attempt to crack down on violence in 1978-79 with stiff suspensions. Vice-president Ron Liyingstone saidleague governors have decided that an automatic five-game suspension will be handed out this coming season for the first player on either team leaving the bench to join an altercation on the ice. He said the governors are prepared to boost the suspensions, if necessary.

Former Victorian Malcolm Ashford, 31, a pro hockey official for 10 years, says there was no mention of poor performance when he was released by the National Hockey League this summer.

Ashford said in Vancouver a comment by Scotty Morrison, referee-in-chief of the NHL, that his performance was "just of mediocre calibre" was contrary to what he had been told by Morrison.

"I know that my work last year was rated by the league higher than some of the linesmen they've retained," said Ashford. "When I was informed by letter that I was being let go because of economic cutbacks, there was no mention of poor performance."

Parrish Bolts Lions Den

Times News Services

A second year National Football League veteran, slated to start at defensive right end for the B.C. Lions Saturday against Saskatchewan Roughriders, surprised team officials Thursday when he walked out without a word and flew to Kansas City, apparently intending to play in the National Football League.

Head coach Vic Rapp said Don Parrish had been the likely replacement for injured rookie Drew Taylor who is out for the rest of the season with torn knee ligaments.

Parrish has signed a two-year contract with the Lions and general manager Booby Ackles said that his team has legal rights to the player.

"This is all kind of strange," said Ackles. "I would think we're going to have all kinds of troubles now and get involved in a legal hassle."

Ackles said that Parrish's contract was en route to Commissioner Jake Gaudaur's office, and that the Commissioner has been advised of the situation.

Ackles said he doesn't foresee any problems with the NFL, because he says they will honor a CFL contract.

Parrish, from the Atlanta Falcons, arrived in the city last weekend to begin a five-day trial period with the Lions.

Meanwhile, Edmonton Eskimos still dominate the Western Conference as they prepare to meet Hamilton Tiger Cats on home turf Sunday with both of their offensive coaches out of action because of heart attacks.

Joe Faragalli now is recuperating after suffering a heart attack Aug. 23 during a home game against Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Cal Murphy suffered a heart attack at his home Wednesday night.

The Edmonton-Hamilton game, which starts at 4:30 p.m. EDT and which will be televised on CBC West, interlocks with a second game, beginning at 2 p.m. and televised on CBC East in which Toronto Argonauts entertain Montreal Alouettes.

On Saturday, Winnipeg Blue Bombers visit Ottawa Rough Riders for a game which begins at 2 p.m. EDT and which will be televised nationally on CTV.

Grier Enjoying Leisurely Pace And His Brood

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Grier Jones is playing less and enjoying it more.

Jones held a one-stroke advantage six rivals today after shooting a five-under-par 65 Thursday in the opening round of the $175,000 Southern Open golf tournament at the 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club.

"I haven't played a lot this year, but when I have, I've played well," said the 32-year-old Jones, a tour veteran who has earned almost $72,000 this year including a second-place finish in the Jackie Gleason-Inverrary tournament.

Jones, who has played in only 18 tournaments this year, said he cut back his schedule to be with his children.

"I took most of the summer off to be with my kids," said Jones. "They're getting older and I might never get to know them if I didn't. I really enjoyed myself, and while I was there helped coach a baseball team of 10-year-olds," said Jones.

The winner of three PGA events during his career, Jones opened quickly, carving out three birdies on the first four holes and finished his round with six birds and one bogey.

Fifty-seven of the field of 150 golfers matched or bettered par with six players at 66, including Lanny Wadkins, the 1977 PGA and World Series of Golf champion, and unknowns Barney Thompson, Rocky Thompson, Rex Caldwell, Phil Hancock, Gary Ostrega and Ron Streck.

Yankees' Aggressiveness Puts Pressure On Boston

By The Associated Press

A 15-3 shellacking of Boston Red Sox caused different reactions from New York Yankee players Thursday. Whatever their opinions, however, one thing is crystal clear—New York is just three games back of first-place Boston in the American League East and coming fast.

"We wanted to get at them right away," said Willie Randolph, who helped by knocking in five runs, three on a bases-loaded double in a five-run fourth. The Yankees scored twice in the first, three times in the second, two more runs in the third and made it 12-0 in the fourth.

"We wanted to be aggressive, put the pressure on them and keep it on."

Obviously, they did just that.

Mickey Rivers thought the victory was just the start of big things for New York, which once trailed Boston by 14 games, but now is as close to first place as it's been since June 1.

"We want to think big and sweep this series," said Rivers. "Win all the games, that's what I want ... get serious with them."

Reggie Jackson, who was in a hospital earlier this week with a virus, drove in the first run for New York with a single. He spoke seriously of the Yankees chances of catching Boston.

"I'd still rather be three games ahead," noted Jackson. "When we were 14 games behind it looked tough and most of us asked if it was possible to catch them. But you have to go to the ball park, put on the uniform and play the games.

"They started to lose and here we are. There's still a lot of baseball to be played."

Elsewhere in the AL, Toronto edged Milwaukee 5-4, Seattle beat Chicago 5-3 and California nipped Texas 7-6.

The Yankees built their big lead with three hits apiece by Roy White, Thurman Munson and Randolph, who also had a two-run single. They knocked out former teammate Mike Torrez in the second and continued on their way to a 21-hit assault by shelling relievers Andy Hassler, Dick Drago and Bill Campbell.

New York received two scares in the game. Catfish Hunter, who started, had to leave in the fourth with a groin pull after Carl Yastrzemski tripled. Ken Clay came on, surrendered a homer to Carlton Fisk and then held Boston to one unearned run the rest of the way.

Munson was beaned on the forehead by a Drago pitch in the sixth. He did not lose consciousness and walked off the field by himself.

The Yankees expect the catcher back in the lineup tonight.

Rag-haulers and stink-potters alike will be heading for Vancouver between now and Sept. 17 to take in the Vancouver Boat Show, to be held at the Bayshore Inn Marina, at the foot of Cardero Street.

Dockside 78 will have more than 100 boats and displays and runs from noon to 7:30 p.m. every day, starting Saturday through to Sept. 17.

Too rich for the blood of most of us, the pleasure cruiser Two Rivers Too, designed and custom-built for Calgarian Ken Paget by North Vancouver designer Enno Lepnurn will be up for sale with a $385,000 price tag.

She's bound to get a lot of attention if few bidders. Enno admits she's a millionaire's toy.

The Pagets are selling her beause of sickness in the family and Enno says it would cost close to $600,000 to build Two Rivers Too today.

Designed for long-range cruising, the 60-foot boat has less than 600 hours on the engines. Safety features include inflatable liferafts, an automatic fire extinguishing system, two dinghies, extra batteries and battery chargers and, believe it or not, a burglar alarm.

Show admission is $3 for adults and $1 for senior citizens and children between five and 15.

There'll be plenty of racing activity in this area on the weekend, the major event being the annual Thermopylae Race on Sunday. The 16.75-mile race starts in the Clover Point area at 10 a.m. and the off-Victoria course should provide some good onshore watching, especially when the boats pop their spinnakers.

The invitational event is organized by the Royal Victoria Yacht Club and skippers should register their boats before 4 p.m. Saturday in the RVYC clubhouse on Ripon Road.

The boats will race in four divisions, all using Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet ratings.

RVYC will have its last around-Discovery Island race of the season on Saturday, starting at 1 p.m. As usual, it will be on a reverse handicap system with, hopefully, most of the fleet finishing together.

The crews of the visiting Royal Navy ships have accepted a challenge from the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, to race in the squadron's 420s on Saturday.

Things get under way at 11 a.m.

On Sunday there will be series racing for all the squadron's dinghy sailors, starting at 1 p.m.

Canadian six-metre crews won all the silverware last weekend when RVYC hosted a regatta at Cadboro Bay, the first time Canadians have won in team racing against our American competition since 1960.

Racing on the Canadian team were John Davies' Llanoria, Kim Olsen's Toogooloowoo IV, Paul Longridge's Saga, all of RVYC, and Kirk Palmer's Buzzy III of the Maple Bay Yacht Club.

In individual series racing the overall winner was Toogooloowoo IV. After her came two Seattle boats —Joe Golberg's Pacemaker and Pat Goodfellow's Ylliam VIII. Next came Llanoria, Scott Rohrer's Razzle Dazzle of Seattle, Buzzy III, Rory Morahan's Starwagon and Saga.

The Victoria Catalina 27 fleet also had a regatta at Cadboro Bay on the weekend. In Division A for boats flying spinnakers it was Doug Ross' Amica, followed by Phillip Sumsion's Aqua Sulis, Ron Jewula's Beowulf, Geoff Buck's Buckshot, Reg Skaret's Gajia, Jack Trueman's L'Chaiim, Dan Syroid's Opo, Gary Jacobi's Salty Dream, Gordon Cooper's Toy Box and John Ciceri'a Volare.

Ken Robertson's B.C. was first of the boats racing without spinnakers. After her came Wayne and Judy Dunsmuir's Hey Jude, L. Townsend's Maggie Ann, Bill Mottram's Maple Sea, Graham Morgan's Sea Pointer, Terry Stamper's Silver Cloud, Bill Sargent's Southern Comfort, Tom Hawker's West Wind and Sheila Snow's Wolf Dancer.

Mark Dickinson, former Times reporter, is back in Victoria after serving 10 years with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Mark, along with his brother Alan, will run the Van-Isle Marina for their parents, who are off on another bluewater cruise. Steve and Esther Dickinson will be enjoying treks to Chile, the Easter Islands and points in the south Pacific aboard their ketch Kapduva.

SHORT TACKS — There's a film showing at the McPherson Playhouse on Tuesday that's bound to attract a lot of sailors — and landlubbers, too, for that matter. . .Called Alaskan Summer Under Sail it was filmed by Donn Murray, who left his job as an armed forces pilot to sail the seven seas. . .The 1½-hour show is based on 3½ months at sea in Walt Poitevent's 32-foot cutter Ella. . .Rounding out the crew was Barb Bemis, who is now studying classical violin in California. . .The film, which starts at 8 p.m., has beautiful shots of Hawaii, the Aleutians, Bering Sea, Pribilofs, Shumagins, Kodiak, Icy Bay, Glacier Bay, Inside Passage and, finally, Seattle. . .Prices are $4 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens.

B.C. DERBY HONORS TO ISLAND ANGLER

Bill Sloan of Campbell River is the winner of this year's B.C. Salmon Derby.

Sloan, who caught a 60-pound, four-ounce Tyee on Aug. 16 at Campbell River, will receive 50 per cent of all entry fees and the top trophy at the awards ceremony to be held at Vancouver on Sept. 22.

Other leaders were Norm Lee, Campbell River, 47 pounds; Alex Imlach, Campbell River, 41.08; Mary Murphy, Campbell River, 32.06; Mary Murphy, 29; Bob Thompson, Campbell River, 27.08; Imlach, 25.12; Toshio Shino, Tokyo, 21.08, and Jeri Konkin of North Vancouver, 14.08.

Ralph Wiley of Campbell River topped the coho division with a catch of 11.10 while Dik Waterfall of New Westminster was second with 9.02.

Kono Loses Again

KOBLENZ, West Germany (Reuter) — Kenyan track star Henry Rono was beaten for the second time in two days at a track and field meeting Thursday.

European champion Branislav Malinovski of Poland finished two seconds ahead of him in the 3,000-metres steeplechase with a time of eight minutes 15.5 seconds.

YEAR ROUND SWIMMING COMFORT

Each Classic Airdome is made and available in your choice of clear or a variety of colours for walls and ceiling. It can be designed to accommodate unusual pool shapes, incorporate diving boards, slides and patio furniture. The fact that the Classic Airdome is MANUFACTURED AND SERVICED LOCALLY assures you of reliable after-sales service without international shipping or customs delays. A ONE YEAR WARRANTY accompanies each quality crafted Classic Airdome.

Family interest is rekindled after it had diminished from years of intermittent or uncomfortable swimming weather. The excellent health and fitness benefits of swimming, to your family, are dependent on the REGULAR USE of your pool all year.

Entrances are provided by six foot tall heavy duty, corrosion proof nylon zippers in nylon reinforced vinyl panels. The Classic Airdome filters out leaves, dirt and debris. You no longer need pool maintenance service or automatic pool cleaners.

EXTEND your swimming season . . . and look at the SAVINGS!

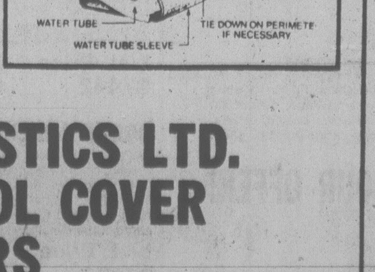
Step into always perfect, year round weather UNDER THE DOME. A tough, flexible protective envelope of insulating vinyl absorbs SOLAR ENERGY while trapping and conserving pool heat to create a warm, windless indoor environment. This warm blanket of self contained atmosphere eliminates chill factor and drastically reduces heat evaporation loss.

The dome needs no framework. Water tubes inside the base sleeve act as both anchor and airseal. Low pressure inflation support is provided by a compact blower unit. It quietly directs just enough air using only as much power as your porch light.

	WITHOUT DOME (Cost per month)	WITH DOME (Cost per month)	SAVINGS
GAS HEATING	$54.00	$18.00	$36.00
CHEMICALS	9.50	1.04	8.46
			Total $44.46

These figures, obtained from utility and chemical distribution companies, are averages throughout the various areas of North America. They will vary because of climate and other conditions.

SECTIONAL VIEW



Other Airdomes chafe and wear against the concrete decking. Classic Airdomes have an outer buffer sleeve of tough "canvas-like" nylon mesh material covered in vinyl. This heavy duty sleeve withstands abrasion and protects the inner water tubes. The 8 foot long tubes are 30 inches in circumference providing an excellent airseal and anchor. The tough outer sleeve has separate welds for the sidewall and for the anchor hem to ensure that wind stress is distributed. The 20 mil material for walls and ceiling is specially formulated for our climate incorporating ultra violet inhibitors and cold crack plasticizers to keep the vinyl soft and pliable. Willard Connects For Tennis Triple

Fourteen-year-old Dale Willard picked off three titles while Elizabeth Ellis emerged as a double winner in the second annual Victoria City junior tennis championships.

Willard defeated Chris Smith in the boys' 14-and-under singles final and then moved up in class to beat Colin Ayers in the under-16 final. Willard then teamed up with Mark Howe to defeat Paul Buck and Gerald Young in the 14-and-under doubles final.

Ellis beat Tamsin Allen in the 18-and-under girls' singles final, then partnered Alix Liersch to a victory in the doubles, defeating Allen and Patryce Walther.

Heather Langlois and Sue Theriault were selected as winners of the tournament's sportsmanship award.

Boys 18 Singles: Colin Ayers defeated Jamie Wood.

Girls 16 Singles: Tamsin Allen defeated Kelly Davies.

Girls 14 Singles: Davies defeated Amanda Levey.

Girls 12 Singles: Heather Langlois defeated Gina Aldeguer.

Mixed Doubles: Jamie Wood and Alix Liersch defeated Gerald Young and Kelly Davies.

New Threat For Caudwell

Larry Pollard is still there but Orton Kerr is presenting Jim Caudwell with a second "problem" in the race for Vancouver Island super-stock driving honors.

Caudwell continues to lead with 926 and the always-present Pollard continues to hold second place with 726. But the hot hand, and car, belongs to Kerr as the 1978 campaign heads into its final weeks.

Kerr has won the last four main events with his '74 Camaro and has become a definite threat.

All three will be out to reap points in a combined stock and super-stock program at Western Speedway Saturday night. After this weekend's program, the drivers will have two races remaining — at Nanaimo's Grandview Bowl Sept. 24 and at Western Speedway Sept. 30.

Both of the final two races will pay double points.

Gord Stone is solidly entrenched in first place in the stock car division but Dave Morris, Al Miller and Pat Phillips are waging a hot duel for runnerup honors.

Driver standings:

SUPER-STOCKS

Jim Caudwell	926
Larry Pollard	726
Orton Ker	713
Gary Bemister	558
Ron Fleet	428

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal we have a good example of "card reading" — drawing the correct inferences about the nature of an opponent's holding and/or distribution, said inferences being obtained from either the bidding, the play, or both. The hand came up in a national championship event a few years ago.

East-West vulnerable.
West deals.

♡ A Q 8

WEST

◇ J 10 6 3

SOUTH
♠ A Q J 2
♡ J 10 5
◇ 9 5 4 2
♣ J 4

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	Pass	Pass	1 ♠
2 ♣	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ◇.

Had the game been rubber bridge, North would have made a takeout double over West's one-diamond opening bid. But in duplicate bridge, a deal is seldom passed out at the one level. So North felt that even if East passed his partner's opening bid, South would make every effort to re-open the bidding. And South came through as hoped for.

On West's opening lead of the queen of diamonds, East dropped the jack. At trick two, West shifted to a low heart, the eight was played from dummy, and East captured the trick with his king. To trick three East led a trump. South promptly put up the ace, spurning the finesse. He was rewarded when West's king fell.

The jack of clubs came next, covered by West's king, and taken by North's ace. The queen of clubs was then cashed, and this was followed by the ruffing of a third club with South's jack of spades. A heart was now led to the board's queen, and dummy's remaining club was ruffed with the queen of trumps.

South's deuce of trumps came next, and dummy's nine and ten picked up East's two remaining trumps. Thus he made an overtrick for an excellent score on the deal: 24 out of 27 match points (his score was better than that of 24 out of the 28 North-South pairs who played the deal).

How come our South declarer spurned the trump finesse and felled West's king? To the expert, it was a simple matter. East had passed West's opening bid, and East had been revealed as the possessor of the king of hearts and jack of diamonds. Thus East could not have had the king of trumps, for if he did he would have made some response with seven high-card points.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, September 9
by Sydney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Reach out for improvement, expansion, completion of project. Travel and love are in picture. Accent on learning, publishing, finding out how to best arrive at destination. Libra and another Aries figure in your personal scenario.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message. You can cut financial burden by "talking it over" with partner, mate. Some investment procedures require revision. Someone, in striving to be important, has wrapped unnecessary cloud of mystery around methodology. Do something to purify the air.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on new approach to affairs of heart. Emotion impulsiveness — these grab center stage. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. You make marvelous, new contact. Key is to permit relationship to grow. Means don't make demands, avoid rushing, chiding, pushing. Key now is to be throughly familiar with material at hand, including legal prospects, rights and permission.

CANCER (June 21-July22): Follow through on hunch. Teach, learn, fight good battle against red tape. Aquarius, Cancer, Capricorn individuals figure prominently. You can improve work and health conditions. It is a matter of getting desires on paper — in writing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Social life accelerates; emotions tend to dominate. Be ready for change, travel, creative endeavors which bring you in contact with exciting people. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure in scenario — and so does the number 3. You'll see!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Specifics dominate — means this is time to outline plans, prepare format, put concept in working order. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons figure prominently. Build for security. Stress income potential rather than intrigue. Get the facts!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct.22): Accent on trips, calls, surprise visit — or discovery. Imprint your own style, implement policy. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. You are relieved of "foolish" burden. Don't look gift horse in mouth!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Money, home improvement, reconciliation of differences with family — these are spotlighted. Taurus, Libra — and another Scorpio — play key roles — and so does the number 6. Financial picture is clarified.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take lead, be a self-starter, perfect methods, techniques. Accent on independence, romance, creativity, learning difference between desire and necessity. Cycle is such that you land on your feet, despite odds against you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Obtain hint from Sagittarius message. Accent is on mystery, glamour, activity behind the scenes. Cancer, Capricorn persons figure prominently. Organize, bring priorities into focus. Member of opposite sex means business.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on optimism, getting recognition, having spotlight on you — and being able to make the most of it. Be gregarious, meet people, listen to various plans. Keep an open mind without being gullible. A wish will come true!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Break through to heart of matters. Refuse to be restricted by timidity. Highlight originality, self-expression. Let loved one know you do care — and do something to prove it. Leo, Aquarius individuals figure prominently. You are due for significant advance.

IF SEPTEMBER 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you understand audience appeal. You could sway a jury, instill confidence in persons with physical or emotional problems. Aries, Libra persons play important roles in your life. You reach people on many levels. October could be your "power" month of 1978, a year which has featured realignment of priorities, getting back on your feet financially and emotionally, adjusting to a changed personal situation.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"That's nothing for Aunt Emily. She's one tough dame," said Ken. "Do you know how old she was when she had her first solo flight in a glider?"

Glen shook his head. "That too! But how old?"

"You figure it out," Ken replied. "Reverse the order of its digits and halve what you get. Then reverse that half, and the result will be five more than the reverse of what her age was."

How old?

Tape Session Grinds Ahead

Jurors spent nearly four hours listening to wiretap recordings in county court Thursday, the third day of an drug conspiracy trial expected to run into next week.

With breaks for lunch and two short rests, tape recordings entered by the Crown filled three and three-quarter hours of court time added to an hour and 40 minutes of playback on Wednesday.

The tapes are entered as evidence in a joint charge of conspiracy to traffic in the narcotic cannabis resin between July 15, 1975, and Jan. 6, 1976, to which James William Buckner and Russell Tschritter have pleaded not guilty.

Buckner also is charged with possession of the drug.

In earlier evidence, Crown witnesses told of placing telephone bugs on special lines attached to subscriber's telephones through B.C. Telephone Co. exchanges. The lines terminated in RCMP and Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit offices where automatic switching and recording equipment was placed.

Following Thursday's sitting Crown counsel Gordon MacDonald indicated further taped conversations would be played to the jury today, to be followed by additional evidence by witnesses.

He said a copy of indexed, typewritten transcipts made from master tapes would be available to the mostly female jury to enable them to read specific conversations. The jury selected at the opening of the trial on Tuesday consists of six women and three men.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 22-year-old man charged with throwing a molotov cocktail firebomb at a vehicle Aug. 26 elected trial by judge and jury and had a preliminary hearing set in provincial court Thursday.

Arthur James Moffit, 1346 Balmoral, appeared before Judge Harold Alder and was remanded until Feb. 14.

Moffit was represented by lawyer Derek Brindle and was remanded until next week to report to the forensic psychiatric unit of Eric Martin Institute.

Two men were charged with the attempted theft Sunday of an auto from Speedway Motors, 971 Yates, and possession of stolen licence plates.

Charged were David Michael Henderson, 24, no fixed address, and Christopher William Howard, 31, of 121 Rendall.

Henderson, represented by Brindle, was remanded to Friday for bail hearing and election of trial method while Howard, represented by Scott Marshall, was released on his own recognizance in the sum of $500 and remanded to next Thursday for election.

Two 20-year-olds, John Malcolm Stobbart, 2650 Tsawout in Sidney, and Eugene Prescott, 537 Burnside, were charged with theft of a boat from Smitty's Marina Ltd, on Aug. 20.

Both were remanded to next Thursday for election.

An 18-year-old who shouted "I hate you pigs" to Sidney RCMP on Aug. 13 was fined $50.

Joseph Jacob Vandyk, 10366 Patricia Place, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by shouting.

Crown counsel Richard Law told the court police officers went to the Vandyk residence at the request of Vandyk's mother. As the officers were talking to her, Vandyk approached and began yelling, forcing police and Vandyk's mother to move to the police car to finish their conversation.

Vandyk told Alder he thought the police were meddling.

Fined for drinking driving were: Herbert Alexander Richard Mills, 56, of 2137 Wheeler, $500; David Michael Edwards, 28, of 634 Humboldt, $500; and Barbara Planes, 48, of Whiffin Spit Road, $100.

In addition, Mrs. Planes was fined another $100 for refusing a breath test demand made by Colwood RCMP, placed on one year's probation, ordered not to drink or drive until the fines were paid, and ordered to perform 100 hours of community service work.

The light fines and community service work were imposed after Alder was told the woman was the mother of 13 children and on welfare.

Closure Ordered On Duncan Rivers

The lower reaches of the Cowichan and Koksilah rivers went off-limits to all anglers except fly fishermen at midnight Thursday.

Federal fisheries officer Gord McEachen of Duncan said the sports fishing closure is downstream from the Trans-Canada Highway bridges to Tzouhalem Road.

Upstream from the highway bridges is still open.

McEachen said the limited closure of the lower portions is designed to protect spawning chinook salmon which are beginning to enter the system.

Last month a closure was placed on Cowichan Bay to protect chinook salmon milling at the river mouths.

McEachen said fly fishing is still allowed because the big salmon do not normally respond to flies.

He said fly fishermen, however, could catch jack springs, immature chinook salmon, that are prematurely running up the river.

The federal department of fisheries is involved in an intensive effort to enhance the badly depleted chinook populations in the Cowichan and Koksilah rivers.

New Director For Curriculum

Dr. Jerry Mussio, 34, has been appointed director of curriculum development for the public school system, Education Minister Pat McGeer said Thursday.

He said Mussio, former director of the ministry's learning assessment branch, succeeds Bruce Naylor who became head of the correspondence education branch following the retiremenet of Ross Hind.

Blood Bank Level Scary - Red Cross

Supplies from blood donor clinics in Victoria next week are needed to avert a crisis at the B.C. blood bank, a Red Cross official in Vancouver said Thursday.

Florence Edwards, director of blood donor recruitment, said the provincial stockpile has been wiped out and "we have cut back drastically on supplies to every hospital".

Edwards said there will be enough blood to supply hospitals for the weekend but after that it will be up to the Victoria clinics.

"We're looking to Victoria otherwise we don't have any hope — our big team will be there next week — we've got to get this blood bank up. It's very, very scary," she said.

She said at least 3,500 pints are needed weekly. During the last week in August only 2,319 pints were donated.

Arthur Eaton, chief technologist at Victoria General Hospital, said the hospital hasn't yet had to cut back on services because of lack of blood but has been warned the chances of getting a full supply are not good.

Dr. Ray LeHuquet, medical administrator of Royal Jubilee Hospital, said the hospital has been getting two-thirds of its normal supply during the last week.

He said, however, some elective surgery has been postponed recently and this has alleviated the problem. The surgery was postponed because so many beds are taken up by chronic care patients that people waiting for surgery cannot get into the hospital.

Meanwhile, the Kinsmen Club of Victoria has donated a color television set to the blood donor service to allow donors to watch their favorite sports and donate at the same time. Red Cross officials have felt televised football games are keeping people away from the clinics.

Garry Savage, clinic co-ordinator, said June clinics in Victoria fell 500 short, in July they were 195 short, and in August, 210.

Clinics will be held 2:30 to 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort.

On Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. a clinic will be held at the Interurban campus of Camosun College at 461 Interurban Road.

Sooke Lions will sponsor a clinic on Thursday, Sept. 14, in the Sooke Community Hall from 3 to 8 p.m.

The council anteroom of Victoria City Hall will be used for a clinic on Friday, Sept. 15 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Now There's Spot for Dad In Delivery Room Lineup

By CAROL SPELLER
Times Staff

Daddy makes three these days in the delivery room.

There was a time when hospital rules banned him from that mysterious inner sanctum where babies appeared.

It's just one more change in society's readjustment to the miracle of birth.

Couples are now attending any number of prenatal courses in preparation for the new member of the family.

Husbands are actively taking part, abandoning the attitude that childbirth is all women's work.

The more popular prenatal classes are offered by the Capital Regional District, Victoria General Hospital, Victoria Lamaze Childbirth Education Association and the YM-YWCA.

The Lamaze method of childbirth has been around Victoria about five or six years but the association was formed just last year.

Lamaze concentrates mainly on labor, and women take the course during the last eight to 10 weeks of pregnancy.

Taught by six registered nurses, the Lamaze course consists of seven classes and a hospital tour for $35 a couple.

A breathing and relaxation technique is taught with the goal of a self-controlled and anxiety-free childbirth.

Instructor Frances McLeod says childbirth is a "very exhilarating experience and we want to educate ladies so they don't react with fear."

A conditioning effect is developed, based on principles similar to that of Pavlov's dog.

The technique is practised repeatedly, designed to make perception of pain secondary.

The instructor compares the first contractions to severe menstrual cramps.

By breathing in a controlled way, she says unnecessary tension can be avoided.

Tension only causes more pain.

"A well-trained or conditioned woman should need little or no medication, but one must take into account the tolerance of pain and self-discipline in regard to regular practising."

The Lamaze method was developed in Russian hospitals and introduced to France in 1951 by Dr. Fernand Lamaze.

As with anything new, it was highly controversial, more than likely because of the country in which it originated.

McLeod says the moms-to-be are prepared realistically so they understand what they're working with and have a positive attitude.

About 14 per cent of births in Victoria are Lamaze births.

Joan Mumby is prenatal co-ordinator for the Capital Regional District.

She spent five years as a midwife in England and has taught prenatal classes for 22 years.

After guiding about 6,000 women through their pregnancies, she still bubbles with enthusiasm when talking about the classes.

Mumby stresses that everyone is welcome — "with a husband, coach or alone."

The CRD offers six two-hour classes for $10 a couple.

Parents-to-be are encouraged to register as early in pregnancy as possible for the two early-bird classes where they are told about the physical and emotional changes, care and nutrition.

"Sudden fatigue and mood swings take place in all women. You don't get tired gradually, but all of a sudden and you're emotionally out of kilter."

Then there are the little aches and pains, blotchy pigmentation and bleeding gums which are normal but not everybody gets.

Smoking and drinking are "no-nos," she says.

"We tell them to try to be healthy."

About the seventh month of pregnancy, the group returns for the remainder of the classes.

For the labor and childbirth class, students are told exactly what happens and how husbands can help.

They are also taught a relaxation and breathing technique similar to the Lamaze method.

For the newborn class, Mumby says: "We have enough dolls for every couple and sometimes have a live baby."

Joan Mumbie advises Glynda Bunn

Importance is placed on how to hold the baby because improper handling can make the infant feel insecure.

Joan says more people are breastfeeding than a few years ago and adds "thank goodness."

Anticipatory guidance is given during the postnatal period class.

If postnatal depression occurs, it will usually happen about the third day after birth.

Mumby says there is a hormonal change, exhaustion, women begin to realize the responsibility and the fact that their lives will never be the same.

"Women need a lot of moral support at this time from their husbands, especially for girls who have had interesting jobs.

"They need every chance to go out."

She praises hospitals in the Capital Region, saying they're "terrific and the hospital tour is a highlight of the course."

Every Thursday morning at 9 and 10 there is a class for women who are within six weeks of delivery.

There is a discussion of topics the classs brings up and a rehearsal of labor done to music.

Prenatal classes at Victoria General Hospital are taught by two registered nurses for $10 a couple.

There are eight two-hour classes and a hospital tour.

Instructor Jan Greenwood says nutrition is "very, very important" and early registration is encouraged for that class.

Subjects covered include: a history and philosophy of childbirth education, anatomy, fetal development, physical changes, labor and delivery, breastfeeding, care of the newborn, preparation for and adapting to parenthood.

Greenwood says extra time is spent with single women and instructors give advice on financial help.

She says things are a lot different than a few years ago when mothers went to the hospital, were knocked out and the baby was born.

The VGH classes also use a modified version of Lamaze.

Regular exercise like swimming and walking is suggested to "tone them up."

Greenwood says a woman who is physically fit will have an easier time.

Sharing activities with the husband is encouraged and a family-centred approach is used.

The classes on preparing for and adapting to parenthood open up a lot of discussion.

CHILDBIRTH without tears, or how to cope in the delivery room so mom, dad, and the little one all survive without too many traumas, is the goal of these prenatal classes.

They talk about their biggest worry during and after pregnancy.

"There's a lot of worry about what's happening with the baby and many women are struggling with the question 'will I go back to work?'

"They learn that their worries just aren't their own and they learn from each other."

The provincial ministry of human resources is organizing prenatal classes designed to meet the special needs of single girls.

Janet Wilson, a social worker for the ministry, says available prenatal classes are "just great and they do a terrific job, but some girls feel uncomfortable in couple-oriented classes.

"They feel 'Gee, she's got a husband or a boyfriend and I don't.'

"We want to create a setting where they will be most comfortable."

Janet hopes the program will be under way by mid or late September.

The YM-YWCA has a variety of programs for expectant parents.

A program of exercises for expectant mothers is taught by four physiotherapists; there is a course in the Lamaze method of childbirth; prenatal yoga classes taught by a registered nurse; a postnatal program and a positive parenting program involving discussion.

your health

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

The unpleasant memories of anesthesia during childhood are never entirely erased. Many adults vividly recall the terrorizing effects of their first hospital experience and are particularly terrified by the recall of their anesthesia.

In almost all instances, the ether anesthesia is recalled and plays havoc with the emotions if another operation is contemplated. Many people, in fact, deliberately delay an elective operation because they still remember with horror their first association with ether.

The science of anesthesiology has remarkably progressed during the past 25 years. Ether, an excellent anesthetic, has now been replaced by a number of drugs that have little or none of the after-effects commonly associated with ether. There is no odor and the post-operative nausea is markedly diminished.

Today's anesthesiologists have expanded the horizon of their specialty. Particularly, they have a greater awareness of all the psychological factors involved before and after surgery. Their support of the patient, coupled with the more delicate use of better and safer anesthetics, should eliminate the anxiety of those for whom surgery is being planned.

The safety of modern anesthesia is, indeed, a testimonial to the scientific research that has made this possible.

Recently, a patient with arthritis sold his home and gave up his business to move to a climate said to be ideal for arthritis sufferers. Unfortunately, the move was not followed by the benefits that were anticipated.

The total upheaval of the family and his business structure could have been avoided. Patients with asthma or arthritis often precipitously and impulsively pull up stakes and move to another climate without doing the sensible thing of testing it first. The disappointment that follows inevitably imposes both physical and emotional hardships.

Climate, obviously, is not the total answer to a problem that is as complex as arthritis. Yet it undoubtedly is true that sufferers of some forms of arthritis are made distinctly more comfortable in warm, dry areas. I have always suggested that before anyone embarks on a move to a far-distant area, they go there, live there for a time, and carefully evaluate the advantages that particular climate offers.

Adolescents, and even small children, must be allowed the luxury of expressing their feelings of temporary depression or "blues". Even so-called privileged children who "have all the advantages" run into episodes of emotional distress. They, too, have their conflicts, jealousies, insecurities, sibling rivalries, and peer pressures.

It is really hard for youngsters to grow up in this complicated age. Urging them to express their inner feelings without shame or embarrassment is a special contribution to their emotional health.

Bed-and-Breakfast in U.K. Includes Warm Hospitality

By LUCY IZON

Youth on the Move

By LUCY IZON

One of the most pleasant aspects of travelling anywhere in Britain is the wonderfully warm hospitality you receive at bed-and-breakfast establishments. In almost any town it's possible to have a night's accommodation plus a full breakfast of eggs, juice, toast, cereal, jams, sausage, tomato and tea for as little as $7 per person.

If you can afford to try a few while you're travelling through some of the smaller towns, not only will it give you a chance to spend some time in local homes, the proprietors are usually an endless source of information on what to do and see in the local area.

Many are proud of their history and with surprisingly little persuasion you're bound to hear the background of the area. But don't count on it being the same as your school textbook. Somehow you wind up feeling you've just stumbled onto a private gossip session and caught the true stories right from the source.

Although the hospitality can change and differ with the size of the home and personality of the owners, I decided when I arrived in Inverness late one evening after the youth hostel had closed to try one. After a long cold trip from Edinburgh there was nothing more welcome than arriving in a warm parlor at 11 p.m. and finding that evening tea was just being served. While warming myself by the fire, the two other house guests, from Holland, planned their excursions for the next day. Our hosts, the Sutherlands, brought out their maps, and with their expertise shortly set up an itinerary.

When they turned to me and asked what I planned to visit in the area, like many a North American tourist I admitted a curiosity about Loch Ness. I already knew that a local bus travelled down past the loch each day on its way to Fort William. However, that plan was abandoned when Alex Sutherland suggested I travel with him.

It turned out he worked for the local government and each day over a two-week period he would follow a different route through the highlands to check on the well-being of the senior citizens living in the more remote areas. The next day's route included a trip up the side of Loch Ness in the early afternoon.

Our route along the backroads, where I was the gate-opener, turned out to be one of the most interesting and enjoyable days in Scotland. How can you beat good food, warm hospitality and a private tour of the beaten track, all for $7?

If you're planning on restricting your holiday to Scotland and to move about a good deal a travel pass is an ideal purchase. There isn't any special youth rate involved here but you can get a pass that will allow you to use the trains, buses and ferrys of Scotland for a 10-day period for $73. The date you start and finish your 10-day period is determined by when you first use it. In other words, you don't have to make specific plans as to when you intend to start travelling just as long as you start at a point where they can stamp it when you begin. The points are: the British rail stations in Edinburgh, Glasgow (Central and Queen) and at Duncan Duffy Travel Agents in Oban, Argyll, Fort William, Lochaber, and Inverness.

To help make your trip a little easier you should obtain a public transportation map plus a timetable of all public transport services. Request them when you are having your pass validated.

The travel pass can be arranged through most travel agents, however, if you do have any problems or want more specific information, you can contact Britrail in Canada at 55 Eglinton Ave. E., Toronto M4P 1G8.

Camping is still one of the cheapest ways of seeing the country whether you're staying in a farmer's field (with his permission) or at a regular site for about $2 a night. If it's your first trip, you should go prepared with plenty of warm clothing.

Days can be warm and pleasant but when the damp air moves in a fine rain can leave you with a good chill if you're not prepared for it.

Those who would like to try camping will find most sites include washrooms and shower facilities in the fee. A list of over 300 sites is now available through the tourist board for $1.50. However, you'll find local offices will direct you when you arrive in a new area. The more adventurous can even approach the local landowner to see if he will let you stay on his property for a small charge.

A Big Year for Wynne Shaw

Wynne Shaw, with former pupil and star Sheila Mackinnon

elizabeth forbes

This has been a year of exciting surprises for Wynne Shaw, one of Victoria's most distinguished ballet teachers.

"A year I will never forget," is the way she puts it.

The first big surprise came in May at a Victoria Musical Festival dance division honors performance in Oak Bay Junior High School.

There, present and past pupils gave a scholarship in her name, to be awarded each year to a promising young dancer chosen by festival adjudicators.

To make sure all students of the Wynne Shaw Dance School had an opportunity to help with the scholarship, Vivian Briggs (herself a former pupil) wrote personally to everyone she could locate.

Replies came from around the world. Those who could do so travelled to Victoria for the presentation ceremony.

Others sent letters and telegrams to let Miss Shaw know they were thinking of her.

The climax came with announcement of the name of the young dancer awarded the scholarship for a first time.

It was Jennifer Sanders, one of her own pupils, who had chalked up a prestigeous 99 per cent in marks during the festival.

That, she says, was the most memorable and the proudest day of her life.

Since then, there's been another "highlight" that will rank high in her memories.

Last month, during opening ceremonies at the 1978 conference of the Dance in Canada Association (DICA) at the University of British Columbia, Wynne Shaw was one of eight teachers recognized by the British Columbia regional office of the DICA "for outstanding contributions to the heritage of dance in British Columbia."

She was also one of three British Columbia teachers (among nine invited across Canada) chosen to take classes and lead discussion in some of the workshops.

"The conference was planned for the benefit of both the performer and the audience," she explains.

Many of Canada's "greats" were there — Lawrence Adams, Lois Smith, Eric Kraul, Brydon Page, Sonia Chamberlain and many others.

Delegates, including dancers, administrators, teachers, dance critics and scholarship winners were registered from every part of Canada.

"Whether we were there to upgrade our performance techniques, school enrolment or budget, we were all seeking to improve the quality of dance in Canada and therefore increase public awareness and support."

Wynne Shaw hardly remembers when she started to dance. "I think almost as soon as I could walk," she says.

She does remember, however, that her first public appearance was in a Sunday school concert at St. Mary's Anglican Church in Oak Bay, where the Shaws lived and where she and sisters Kathleen and Eileen (Mrs. Roy Tebo) grew up.

Later there was the St. Mary's Cheerio Club. There, as a teen-age member, she helped plan skits and dance routines for church concerts.

Her first formal training was with Dorothy Wilson, who conducted a dance school here for years.

She taught with Mrs. Wilson for a time before opening her own school in the Hamley Block at Government and Broughton, where she has been ever since.

In the years between, Wynne Shaw has trained hundreds of aspiring ballet dancers in that school.

Many have gone on to become outstanding teachers themselves.

Others have become famous with such companies as the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, the National Ballet, Les Grande Ballet Canadiens, Contemporary Dancers of Winnipeg, the Jeffrey Ballet, operatic ballet companies in Germany, Austria, England and the United States, as well as many others.

Not only has she attended refresher courses herself "to keep up with modern trends", she has taken selected groups of her pupils to England for summer studies at the Royal Academy and to Estorel, Portugal, for extended study of ballet.

Some years ago she was in charge of children chosen to appear in the Hollywood movie "The Commandoes Strike At Dawn," shot in Victoria and up on the Malahat, and with Paul Muni, Anna Lee, Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Lillian Gish in leading roles.

Not only did Miss Shaw train the children for that movie, in one sequence she instructed the whole cast in a polka number for a wedding scene.

Postscript: Two other happenings have helped "in a big way" to make this a year to remember for Wynne Shaw.

One was the "home-coming" of some of her most successful pupils, among them Bill McGrath, who for many years was a principal with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet and who now is teaching in Australia.

The other is the news that Sheila Mackinnon, also a former pupil, long-time leading ballerina with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet and more recently administrator of that company's ballet school, is planning to return to Victoria to live and will be teaching with Miss Shaw in her Hamley Block studio this winter.

Youth Clinic

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4.

Dear Mr. Cotter: I am 17 and so is my boyfriend. We have been going out for about a month and get along wonderfully.

The first time we went out he took me to meet his parents, which I thought was very nice because I feel his parents have as much right to meet me as my parents have to meet him.

Now quite often he comes over to my house after we go out and I go over to his. Sometimes his parents aren't home when we are there but they come home when we are there.

I do not believe in premarital sex but do you think his parents might get a bad impression of me?

ANSWER: If you are afraid of what his parents will think, then avoid being alone in the house with him when his parents are out.

If you don't want premarital sex then tell him so.

Dear Dr. Powell: I am a 14-year-old boy. I have no brothers or sisters.

When I'm out with my friends, there's one thing that bugs me. I've heard them talk about periods, but I don't know what they are. I've asked my mom, but she just changes the subject. So I pretend I know what my friends are talking about. Can you please tell me what a period is?

Please tell me as soon as you can because I can't pretend with my friends any longer.

ANSWER: A period is the word used to describe a woman's menstrual period or menstruation.

This is a discharge from the vagina which occurs about once a month and lasts several days. It results from a shedding of the lining of the uterus and is composed of blood and mucous and this lining of the uterus.

All girls menstruate beginning when they are about 11 or 12 and this menstruation will continue to occur until she is about 50.

Menstruation is the end of a cycle which keeps reoccurring in response to the hormones that are produced by her ovaries. Each month an egg or ovum is produced, and the uterus prepares for a fertilized egg to begin growing in the wall of the uterus into a baby. When the egg is not fertilized the lining of the uterus is shed and the cycle begins again.

Some mothers find it hard to talk about menstruation to their sons although they menstruate themselves and can often talk to their daughters.

It is important to understand the changes in our bodies as we grow up and develop. If your mother finds it difficult to talk to you ask your father and suggest you all sit down and discuss this together.

Dear Mr. Vichert: This girl I know is 15 and I am also 15. My problem is getting to know her or even to just talk to her.

As if this isn't bad enough, she has a friend who is also 15 who hangs around with her constantly. Our lockers are very close, so one day I decided to ask if she would go to a movie with me or something. Just as I got there who should show up but her friend, so I retreated home.

I have never been in this state before and don't like her but love her. How can I get to talk to her?

ANSWER: If there is no opportunity for you to talk with the girl privately, then I would suggest you try talking with her by telephone.

It would be quite appropriate if you telephoned her and asked her for a date. If there is a reason why you cannot do this, then think about leaving a note at her locker, asking her to meet you someplace so that you could talk with her.

I doubt if her friend can be with her all the time. I can understand that it is frustrating for you to not have an immediate opportunity to talk to the girl, but if you care for her you will also realize how important it is to have good friends and be patient until an opportunity comes along.

Common ¢ents

By KATE MacQUEEN

You can't always depend on prices quoted over the phone when price-shopping for a new appliance, TV set, etc. Sales people don't know if you're a price pest or a competitor and you may hear prices low enough to lure you away from a rival store that could offer the same bargains.

Now that current shoe fashions call for spiked heels again, it's time to bring out a 20-year warning: Those stiletto heels can dent plastic floor coverings just the way unprotected chair legs do. Wear the tiny heel cap down to even harder plastic heels and you can gouge flooring. And, walk carefully over long-shag carpeting; skinny heels catch in the long fibres and pull strands loose.

That extra-large bottle of aspirin you bought on sale and as a convenience may not be such a bargain. Opening and closing the large bottle over a long period of time causes aspirin to break down chemically and take on a vinegary flavor. Fill a smaller bottle for the medicine chest, tightly seal the large bottle and store it in a place much dryer than the bathroom.

CLASSES IN INTERIOR DECORATING

Joseph Egoyan

Once again the fascinating study of interior decorating will be introduced to you by theoretical and practical analysis. These lectures will be held in the store and also supplemented by on-location studies in selected homes including a visit to the residence of Mr. Egoyan to discuss the problems arising in furniture arrangement, color schemes, lighting, styles, theme, drapery and carpet selection and proper use of pictures and accessories.

Mr. Joseph Egoyan, B.A. ED., your instructor, is well qualified with extensive theoretical and practical knowledge. He is a graduate from the Art Institute of Chicago and California College of Arts and Crafts, has taught at Oakland Tech High, Calif., the American College in Cairo and the Evening Adult Education program in Victoria. In addition, he has a wealth of practical experience in retail field as proprietor of Ego Arts Gallery in Cairo for five years, and Ego Interiors in Victoria for seventeen years. Mr. Egoyan is a qualified artist and has exhibited his art works in a number of one-man shows in the U.A.R. and U.S.A. He won first prize in Vancouver Island Jury Show at the Art Gallery of Victoria, also a one-man show theme "BIRDS" was displayed at The Victoria Provincial Museum, The Burnaby Art Gallery and is now at Ego Interiors.

For the past fourteen years this course in interior decorating has been given by Mr. Egoyan twice yearly in three separate classes each week. At an average of twenty students in each class, more than a thousand students have taken the course to date.

THE CLASSES WILL BE HELD TUESDAY AFTERNOONS FROM 1 TO 2:30 P.M. AND ALSO EVENINGS ON MONDAY OR WEDNESDAY 7:30 TO 9 P.M.

CLASSES START SEPTEMBER 25th, 26th, and 27th AT EGO INTERIORS. TOTAL COST OF FIVE LECTURES ONCE A WEEK, $25.00.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: It's obvious that you were never a waitress or you never would have given MIFFED the answer you did. (MIFFED asked for separate cheques and was told it wasn't the policy of the restaurant. And you said, "Complain to the management, and if that doesn't help, next time take your business elsewhere.")

Abby, you have no idea how much time it takes to write up eight different cheques and to collect from eight different people.

Also, when the chef gets eight separate orders, he thinks they're all singles and it creates confusion in the kitchen.

Please be fair and tell both sides of the story.

BETTY

DEAR BETTY: Okay, color me "fair." I received a good number of complaints about my answer. Here's another:

DEAR ABBY: My sister brought her 5-year-old daughter to spend a few weeks with us this summer. We have a 7-year-old son who is an only child.

The youngsters spent a lot of time together and were very compatible. One afternoon they were exceptionally quiet, so I went to check on them. I was horrified to find them in the bedroom playing doctor."

I won't go into detail here, but the little girl was the "patient" and my son was the "doctor," and he was "examining" her, if you know what I mean.

How would you have handled this situation? My sister and I don't agree.

FULLERTON

DEAR FULLERTON: I would have kept my cool and not made a big deal out of it.

All kids are naturally curious about the bodies of the opposite sex, and "playing doctor" is one way to satisfy that curiosity. It's not serious — as long as they don't "operate."

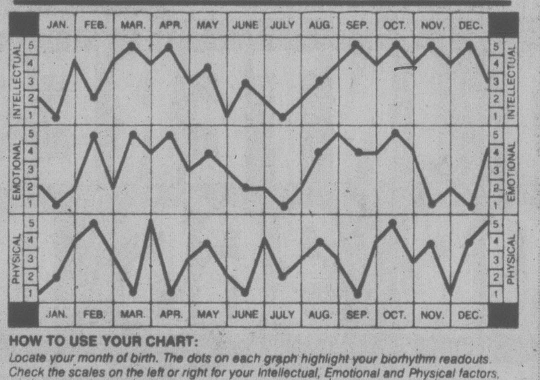
DEAR ABBY: Everybody says I have a good personality, and although I am far from beautiful, people tell me I am not a bad-looking girl. But I am 17 and have never had an honest-to-goodness date. I mean a date that wasn't fixed up by somebody.

I wear glasses. Could that be my trouble? Please don't suggest contact lenses because I can't stand the thought of sticking something right INTO my eye. I don't want to be an old maid. Can you help me? — FOUR EYES.

DEAR FOUR: Glasses rarely (if ever) have cost a girl her popularity, but they frequently provide a good excuse, which is easily seen through. If you want to be popular, try to develop the kind of personality other people find attractive. Forget about yourself and the impression you're creating, and concentrate on making the fellow you're with glad that he's with you!

Bio-dex

Sept. 9/78
By Ken J. Michaels
Your computerized biorhythm
© BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978
Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate



HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle-	You may be placed in a situation that could cause you to lose your temper. Try to stay cool and calm.
6-10 Neutral Cycle-	Don't listen to your friends' advice about expensive clothing. Can you really afford the price?
11-15 Positive Cycle-	Your hard work will begin to pay off. Keep your eyes open and you could end up with substantial rewards.

Many of you may have put on extra pounds over the summer — I sure did — and now that things are back to a schedule it's time to think about shedding that extra weight. Before your next attempt at dieting, check your Bio-dex. If you're entering a high cycle, the time is right to start your diet. You'll have extra willpower and your health will not suffer if you avoid extremes and consult your doctor.

13 Million-to-One Odds But Twins Due Again

OTHELLO, Wash. (AP) — The odds against it are about one in 13 million, but Betty Jean Salisbury is going to do it in November — give birth to her third set of twins.

Her first set of doubles, fraternal twins Tim and Tom, came in 1966. She delivered identical twins Stan and Steve three years later. Gary and Betty Salisbury have five other children.

"I come from an only-child home and I vowed not to have that happen to my kids," Mrs. Salisbury said. "Besides, having so many brothers and sisters teaches them something. They are not always getting everything they want."

Dr. Charles Hohler confirmed she was carrying twins.

The research department at Washington State University calculated the odds that a woman would bear three sets of twins as "roughly 13 million to one."

Salisbury is a railway worker but also owns a 6.9-acre farm on which the family grows most of its food.

"All the kids have chores," Mrs. Salisbury said. "Tim milks the cows, Steve waters all the animals and everybody helps out. It's the only way this big family can make it in this day and age."

Water Purifier An Alternative To Tap Variety

The sales of bottled water have skyrocketed in recent years, reflecting the concern many consumers have about the quality of public drinking water.

Not all consumers who seek an alternative to tap water, however, have turned to bottled water.

That's because, besides bottled water, another option available is a home water purifier. In its simplest form, this may mean installing a carbon filter to remove the chlorine (and the taste that goes with it) from your tap water. However, home water purification units come in other, more complex forms as well.

What kinds of home water treatment devices are available?

These products, which are also known as point-of-use water purifiers, can be attached to your home water system and are also used in summer cottages.

A variety of different systems — for example distillation, reverse osmosis, iodine, ozone, silver, carbon filtration — are available.

If you plan to install a device in an area not served by a public water system, it's important that you first have your water tested, for example by your provincial health office.

For that matter, you should also have your water tested if you plan to drink spring water straight from a well without any treatment at all. Sometimes water from a well or spring contains bacteria from the surrounding area that may be hazardous to your health.

If you decide to buy a home water treatment unit keep in mind that there's no universal purifier that's best for all conditions. They work in different ways. What's suitable in one ease, as indicated by the initial testing of your water, may not be suitable in another.

For example, you may decide to add a carbon filter to improve the taste and odor of chlorinated municipal tap water. On the other hand a device that uses only filtration is not sufficient for purifying lake or river water, according to the experts.

As a consumer, you also must remember that it's hard to make comparisons between purifiers sold by different companies; each uses words and terms that mean different things. Governments are moving to set standards so consumers will know exactly what the products do, under what conditions. In the meantime, a recent survey for the Department of Health and Welfare found that some manufacturers are making substantiated claims for their products.

In finding your way in this area, your provincial ministry of the environment and your local health unit are useful sources of information.

It takes a qualified person to install a water purifier and regular maintenance is vital. You can't expect these units will work forever without attention. You may find it necessary to hire a consulting engineer to help you make the right decisions. And be sure to deal with a reputable dealer. One way to check on a dealer is to write the Canadian Water Quality Association in Waterloo, Ont.

What's the relation between soft water, hard water and heart disease?

Water hardness refers to the presence of magnesium and calcium compounds in the water. The more parts per million of these minerals, the harder the water. Soft water is better for your laundry, but a number of studies have suggested that there may be a connection between soft water and heart disease.

However, there's a lot of controversy about the effect of soft water on health. The Canadian water quality Association, whose members manufacture water softening units, point out for example that most research on the relation between soft water and health has used naturally-occurring soft water instead of the commercially-softened variety, and that findings that apply to one don't necessarily apply to the other.

On the other hand, there's agreement that in softened water — whatever its source — the level of sodium is higher than it is in hard water. Therefore, if you're on a salt-restricted diet — due to hypertension, for example — you should not be drinking softened water.

Fall Show Open to All

A fall show of flowers and vegetables undoubtedly offers more general appeal than almost any other type of show, especially in this part of Vancouver Island.

The population is nicely balanced with its young and searching and its retired with years of gardening experience; the specialists in one type of flower and the dedicated vegetable growers striving to maintain the family needs for fresh foods throughout the year in gardens and allotment plots.

In between are apartment dwellers who delight in raising outdoor plants in planters on balcony or sundeck, and indoor plants throughout the year within the home.

All These people are potential exhibitors in next week's Victoria Hoticultural Society's Fall Show for the show classes are open to anyone who believes they have something worth showing.

A show catalog of classes may be obtained today or tomorrow by phoning Show Secretary Mrs. Shirley McMinn at 382-9836. Entry form must be back in her hands before midnight Tuesday September 12.

This Fall Show will be open to public viewing on Friday and Saturday, September 15 and 16 in First United Church Hall, 932 Balmoral Street, Victoria. This is just above Pandora off Quadra Street a few blocks from City Hall.

Visitors will see the late summer glory of local gardens on display in competition among members and non members of The Victoria Hoticultural Society. The Show opens at 2 p.m. Friday 15 and remains open until 10 p.m.; Saturday 16, hours are from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m.

Admission has been maintained at 50 cents; light refreshments are available so that the whole show can be enjoyed without missing portions because of the need for a rest.

Recent showers will have hastened the coloring of tree and shrub foliage. Its use in Arrangement and Design claslses will no doubt be exploited. The warmth of leaf and berry coloring will also be admired as branches form background to vases of late summer flowers throughout the hall.

September fruits and vegetables form as colorful a part of fall shows as do the flowers, and are equally important in today's urban life. Fresh produce colors are beautiful when seeen side by side and you know they have only been cleaned and perhaps polished.

What you see displayed by other gardeners you too can grow even though it must be in planters, pots or boxes on balcony or sundeck; or in a small dooryard or courtyard garden.

Encouragement will be there at this Show, with an information booth to fill in with answers to your questions. Copies can be seen of back issues of the V.H.S. "Garden Notes" publication which is mailed to all members monthly.

September shows are usually crowded events both as regards colorful entries and visitors. Out-of-town visitors find this show of interest in realizing the difference in local climate with other parts of the coast. See it all and see it early in the day if possible.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT SASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

E & N Rehearing Prospects Being Weighed by CTC

The Canadian Transport Commission has begun a formal review of its order allowing the CPR to end its E & N passenger service Dec. 13.

The CTC review committee is receiving briefs and looking for new evidence.

The committee has not announced its schedule of meetings but a decision will have to be handed down before Dec. 13.

Official appeals were sent to the CTC by a variety of groups and individuals, including the city of Victoria and Nanaimo NDP MP Tommy Douglas, to have the review committee begin its meetings.

However, the CTC has not called for a rehearing.

Function of the review committee is to give a yes-no answer on whether its original order will go into effect.

If the original order is upheld, passenger service on the E & N will be ended Dec. 13. If the order is not upheld, the service could be extended for a maxium of another five years.

John Cooper, chairman of the Vancouver Island Steering Committee working to save the E & N, said his group has sent a brief to the review committee in Ottawa. Several other local groups have also submitted briefs.

"All we can do now is wait for their decision."

Cooper also said the CPR had agreed to continue Sunday service on the E & N until Dec. 13. The experimental Sunday service began Aug. 6 to handle the summer crowds wanting to go up-Island. The Sunday service was to have ended on Sept. 10.

Public Invited On Ships

Four British warships and a New Zealand frigate visiting Victoria will be open to the public in dockyard from 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

They are the flagship cruiser HMS Blake and the frigates HMS Hermoine, HMS Leander and HMNZS Otago.

The frigate HMS Juno, docked in the Inner Harbor, will also be open to the public.

Cmdr. Roger Trussell, RN, commanding officer of the nuclear submarine HMS Conqueror, said plans to have his ship open to the public have had to be cancelled. The submarine is alongside the Royal Fleet Auxiliary vessel Stromness and can only be reached by a very high steep ladder. The approach would be too hazardous for any large crowds.

The RFA vessels Stromness and Resurgent, now in the dockyard, and the RFA vessel Tidespring, docked at Ogden Point, will not be open to the public.

CHOIR WINS AWARD

The Metropolitan United Church Choir of Saanichton, under the direction of Donald Kyle, has won second place and a $250 Imperial Bank of Commerce award in the 1978 National Competitive Festival of Music for groups of 18 or more singers, aged 19 or older.

First place went to Halifax Chamber Choir which received the City of Lincoln Trophy and a $500 award from the bank. The conductor is Dave Murray.

The George S. Mathieson Trophy for groups of 18 or more, aged 19 and under, went to the Central Alumni Choir of Ottawa, along with a $500 cheque. The director is Barbara Clark.

Les Jeunes Chanteurs d'Acadie of Moncton won second place and a $250 cheque. They are conducted by Sister Laurette Gallant.

Driver Identified

Colwood RCMP have identified an 18-year-old Oak Bay driver injured Thursday in a five-vehicle accident on the Trans-Canada Highway south of Thetis Lake overpass.

He is David Ross of 3904 Woodhaven Terrace who is in the intensive care unit at Victoria General Hospital.

He is in fair to good condition recovering from internal injuries.

WHAT'S a feller going to do when the thermometer tops 35°C and he's stuck in his fall fur coat? Just take it as easy as possible, as this squirrel — and a lot of people — were doing Thursday in Minneapolis. The heat wave was causing record demands for energy to run air conditioners in Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

MIRACLE CROSS 'FRAUD'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — In a 1,000-count criminal complaint, the U.S. attorney's office Thursday accused one of the largest mail order houses in the United States of fraud in selling costume jewelry crosses the company promoted as the Cross of Lourdes.

American Consumer Inc. ran advertisements last year in national publications stating that the crosses had been dipped in waters of the Shrine of Lourdes in France, the complaint said.

It added that the advertisements also claimed company representatives made a special pilgrimage to the Vatican and had the crosses blessed by the pope.

Many Roman Catholics believe the waters at the Lourdes' Shrine have miraculous healing powers.

Legionnaires Disease Flushed Out?

NEW YORK (AP) — City workers hosed down West 35th Street and nearby subway stations, and air and water tests were planned today as one of the top medical detectives in the United States joined efforts to try to discover why five confirmed and 38 suspected cases of Legionnaires disease have popped up in the city's garment district.

By late Thursday, after the number of reported sick and dead zoomed to 43 from nine in 24 hours, two deaths had been confirmed as resulting from Legionnaires disease, and another death was "highly suspect." Tests on the suspicious cases continued.

City sanitation workers driving water trucks Thursday night began a thorough rinsing of West 35th Street, where all the known and suspected victims worked as garment workers, tradespeople or, in one case, the cop on the beat. Transit Authority employees were doing the same chore on subway stations in the area.

Building owners were asked to turn off air-conditioning systems, prime suspects in earlier outbreaks, including the first and worst one in Philadelphia, in which 29 died and 151 became ill but recovered after a state American Legion convention two summers ago.

The city welcomed the help of Dr. David Fraser, chief of a special pathogen unit in the Bureau of Epidemiology of the Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta, but better known as chief investigator of the disease.

Dr. Fraser or members of his staff have travelled the U.S. since then studying other cases of Legionnaires disease, some of them in "clusters" and others as isolated cases.

Dr. John Marr, chief epidemiologist in the city's health department, said late Thursday that two current cases in Rochester, N.Y., have been ruled out as connected with the garment centre outbreak, since neither patient had been in New York City recently.

Dr. Marr said Dr. Fraser will study the work done so far in trying to find the source of the mysterious malady, which is not communicated from person to person but results from inhaling airborne bacteria.

More than 3,000 persons have called a hot line to report possible cases, and 175 of the reports were getting further study.

Crash Claims 15

TUNIS (Reuter) — Fifteen persons, including 10 children, were killed and three injured when a truck in which they were travelling plunged off a mountain road Wednesday in southern Tunisia, police said.

Gov't Training for Pilots On Small B.C. Airlines

The provincial government will soon provide a new training program for pilots working for small B.C. airlines.

The program, starting the end of the month, will offer the pilots a higher level of training than otherwise available.

John Olmstead, transport planning adviser to the B.C. government, said Thursday the pilots will have access to the government's million-dollar flight simulator at the Pat Bay airport as well as the training program that the air services branch has set up for its own pilots.

He said the pilots will be offered a two-day course every six months which, he said, will better prepare them for the Transport Canada checks which come twice a year.

Olmstead said the government has been working on the program for about a year and felt it appropriate to unveil it at this time because of the recent tragic crash of an AirWest Twin Otter in Vancouver's Coal Harbor.

In offering the program, he added, the government is not saying the pilots were inadequately trained in the past nor commenting on the cause of the AirWest crash that killed 11 people.

Olmstead estimated there are 15 or 16 small carriers in B.C., employing roughly 35 pilots.

The training program will be offered free to the pilots for a year on a trial basis, he said.

Townhouse Project Vetoed

Victoria council Thursday turned down a townhouse project on Washington Avenue that neighborhood residents said was just not acceptable because of its density.

But the developer, who wanted to use three lots in the project, can still go ahead on two of the lots on which development is already approved.

Oak Bay Estates and Jobird Mortgage and Development Co. Ltd., can also return to council with another proposal for the three lots at 3064-3070 Washington.

Ald. John Hayes, in speaking against the development proposal, said council made a mistake when it approved development for two of the lots some time ago.

Approval of the current plan, he said, would only make things worse.

About 30 neighborhood residents attended council's night meeting and presented a 33-name petition against the three-lot proposal.

A number of residents spoke out against the planned 24-unit townhouse project, saying that Washington Ave. already had severe traffic and parking problems.

The neighbors agreed that nearby Windsor Court, on Gorge Rd. East, is the main reason for their difficulties.

Ald. Murray Glazier said Windsor Court should never have been allowed by council.

"We are very far behind the times," said Glazier.

Ald. Robin Blencoe suggested the Washington Ave. lots be turned into a park.

"As far as I'm concerned we've ruined this area, (with developments) absolutely ruined it."

Council eventually voted unanimously to reject the proposal, with Ald. Bob Wright abstaining.

OMBUDSMAN LIST CUT TO JUST 10

There are only 10 candidates left in the running for the job of ombudsman in B.C.

Delta Socred MLA Walter Davidson, chairman of the legislature's ombudsman committee, said it's hoped a final selection will be made before the end of the year.

All applicants who have not yet been advised will be notified by the end of next week whether or not their spplications are still under consideration.

Aldermen Vote for TV

Following Thursday night's council meeting it now seems official — Victoria's civic politicians love to see themselves on television.

When Ald. Ron McKenzie presented a motion that would allow Cable Ten cameras to videotape all committee meetings, only one council member spoke out against the plan.

Ald. Larry Ryan was the lone objector, saying he feels television is a corrupting influence at the meetings because they encourage aldermen to make speeches just so they can be on camera.

At Thursday's meeting Ald. Robin Blencoe spoke passionately in defence of televised committee gatherings, saying they are an extension of democracy.

"At least the television doesn't get edited and we can see the whole thing."

Ottawa Lops $370M Off Aid to Provinces

OTTAWA (CP) — Welfare and other federal payments to the provinces will be cut by $370 million next year.

Finance Minister Jean Chretien and Treasury Board President Robert Andras said the cuts would amount to about 3.5 per cent of the $10 billion in tax money shifted to provinces from the federal government each year.

The two acknowledged that they will have to renegotiate federal contracts with the provinces under which the payments are made, raising the possibility of further friction between the two levels of government.

But Chretien said at a press conference taxpayers will have to wait for a new budget to be presented "before the end of the year" to see whether promised federal tax cuts are coming.

Andras said the government was wrapping up the economic-recovery program promised by Prime Minister Trudeau Aug. 1 with today's statement.

In a series of statements, the government announced that $300 million is being set aside for a program to aid industry next year.

The cutbacks announcement had an immediate effect on the Canadian dollar.

It gained today against its American counterpart for the first time this week. By noon it was trading at 86.47 U.S. cents on the inter-bank wholesale market, up 7-100 of a cent from Thursday's closing rate of 86.40 cents.

At his news conference, Andras presented item-by-item spending changes that he said show total expenditure reductions for the current financial year that started April 1 and for next year of $2.5 billion. Most of the reductions — about $2 billion of the total — are reductions from next year's plans.

But Andras insisted "the cuts are real" and said he and Chretien were presenting "an exercise in open government" by revealing the spending changes each department has been asked to make.

The statements show spending will total $48.3 billion this financial year and rise by nine per cent to an estimated $52.6 billion in the financial year starting April 1.

Deficits to be covered by borrowing from the public will amount to about $11.8 billion this year — more than originally forecast — and to $9.7 billion in the 1979-80 fiscal year.

But the government said these totals could change with a new budget to be pre-

500 Layoffs Seen In B.C. Shipyards

THE BYRDS
I JUST HAD HIM TO WHERE HE'D TAKE HIS BATH AGAIN AND ALONG CAME JAWS II.

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

Prospects for work at B.C. shipyards are bleak and the layoff total is expected to reach more than 500 within the next month.

The situation has union and management officials concerned.

Yarrows has a work force of about 525 but once a self-propelled long barge is completed early in October, more than 200 employees are expected to be laid off.

Burrard Dry Dock in North Vancouver, the West Coast's largest shipbuilder, laid off 40 workers today and 60 were let go last week.

The company is employing about 850 now but once work on an icebreaker is completed in the spring, another 300 employees will be without jobs.

At Bel-Aire Shipyards in North Vancouver, only a skeleton staff of 20 to 25 employees has been working since July when 200 workers were laid off.

"We're quite concerned," Yarrows general manager Don Challinor said today.

The worrying thing is that there doesn't appear to be any work on the horizon, he added.

Challinor said the federal government could help if it went ahead with some of the work it knows has to be done.

It also would improve things if Ottawa would state

Rhodesia Guerrillas Pursued

UMTALI, Rhodesia (Reuter) — Security forces today pursued the black nationalist guerrillas who attacked this border town with mortars Thursday night, wounding two civilians.

A security forces spokesman, announcing this, said that the guerrilla group—numbering more than 20—unexpectedly did not head across the nearby Mozambique border but instead went north towards the Rhodesian town of Penhalonga.

The 30 82-millimetre shells fired in a 10-minute bombardment Thursday night from a hilltop two kilometres from the city centre was the first such attack on Umtali by guerrillas from inside Rhodesia.

It may have marked a new strategy by the black nationalists, as the other two attacks on Umtali in the last two years were from inside Mozambique and were blamed on the Mozambique Frelimo forces by the Rhodesians.

Meanwhile, Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda said today he would not rule out summoning help from outside Africa to protect his borders.

Police Probe Sought In Munro Phone Call

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police have been asked to investigate a phone call made by John Munro, federal labor minister, to a provincial court judge, a spokesman for the Ontario attorney-general's office said today.

Munro confirmed Thursday that he called Provincial Judge Albert Marck on Aug. 18 shortly before the judge sentenced Julius Butty, a resident of Munro's Hamilton East riding. Butty, a Hamilton landlord, had been convicted of common assault for hitting a tenant with a hammer.

Judge Marck fined Butty $500 with the option of six months in jail.

In a statement given through an aide, Munro said the call was to provide a character reference for Butty and was not an attempt to influence the judge. The aide said Munro has no plans to resign.

Opposition leader Joe Clark Thursday said conduct rules for cabinet ministers were set after the 'judges affair' in 1976 and "if Prime Minister Trudeau is serious about his standards, he'll enforce them, and in enforcing them, he'll have to ask Mr. Munro to resign."

Clark said Trudeau's handling of the matter "will be a test in the kind of leadership we have in the government of Canada now."

Munro's aide said Butty and Munro are not friends but have known each other for several years through community events.

Judge Marck recessed court to receive Munro's call in his chambers.

Watch Plot Thickens

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — The plot thickened in the Japanese watch drama Thursday as the customs department got into the act.

It seems there may be $76.20 owing in duty and federal tax on each of three Seiko watches given to Vancouver aldermen Marguerite Ford, May Brown and Bernice Gerard by visiting civic officials from Yokohama.

They're the watches that somehow went missing at city hall between Aug. 21 and Tuesday when the trio finally got them.

But entering the scenario Thursday was Hugh Cameron, head man at the Vancouver customs office who has been following the case with more than idle interest. On Thursday, he assigned one of his investigators to check department records to see if duty was paid on the watches.

It wasn't, he suspects, which means that Ford, Brown and Gerard probably will be stuck with the bill.

Meanwhile, back at city hall the man in the middle of the muddle, Gerry Lenoski, also was given one of the Seiko watches. Lenoski, executive assistant to Mayor Jack Volrich, got the watch given to former alderman Orson Banfield, who was in charge of a civic reception for the visiting Japanese dignitaries last month.

"I gave it to Gerry and that's that," Banfield said. "It was an afterthought. But I've already got two. The last thing I'd want is another one, so I gave it away to someone who was entitled to it."

Banfield said the affair was blown out of proportion.

"For the love of Pete, let it alone to die a natural death," he told reporters.

There's no tax on items like the $1,600 lantern given to the city of Vancouver by the Japanese delegation because a customs loophole allows a government to receive duty-free gifts from another government.

Token gifts can usually enter the country duty-free, too, if they are worth less than $15.

But the watches, valued at $175 each in Japan, are subject to a 20 per cent duty, a 12 per cent sales tax and a 10 per cent excise tax. It adds up to $76.20.

Lenoski doesn't know if the duty has been paid. He's out $300 of his own money after buying a Seiko watch for Ald. Darlene Marzari, who also was supposed to get one left by the Japanese group. That one disappeared.

SOCIALISM . . . ALCOHOLISM

WARSAW (Reuter) — A Polish sociologist startled a world alcohol and drugs congress Thursday by suggesting that alcoholism was linked with socialism.

His argument brought a swift reaction from other Polish delegates, who accused him of getting his facts wrong.

Dr. Zbigniew Wierzbicki, of the Polish Academy of Sciences' Institute of Philosophy and Sociology, started the dispute by quoting statistics showing that people in Communist countries were the world's leading drinkers of hard liquor.

Speaking from the floor during a plenary session of the 32nd International Congress on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence, he cited 1972 Finnish-prepared figures putting Poland, "Soviet Russia" and Hungary first, second and third respectively for per capita consumption of spirits.

Wierzbicki blamed this situation on the centrally-planned economies of the Communist countries. In Poland, ministries had to fulfill plans for ever-increasing production and sale of alcohol, he said.

Wierzbicki received loud applause from several hundred delegates, but Polish psychiatrist Zbigniew Thielle sprang to the microphone, and charged his compatriot with oversimplifying a complex problem.

It would be just as easy to say drug abuse was linked with capitalism, he said. "I do not think this is good propaganda for either side."

Bullets Halt Iran Protest

TEHRAN (AP) — Troops fired into a crowd of several thousand anti-government demonstrators in Tehran today and unofficial reports said as many as 100 persons were killed. The clash came just hours after the Iranian government imposed martial law in the capital and 11 other cities.

No official death count was available, but the government-owned radio Tehran said "many" died.

"The martial-law order, which bans gatherings by more than three persons and imposes a curfew from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. daily, is an effort to end rioting by opponents of the shah of Iran's liberalization program. An estimated 1,000 persons have died in the disturbances in the last eight months.

The angry protesters in Jaleh square, in the eastern section of the city, shouted down religious leader Ayatullh Noori who had appealed to them to disperse.

Led by teen-agers and followed by women in their traditional Moslem veils, the demonstrators marched toward a line of soldiers and began throwing bricks and rocks, witnesses said. The soldiers fired sub-machine-guns into the air and then into the crowd.

Witnesses said "many" blood-soaked demonstrators fell to the ground and were hauled away in trucks after the two-hour battle.

The demonstrators set fire to several buildings, gasoline stations and department stores and tried to pull down statues. That section of the city also includes Baharestan, the parliament square.

"As they fled from the scene, they burnt down anything they could find that was flammable," said one witness.

By noon (1:30 a.m. PDT), there was only sporadic shooting.

SUMMIT AT CORE?

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — Egyptian and Israeli officials today hinted that the Camp David summit has reached the core issues dividing the Middle East, and the atmosphere remains favorable as the talks grow more serious.

The first crack in the news blackout came after two days of direct talks between President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel.

City Trustees to Fight 10-12% Teacher Hikes

The Greater Victoria school board has no intention of agreeing to a 10 to 12 per cent wage hike the B.C. Teachers Federation (BCTF) wants its membership to demand this fall.

Board chairman Susan Brice said today she is confident the Greater Victoria Teachers Association (GVTA) can sit down with trustees and work out a much more reasonable settlement.

"There's absolutely no way the district can afford an increase of that percentage," Brice said.

GVTA spokesman Trevor Calkins said today the association wants to create a good rapport with trustees and is not prepared to make any public statements at this point.

Calkins said the association will decide its priorities at a general meeting this month.

They were commenting on an announcement by the BCTF that it is urging its 30,000 members province-wide to ask for increases that will add up to more than $2,000 a year for the average teacher and up to $4,000 for some principals.

Salaries now average about $21,000 for a teacher and up to $40,000 for principals.

Teachers are prevented from striking by the Public Schools Act.

During the last few years negotiations have been fraught with bad feelings on both side and ended in arbitration.

Both Brice and the GVTA want to avoid going to arbitration this year.

Federation president Pat Brady said inflation, which he placed at 8.2 per cent, and growth in productivity, which he said is five per cent in B.C., are the basis for the advised wage increase.

The proposed salary hikes are in line with the now dead Anti-Inflation Board's guidelines that raises should cover increased living costs and should also allow workers to share in any improvement in the country's productivity.

The proposals have been condemned by B.C. School Trustees Association president Dave Kandal and Vancouver area trustees.

Kandal said the proposed wage hike was "outrageous and unrealistic."

Each local must determine its own bargaining position by Sept. 30.

The federation also recommends that teachers negotiate:

—An agreement that would allow them to honor other school strikes or lockouts without reprisal;

—Better leave-of-absence provisions and improved sick leave;

—Continued participation by school boards in premium payments for income security benefits.

Many City Schools Admitted Firetraps

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

If a fire inspection took place tomorrow in Greater Victoria's public schools very few of them would pass, according to school district community relations officer Bill Stavdal.

Stavdal's admission came after Gordon Collins, manager of the Insurance Corporation of B.C.'s loss prevention unit, said in Vancouver Thursday that most schools in the province are firetraps.

Collins said few schools meet today's building code requirements and only about 65 of the 1,700 B.C. schools surveyed carry fire insurance.

Virtually none of the 53 schools in the district meet ICBC fire standards.

And none of the schools are covered completely by fire insurance.

Only five of the largest secondary schools in the district are covered for fire damage exceeding $5 million. The rest are not insured.

High fire insurance costs are the reason.

In 1977 Education Minister Pat McGeer set a $5 million deductible, which means individual districts foot the bill for that amount and the ministry pays any additional replacement costs of a fire-destroyed school.

Lower deductibles can be negotiated at premiums too expensive for the district to even consider.

Luckily, the only fire in recent memory occurred in the $6.5 million Victoria high school attic.

Replacement value of buildings and equipment is $150.5 million, roughly $5,000 for each student enrolled in the district, according to a 1978 administrative report.

Many schools are a high fire risk because they were constructed cheaply in the 1950s and 60s of wood.

A lot of these schools are wood frame and the halls are lined with plywood or hardboard.

According to a recent survey by ICBC, the problem is province-wide.

Stavdal says ICBC has been increasing demands to have stringent fire standards met.

Stavdal said the standards are always changing and expensive to implement.

But continuing pressure from ICBC has resulted in recent fire protection improvements, including a $2.7 district-wide renovation project this year.

All schools in the district have fire alarms and some are equipped with burglar alarms.

"It takes less than a minute to get students out of a school," he said.

Fire losses in B.C. dropped from $12 million in 1976 to $1.2 last year, according to an education ministry spokesman.

But Collins said ICBC is not satisfied and will be taking "desperate measures" in future to prevent school fires.

Those measures include installation of intruder alarm systems in every school and either a sprinkler system or subdivision by firewalls, plus a fire detection system.

2 p.m. Open house on British and New Zealand warships, Dockyard and Inner Harbor, until 5 p.m.

3 p.m. Presentation of trophies for Great Inner Tube Race, Gorge Park.

Boss Blamed for Air Stress

TORONTO (CP) — Fear of causing accidents and responsibility for others' lives produce less stress for air traffic controllers than the stress caused by air-traffic management, says a study by the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry.

The study of Ontario air controllers, released today, says controllers regard responsibility for others' lives a challenge and source of satisfaction in an otherwise routine job.

Controllers, employees of Transport Canada, said they are trained for their assertiveness and decisive action but work in an organization with a reputation for having the opposite traits.

Controllers said that with civil service regulations making it almost impossible to fire an incompetent controller, someone who cannot handle the job is promoted to an administrative position.

"From this lofty position he formulates policies for which he lacks experience," one controller said.

"This procedure frustrates me to no end."

The report says that as a result of the stigma attached to promotion, a controller may stay on the job when it might be in the public's interest for him to quit.

The survey, based on questionnaires mailed in 1976 and 1977 to about 400 controllers in Ontario, was answered by 274 controllers, eight of them women.

Survey researcher Arlene MacBride said in an interview Thursday that 50 per cent of those who responded had no one or only one person to confide their problems to.

Most turned to spouses for support which often caused a strain on the marriage, she said.

Controllers do not confide in superiors or staff doctors for fear their problems will not be kept confidential.

Mrs. MacBride said 70 per cent of those surveyed thought the public misunderstood the nature of the stress controllers undergo.

She said it is not the universal kind of stress some people think but more related to poor health and a poor relationship with spouse and family.

Housing Starts Rise

Local housing starts in August were higher than the same month in 1977 for the first time in five months, but only because construction hit a slump in August, 1977.

There were 128 starts during the past month, up from 70 the previous August. In both years there were no apartment starts during the month.

Construction of single-family homes continues to be a bright spot with 126 started in August, up from 64 in the same month last year.

During the first eight months, there have been 751 houses started, up from 470 in the first eight months of 1977.

There were no starts for row housing or apartments in August. There were two duplex units started, along with the 126 single-family homes.

At the beginning of September there were 193 new apartment units vacant, down from 278 at the same time last year.

The condominium surplus continues to decline month by month. Now there are only 40 new condos unsold, down from 353 at the same time in 1977.

There are 171 new unsold houses on the market, down from 255 last year.

30,000 Phones Hit

TOKYO (Reuter) — Police increased their vigilance today after radicals severed cable lines and paralysed almost 30,000 telephone and Telex links in three cities in a sabotage attempt against Tokyo's new international airport.

Engineers worked throughout the day to repair damage to lines in Tokyo, Chiba and Narita. The damage did not disrupt flights at the airport.

Last March, leftist radicals climbed through an unguarded manhole at the airport 60 kilometres from Tokyo and smashed vital equipment in the control tower.

At least six persons have been killed and more than 8,500 injured in almost 12 years of fighting between riot police and radicals who support farmers and environmentalists.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Wholesale prices, led by a decline in food costs, fell 0.1 percent in August for the first decline in two years, the government reported today.

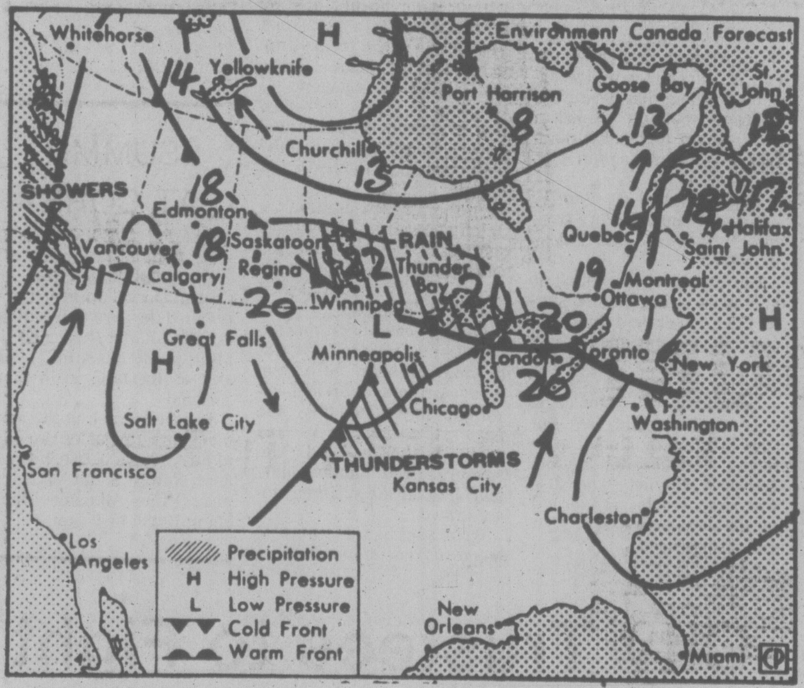
RESCUE THEME PLANNED

Search and rescue operations will be the theme of the 30th national convention of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association at The Empress Oct. 11-14.

The convention will be hosted by the 800 Pacific Wing, 105 Wilson.

Before the first luncheon on Oct. 12 a rescue demonstration will be staged in the Inner Harbor by members of the 442 Search and Rescue Squadron from CFB Comox.

the weather



Map valid until noon Saturday

The last of a series of disturbances which have been invading B.C. from the south moved into southern B.C. overnight spreading cloud and rain to the southern sections of the province. As it moves northeastwards to Alberta today some clearing will occur. Elsewhere skies were mainly clear overnight. However, for coastal B.C. a series of moisture-laden disturbances from the west are already posing a threat. The first disturbance is expected to reach the south coast late today followed by a second on Saturday. These disturbanceswill eventually move to the B.C. Interior later. However they are expected to weaken.

Fancy Nautical Nuptials? Then Rent Ferry Lounge

Ferries now have the space for weddings, banquets and meetings

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The bride and groom exchanged vows, surrounded by family and relatives as the B.C. ferry made her way on a regular run between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen.

It hasn't happened yet but B.C. Ferries' traffic manager Bill Bouchard is betting it could before next summer rolls around.

BOUCHARD
. . . why not?

"We've regularly committed ashes to the deep from the ferries, we've had our first baby born aboard (in 1971) and given a lifetime pass. It (a ferry wedding) would be a good way of kicking things off — there must be lot of people out there who would be interested," he said.

Waterborne nuptial vows have been made possible by a new unadvertised program this year that is already gaining momentum. During the off-season when the large upper restaurant lounges are closed they will be available for social events, meetings, conventions and other gatherings.

The basic rate for use of the lounges on the scheduled Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen runs will start at $40 for a one-way cruise plus catering, the price being regulated by the type of meal served and the number of staff required.

Bouchard said the service was initiated after B.C. Ferries received a request from the eastern-based Honda company which is rewarding its top personnel with an across-Canada trip. A total of 450 Honda employees will travel to Victoria on Sept. 28, returning to Vancouver the next day.

Another group — this time 250 American insurance salesmen — is booked for Oct. 13. Some time in September B.C. Hydro will use the service.

Bouchard says B.C. Ferries is cashing in on the growing incentive travel market in which companies reward initiative by providing free trips.

"There's a surge in the incentive travel market. It's becoming pretty good and it's big business," he said. "There's a lot of interest and we're not using the space — why not?"

To assist sales and business meetings audio-visual equipment is available.

The winter package tours aboard the Prince Rupert, first started in the fall of 1977 as an experiment, are also growing in popularity.

These are being widely advertised and include a round trip from Tsawwassen to Prince Rupert with a stopover and tour in the northern part for $160, a triangle cruise between Vancouver, Victoria and Campbell River for $91 and a seven-day Inside Passage tour for $222 per person.

Bouchard said because of the overflow on one trip this spring people taking the tour were booked in five Victoria Hotels — The Empress, Laurel Point Inn, Harbor Towers, Executive House and the Chateau Victoria.

Up-Island hotels booked for the 1977 package tour program were the Discovery Inn, Haida, Austrian Chalet and Painter's Lodge in Campbell River, as well as the Qualicum College Inn.

This season the Olde England Inn in Victoria and the Island Hall at Parksville will be added to the list.

While Bouchard did not have the exact count, he said the ferries also carried a record number of passengers this summer, beating 1975, the previous top tourist season.

Meanwhile, George Baldwin, operations manager, reports three of the smallest vessels in the fleet — Powell River Queen, Mayne Queen and Bowen Queen — will have their capacities increased from 50 to 70 vehicles and their engine power increased. The work will probably be done between January and May 1979.

American Beer Slashed in Price To Clear Surplus

High-priced American beer slid down to the bargain basement today as B.C. liquor stores moved to clear a massive surplus.

The sale will see the U.S. stock marked down to $4.85 a dozen — the current price of B.C. beer.

Savings to consumers on the import beer will range from 94 cents to $2.22 per dozen.

Tex Enemark, deputy minister of consumer and corporate affairs, says the average price tag reduction is $1 a dozen, and the government plans to sell off about 2 million cases.

That means the government will miss out on about $2 million in income. But even at the reduced price the U.S. beer will still sell at a slight profit.

Enemark said the sale is being held to open up shelf space for Canadian beer now being brewed following a three-month labor dispute in the B.C. brewing industry.

Locally made beer could show up in liquor stores as early as today if the American stock moves quickly.

Enemark said beer in stock and arriving this week was ordered in mid-August when both sides in the labor dispute were pessimistic about an early settlement.

"Every indication was that the dispute would go far into — if not through — the month of September," he said.

"Under those circumstances, the LDB had no choice but to maintain inventories of U.S. beer sufficient to meet demand."

B.C. liquor stores imported nine million cans and bottles of beer during the summer and stocked 17 brands of U.S. beer.

Early in the strike a case of beer was a rarity and huge line-ups formed at B.C. liquor outlets whenever shipments arrived. The limit was usually set at two cases per customer.

But as the dispute dragged on the government incrased it imports and towards the last few weeks of August stacks of U.S. beer — with largely unheard of brand names like Falstaff, 102 and Schmidt — were backing up.

Shortly after that the strike ended and B.C. breweries — which lost an estimated $50 million in gross sales over the long, not so hot summer — began clamoring for shelf space.

The brewing industry wasn't the only section hurt by the protracted dispute.

The over-all loss to B.C.'s economy has been estimated at $40 million to $50 million.

Losses in income to the 1,000 brewery workers is estimated at about $4,000 each.

Some 3,000 other workers in pubs, hotels and restaurants were idled by the strike. No figures are available on how much it cost them in lost wages.

Enemark said the strike was expensive all around and the government hopes its import beer sale will help return things to normal quickly.

He added, however, the province has no intention of buying back U.S. beer from pubs and hotels that built up huge stockpiles to see them through the dispute.

"Many people during the strike were very greedy," said Enemark. "They purchased all they could get their hands on; far more than they needed."

Now its up to them to bail themselves out, he said.

Whether they'll follow the government's lead and offer bargains on American beer remains to be seen.

Ask the Times

Q. I would like to get new medal ribbons for my medals from the First World War in time for the coming Armistice Day. I have six — the Mons Medal, the two general service medals, the military cross and the distinguished conduct medal, in addition to the Canadian Decoration. Could you please advise me where I can get the ribbons attached to the bar? E.B.S.

A. This can be done in the tailor's shop at CFB Esquimalt. The telephone number is 388-6428. At the moment, the shop's supply of First World War ribbons is depleted but there is more on order. It is advised you check by telephone to find out when the new shipment will be in.

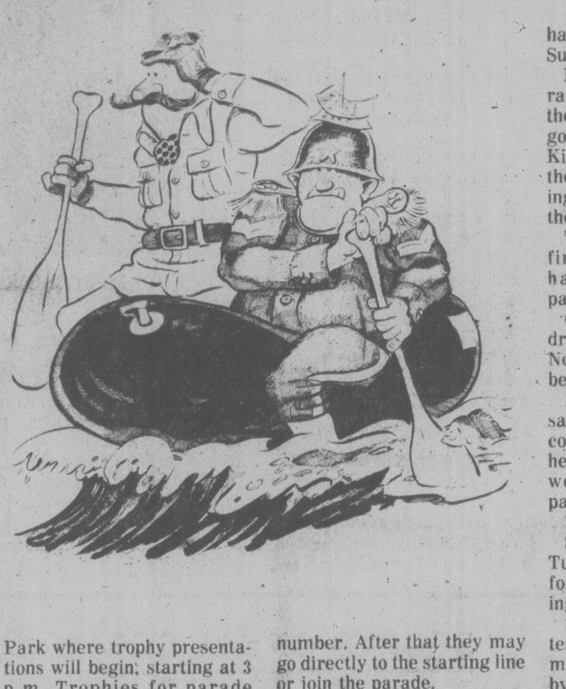
The Brits Are Coming And They're Riding Free



Two teams from England will be out to prove Britain also rules the tiny waves of the Gorge on Sunday in the Great Inner Tube Race.

Four sailors from the visiting flagship cruiser HMS Blake will form two teams and paddle down the Gorge in the races which begin at 1 p.m.

Their entry fees have been paid by Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy and Saanich Ald. Fred Severson.

Racing for Mrs. McCarthy will be Knocker White, 37, and Spike Hughes, 32, while Max Bygraves, 35, and Jack Darville, 37, will race for Severson — and the glory of England. All are from Portsmouth.

Their entry was organized by Wayne Mowat of Victoria who met the sailors at a local reception.

Entries for the big race closed at noon today.

All contestants are to gather at Gorge Park, across from the Gorge Hotel, by 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

Traditionally contestants go in the parade, even if they just walk, carrying their tube. Most are able to hitch a ride on one of the many floats and other vehicles.

Only vehicles going in the parade will be allowed into the park. Other vehicles can be parked in the area of the Gorge Hotel.

Three things are done by 11:30 at Gorge Park: contestants are registered and given a team number.

The parade is organized and costumes are judged, also from 11 to 11:30 a.m. at the Gorge Park.

At noon, the parade sets off for Craigflower Bridge by crossing the Gorge at Tillicum and proceeding west on Gorge Road.

The parade disbands at Craigflower Bridge and the first of the inner tube races starts at 1 p.m.

The races end at Gorge Park where trophy presentations will begin; starting at 3 p.m. Trophies for parade winners and costumes will be given out at that time.

Important: All contestants are reminded they must check in at Gorge Park by 11:30 a.m. and receive their number. After that they may go directly to the starting line or join the parade.

Hampton Park Hustlers, who are organizing the event, will sell official Great Inner Tube Race tee shirts at Gorge Park during the day.

Kinsmen will sell hot dogs and other refreshments at half price at Gorge Park on Sunday.

Egon Mikkelsen, inner tube race concession chairman for the Kinsmen, said all receipts go to help amateur sport. Kinsmen make a donation to the community by purchasing the food supplies from their own funds.

The Esquimalt and Saanich fire departments will each have a fire truck in the parade.

Capt. Cook (Kelvin Andrew) and bathtubber Frank Ney, mayor of Nanaimo, will be in the parade.

Anyone looking for small sails for a Capt. Cook float could phone Mrs. Roy Shepherd at 385-1019. The sails were used in a previous parade and are available.

The schedule:

Saturday, 8 p.m.: The Tubers Ball, a disco dance for couples, at Victoria Curling Club.

Sunday, 11:30 a.m.: All contestants and parade entries must check in at Gorge Park by this time.

Sunday, noon: Start of the parade.

Sunday, 1 p.m.: First inner tube race starts at Craigflower Bridge.

Sunday, 3 p.m.: Trophies presented at Gorge Park.

Farmland Review Asked

A proposal that the Land Commission review all farm land in North Saanich has been made by Mayor George Westwood.

The suggestion is expected to win support from aldermen at council's Sept. 25 meeting.

The mayor said today a review of the boundaries of all lands in the Agricultural Land Reseve would increase the credibility of the ALR and clear up some of the anomalies surrounding its operations.

"There are many people who think the quality of some agricultural lands has been rated much too high," he said.

"Others feel some lands not designated as agricultural lands should have been included in the ALR."

Westwood said he made the suggestion after council discussed the case of Donald and Jacquline Wilson, 9299 Canora Road.

The land commission exempted the Wilson's 14.4 acres from the ALR after the provincial cabinet removed an adjacent 33-acre farm from the land reserve.

Now some North Saanich aldermen want the commission to reverse its decision and to place the land back in the ALR.

Say, Aren't You Joe Who?

Nobody actually said the much-maligned phrase "Joe Who?" aloud on Monday when federal Conservative leader Joe Clark visited the Saanichton fair. But there was some evidence the Tories have not entirely conquered the Joe-Who problem.

While Clark met the Esquimalt-Saanich riding executive in a fair office, a number of aides and party officials waited patiently outside. After watching for a few moments a woman approached one of them.

"Pardon me," she said, "but aren't you Joe Clark?"

Perhaps her theory was that no one other than the leader himself would be wearing a suit and tie at the fair.

Saanich police chief Bob Peterson has been appointed to a third term as director of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police.

Peterson, one of six directors on the board, is also expected to be named chairman of the association's crime prevention committee, a position he's held for the past year.

The new president of the association which held its annual meeting in Ottawa last month is Stanley Raike, deputy chief of the Peel, Ont., regional police. Vancouver's chief constable Don Winterton, was elected first vice-president.

The members of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind here have come up with a novel way of handling an old, old problem.

They've built an outdoor biffy just for dogs at their 14-unit housing complex at 950 Humboldt.

In particular the facility is for Jackson and Mitchell, seeing-eye dogs owned by Hugh McLeod and Mike Brodsky respectively.

It's a Super Spud . . . Anyway You Slice It

If you can come up with a greater 'tater than the three-pound whopper grown by Ed Gait, 7065 Silverdale, good for you.

The big spud would make a meal for a family french-fried, mashed or just plain baked.

And if you're into sunflowers, try topping the 15-foot specimen grown by Earl Grant, 760 Wains.

Its stalk, if you're keen on details, is three inches in circumference.

Now if someone out there has a five-foot stick of rhubarb . . .

TOWN TALK

CNIB Vancouver Island director Isabel Beveridge says workmen poured an eight-foot by six-foot concrete slab in the back of the villa, installed a fence around it, and put in a hose and faucet and a drain hole connected to the sewer system.

The big trick has been, of course, in getting the dogs to use it. Jackson caught on in a flash. Mitchell's been a bit slower on the uptake. But, says Hugh, his dog had a slight edge.

"He got to use it first," he said.

Incidentally, the residents of the Humboldt complex have a name for the facility. You guessed it. The poop deck.

When Mrs. Olive Lawson joined the staff of the Royal Jubilee Hospital as a switchboard operator she intended to stay only a few months, just long enough to earn sufficient money to do some travelling.

This month she retires as supervisor of information and communications after more than 31 years with the hospital.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Soaring oil and gas issued sent the Toronto stocks sharply higher in active mid-session trading.

Dome Petroleum Ltd. continued to climb after a one-hour trading halt issued shortly after the opening due to an imbalance of orders. The stock was up 7 to $101½ on the sale of 31,924 shares, but fell back from a new high of $104½ shortly after the resumption.

Among other industrials, B.C. Packers B advanced 5 to 185 on 539 shares, Bow Valley Industries 2¾ to $43, Gulf Canada 1½ to $35½, Finning Tractor 1¼ to $28 and Westburne International 1½ to $40.

Maclaren Power A dropped 1 to $45½, Digitech one cent to $2.00, Abacus Cities ⅛ to $5⅛ on 543 shares, Alberta Energy ⅛ to $16¾ and Daon Development A ⅛ to $7⅝.

Rio Algom gained 1⅛ to $37½, United Siscoe Mines ¾ to $8¾ and Brenda ¾ to $13⅞. Campbell Red Lake Mines declined ¾ to $43½ and Redstone Resources one cent to 59 cents.

Numac Oil and Gas rose 2⅛ to $25⅞, Ranger Oil Canada ⅞ to $18½ and Trinity Resources 70 cents to $4.90. American Eagle Petroleum slipped one cent to $2.34 and Charter Oil seven cents to $2.60.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market shot ahead, propelled by news that two economic measures had turned in better performances than had been anticipated.

The market took its cue from announcements about wholesale prices and the money supply.

The labor department said today that wholesale prices had fallen 0.1 per cent in August, the first drop since August 1976 and one that had not been anticipated by analysts.

The news followed on the heels of the announcement by the Federal Reserve Board late Thursday that the nation's basic money supply had fallen $1.8 billion in the latest reporting week.

Investors, who'd played a waiting game all week pending release of the figures, came into the market in a buying mood.

The surge was broad-based, but oil and airlines stocks, which have been among the strongest issues recently, again led the way.

Pan American World Airways led the most-active list, up ⅝ to $10⅜, its highest mark of the year. Pan Am has been one of the most active stocks this week because of its plans to merge with National Airlines.

Other airlines showed strength because of their reports of substantially higher passenger traffic in August. UAL rose ⅞ to $44¼, American Airlines was up ⅜ to $19⅝ and Delta rose ⅝ to $57⅛.

Among oil issues, Marathon Oil rose ⅝ to $51, Texaco was up ⅛ to $24¾, Mobil was up 1¼ to $70⅜, Exxon gained ½ to $51⅝ and Alantic Richfield advanced 1⅛ to $54¼.

The NYSE composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks rose 0.43 to 59.93.

London

LONDON (CP) — Prices rose sharply near the close of active trading on the London stock market, spurred by Prime Minister Callaghan's decision against a fall election.

The Financial Times index was up 7.7 to 516.4 an hour before the close.

Leading industrials posted gains ranging into double figures, while gold issues were above the day's lowest levels.

Canadian stocks eased.

IMPERIAL SUBSIDIARY

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd. plans formation of a wholly-owned subsidiary, Esso Resources Ltd., based in Calgary, to manage the company's natural resource activities in Western Canada.

J. A. Armstrong, president and chief executive officer of Imperial, said the new company will permit effective management of the crude oil, natural gas, mineral, oil sands and heavy oil operations.

Portrait of a Birdwatcher

Roger Tory Peterson, world-famous ornithologist, will be featured Monday, Sept. 11 in a special to air on Channels 2 and 6 at 8 p.m.

In the 30s, Peterson invented a new system of bird identification that was to have far-reaching effects (including a contribution to the war effort, when his method was developed into a standard system for aircraft-spotting). Today, Peterson is one of the world's most eminent artist-naturalists, who has written or edited more than 20 books which incorporate his fieldmark system in the identification of wildflowers, trees, butterflies, mammals, reptiles, and even minerals.

This one-hour special from The Nature of Things shows this extraordinary man at work on his paintings for his new, revised Field Guide; on field trips, photographing birds; leading a bird-watching group; and speaking at a dinner in his honor.

Appearing on the program to comment on his work are: Terry Shortt, distinguished Canadian bird artist and field naturalist; William Conway, director of New York's Bronz Zoo; and William W. H. Gunn, one of the world's leading wildlife sound recordists and an outstanding Canadian ornithologist.

CTV Launches Great Variety Of New Shows

For its 1978-79 program slate, CTV has chosen new comedies, dramas and science-fiction adventures to keep viewers entertained throughout the year. Popular favorites will also be returning, some of them with a new look.

"Circus" is exactly that, a revue starring world-renowned big top acts in brethtaking stunts and hilarious skits designed for full family enjoyment. When it aired as a special, over three million Canadians tuned in; now "Circus" becomes a weekly half-hour showcase.

Patsy Gallant, the Canadian superstar who has found great success world-wide with her French and English song renditions, hosts a new musical-variety show featuring top guest stars and elaborate production numbers. In the same vein, Donny and Marie Osmond will return with new episodes in their widely-watched variety series, and "Grand Old Country" will continue to present stars from the country-western music scene. Another entertainer from that section of the recording world, Donna Fargo, will also host her own program of melodies and merriment, while "Stars On Ice" opens a new season with skating personalities introduced by host Alex Trebek.

Comedy will be abundant in the new CTV lineup with an array of new shows and familiar faces. Devotees may finally learn who really killed tennis pro Peter Campbell on "Soap," and "Operation Petticoat" will resurface with some changes, the most notable being the absence of John Astin as its star. "Carter Country" will also be back for a second season.

Challenge In Victoria

Front Page Challenge, Canada's longest running TV panel show, will be videotaped at Victoria's McPherson Playhouse on Monday, September 11.

Now in its 22nd year on the CBC network and consistently among the top ten television shows in the country, Front Page Challenge with host Fred Davis, will present two programs in the McPherson Playhouse.

Front Page Challenge returns to CBC-TV on Friday, September 22, at 8:30 p.m. with its established stars, Betty Kennedy, Pierre Berton, Gordon Sinclair, and MC Fred Davis. The program is produced by Ray McConnell.

Old Favorites Continue On Nine

This fall the Public Broadcasting System will continue the old favorites and make room for a rash of new series.

The biggest thrill — for those of us who indulge our palates — is the return of Julia Child, the woman who began the cult of the cook. She'll return after an absence of five years to an all-new series with practical advice on every aspect of the cooking art.

Other newcomers include: "PBS Cinema Showcase," a collection of recent, critically-acclaimed films by some of the world's foremost directors; "Cinematic Eye," a series devoted to the art of film designed to accompany 13 classic European films from the Janus Collection; "The Long Search," a 13-part series on the diversity of man's religious beliefs; "Marie Curie," a dramatization of the life of the discoverer of radium; and "Sneak Previews," a biweekly peak at the newest theatrical releases.

For children, PBS will add "Freestyle" to the award-winning series "Once Upon a Classic," "Sesame Street" and "Studio See." The new series tries to help youngsters from 9 to 12 expand their knowledge about the world of work and reduce the limiting effects of sex-role stereotyping on career-related interests, activities and behavior.

In the category of current affairs, three new shows will be introduced. "Congressional Outlook" attempts to clarify current national issues and how key federal government decision will affect all citizens. Legislators, lobbyists and government officials will have their say. "Global Papers" will target the urgent world issues of food, world cities, aging, civil liberties and resolution of world conflicts.

"Economically Speaking" dedicates 26 half hours to exploring the impact of government action, business and judicial decisions and national and world events on the economic well being of the nation and its citizens.

And the new specials will certainly be special!

Jacques Cousteau will be back with four new expeditions to both Easter and Clipperton Islands in the Pacific and the Mediterranean. "James Michener's World" will visit Poland and exhibit three documentaries from his new book, "Sports in America." "McCarthy: Man and Times," a factual look at the life and times of the reactionary senator Joseph McCarthy, attempts to put mid-20th-century America in perspective.

Also, four new "National Geographic Specials" are in the wings. Beginning in January with a study of gold, then continuing with a feature on Hong Kong, a voyage to the Persian Gulf with Thor Heyerdahl and a look at wildlife and land management in Kenya, the celebrated travelogs return.

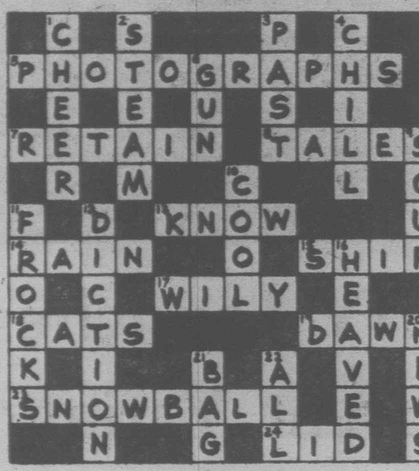
Two 90 minute specials on China are also slated.

But, if your worried about old favorites, rest assured. "Consumer Survival Kit," "The MacNeil/Lehrer Report," "Turnabout," "Washington Week in Review" and "Over Easy," are all returning.

So are "Crockett's Victory Garden," "The Dick Cavett Show," "Evening at Symphony," "Great Performances," "Masterpiece Theatre" and "Soundstage."

PAYOFF PUZZLE

Correct Answers to Last Week's Puzzle



CLUES ACROSS

5. PHOTOGRAPHS not photography. It is the PHOTOGRAPHS one actually sees, so as to recognize their quality. PHOTOGRAPHY — the process involved — is less directly apt.
7. RETAIN not regain. A man going bald has hair to RETAIN. "Regain" would be more apt in the case of a man who had lost his hair.
8. TALES not talks. The idea of their being more or less "cleverly constructed" suits TALES better. Talks are more or less sound in a straightforward way; one hardly looks for ingenuity, etc.
13. KNOW not knot. "KNOW" is more apt in the context given. The superiority of an old hand is not especially related to ability to "knot the ropes."
14. RAIN not ruin. There is some point in referring to a man "hard hit" by RAIN (as distinct from a man who is incommoded but little, or not at all), but ruin is a disaster to any man.
15. SHIP not whip. The clue implies a certain relationship or comparison between one end and the other, as between the (tapering) bow and (comparatively blunt) stern of a ship. Though a whip may taper, it is relatively one thickness.
17. WILY not wild. The clue assumes that a degree of accuracy is probable (though "not necessarily very" great); however, a wild guess is apt to be completely inaccurate.
19. DAWN not lawn. A lawn may be too damp to sit on, but the idea of its being "too cold and damp for comfort," in a more open or general sense, suits the DAWN better.
23. SNOWBALL not snowfall. The clue applies best to snow as one might feel it (e.g., a SNOWBALL). "Snowfall" is not quite the right category of word.
24. LID not lad. A lad should be raised properly from parental love; one may dispute that there is good reason to raise a lad merely with calculating carefulness, as there may in the case of a LID.

CLUES DOWN

2. STEAM not steak. "Cooking" is the process of applying heat to food of various kinds, and STEAM is used for that very purpose. Steak (albeit cooked) is less directly in line with the theme of "cooking" (i.e., cooking things, not the cooking of steak particularly).
4. CHILL not child. Aptly, a CHILL calls for treatment, to an understood end. Since children and circumstances vary so much, there can hardly be much question of a definite "best way to treat a child."
9. SOUP not soap. The clue's air of reassurance is more appropriate to something you are going to eat, that it should not poison you.
10. COOL not pool. "COOL," deliberate, not excited, etc., is the stronger answer, since there seems little to prevent an impetuous sort of fellow from playing pool.
11. FROCKS not crocks. FROCKS will stand quite a lot of rough handling, though there is, as the clue says, "a limit." The amount of rough usage crocks will stand is small rather than not limitless.
12. DICTION not fiction. In relation to a general view from an academic viewpoint, "fiction" is unsuitably specific; "DICTION," style or usage of words generally, is more apt.
16. HEAVED not heated. HEAVED means raised in the sense of hoisted up. When a thing is raised in temperature (heated), it is only the temperature that is raised; the thing itself is not "raised" in any sense.

Show Aims at the Very Young

Clark's Live Wednesday

By NANCY ANDERSON

HOLLYWOOD — Dick Clark won't say he's the new Ed Sullivan, but he does say, "If Ed Sullivan had lived to be a man of the '70s, he'd probably put together a live variety show using the new technical equipment that's available."

And that's what Dick's about to do, put together a live variety show to air each Wednesday night on NBC television beginning in September.

The show will be called Dick Clark's Live Wednesday, and if Clark has his way, will feature something for everybody.

He hasn't started booking acts yet, though he's negotiating for the first televised performance by the reunited Peter, Paul and Mary.

He knows in a general way what he'd like to offer as the ideal variety hour.

"If I could get the Beatles on the show, that would be the dream hour," Clark says while admitting that's the impossible dream.

"I will try to get the attention of the very young, because they move the dial fastest, so I'd book some kind of dare-devil stunt. Then I'd get some middle-of-the-road music for women in the middle group, and I'd have some pretty girls for the men, I'd have some comedy, and I'd have an act for the family, a magician, maybe.

"Sullivan loved bears and dogs, but I think there may be a better way to do it.

"I've dreamed all my life of having a prime-time variety series," Clark confesses. "When I was 13, I attended a Jimmy Durante broadcast in NBC's New York studio 8H, and during that show I began to imagine having a variety series of my own."

Dick Clark's Live Wednesday will originate from NBC's Burbank, Calif., studio, and will offer, among other things, a surprise segment planned by the creative staff of the show, who won't tell Dick what they're planning nor show it to him until air time.

On the show you won't see much unknown talent, Clark says, except an occasional comic. And though the series will sometimes feature what Dick calls "a nostalgic romp" with a star of yesteryear, the backward look won't extend beyond the 50s.

"Telivision is as prejudiced against age as it is against youth," Clark holds, "so you won't see things from the 30s and 40s."

Dick himself has no prejudice against his elders. "I really idolize Lawrence Welk," he said. "I idolize him because he's a survivor.

"You can always make fun of the way someone makes a living, but if that person hangs on for 35 years, you've got to admire him."

Clark doubts he'll book punk rock, which he calls "a media hype," adding, "The only place it flew was in England."

He'd cheerfully present any Beatle or any number of Beatles in any combination, but trying to book the foursome, he says, "would be like trying to crawl up the wall with your bare feet, and I have better sense than that."

If the Beatles ever get together again, it will be for pay televison, Clark thinks.

"I can't sing. I can't dance," Dick continues. "The kids were asked at school once what their daddy did, and they said, 'Nothing. He just talks.' "

But Clark can communicate, and that's much of the secret of his success.

He remembers that when he was a neophyte working at a small station in New York state, a recruiter called from another station to offer a job.

"You can communicate," the recruiter said.

"I was so new to the business then," Dick says. "I didn't know what he meant."

The new show will succeed, he's sure, not only because he can communicate, but because he knows audiences and what they like.

PREVUE PAYOFF PUZZLE

THIS WEEK'S PRIZE IS $500.00
ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE ON PAGE 2

PREVUE PAYOFF PUZZLE is the intriguing word puzzle game the whole family will enjoy and have an opportunity to win a big cash award every week! THIS CROSSWORD is not a draw. It tests your knowledge of words and pays off for EVERY correct solution. All you have to do is complete each of the words in a criss-cross format. Clues are provided . . . even a work list which has all the correct answers, plus some you'll have to eliminate. But there are no trick words or guessing . . . careful thought will make you a winner! So start and play today!

PLEASE NOTE: EACH ENTRY MUST BE IN A SEPARATE ENVELOPE

CONTEST RULES

1. Solve the Prevue Payoff Puzzle by filling in the missing letters to make the words that you think best fit the clues. To do this read each clue carefully.
2. Check the word list. It has all the correct answers plus some you will have to eliminate.
3. You need not be a subscriber to this newspaper in order to enter. You may submit as many entries as you wish on the entry blank printed in this newspaper or exact-sized, clear, hand-drawn facsimiles of the printed entry blank. NO MECHANICALLY PRODUCED, PRINTED, MIMEOGRAPHED, etc. copies of the entry blank will be accepted. Each entry must contain the contestant's name, address and phone number or it will not be accepted.
4. Anyone is eligible to enter this contest except employees (and members of their families) of Victoria Press Ltd.
5. All entries MUST be mailed and bear a postmark. The paper is not responsible for entries lost or delayed in the mail. Entries for each week's contest not received for judging by 12 noon the following Wednesday are not eligible.
6. To qualify you must write your answer to one of the clues on the outside of the envelope. See coupon for instructions.
7. Prevue will award the current prize to the contestant who sends in an all correct solution. If more than one all correct solution is received, the prize money will be shared equally. If no all correct solution is received, $50 will be added to the following week's prize.
8. There is only one correct solution to each puzzle and only the correct answer can win. The decision of the judges is final and all contestants agree to abide by the judges decision. All entries become the property of Prevue. Only one prize will be awarded to a family unit.
9. Everyone has the same opportunity to win for EVERY QUALIFIED ENTRY WILL BE CHECKED and the winner announced. No claiming is necessary.
10. Entries must be mailed to Prevue Payoff Puzzle, Victoria Press Ltd., Box 300, Victoria, B.C. V8W 2N4. One entry per envelope.

John Hearn's Collectibles

Mary McLean of London, Ontario says she always wanted to collect buttons and do I have any suggestions on how to get started.

This is one of those categories which encompasses so many variables that eventually you have to specialize. On the other hand, unlike stamps or coins or bottles where you pretty well have to make an early decision on your area of specialty, interesting buttons are not easily come by and for a while, at least, the new collector can grab anything they fancy.

I do not find modern mass produced buttons interesting; mostly they are plastic and come in geometrical designs. To me a collectible button is one with a picture on it — and the moment you try to remember the last time you saw a button with a picture on it you will appreciate how rare they are. And yet fine buttons have been made for some hundreds of years and the best of them are authentic artistic miniatures. There is a fair comparison with thimbles most of which are very plain and utilitarian but some are superb sculptures — and magnificent collectibles.

There are buttons bearing exquisitely painted scenes in enamel, buttons with Wedgwood jasperware inserts, buttons depicting French millinery fashions painted on ivory and mounted under glass, buttons with pictures made of shell inlay, porcelain buttons, Coalport buttons, buttons of cloisonne and copper enamel.

Of the specialty areas of button collecting the first and most obvious is the military button. As with postage stamps you almost have to specialize in one country. Think of all the Canadian regiments that ever were — and all the ships — especially those which no longer exist. That adds up to a huge number of brass buttons. Then add silver buttons from officer's uniforms and you have a lifetime's search ahead of you.

Metal buttons are not an exclusive military property; policemen, mailmen, nurses, and a host of other semi-official professions in the past had their own uniform and their own buttons. The possibilities are endless.

Buttons are commendable in that they do not take up much room and are relatively inexpensive. Fanatical collectors in the U.S. are reported to have paid as much as $150 for a rare button but even in this mercenary world you will get them mostly for free.

There are many button collectors in Canada although I don't know of a club. The American organization is the National Button Society of P.O. Box 39, Eastwood, Kentucky, 40018 who also publish a monthly bulletin. They would probably know if there is a club near you.

I recommend the Western Canadian Antique and Art Dealers Yearbook with over 700 listings and all kinds of useful information. It costs $1.25 (plus 20¢ postage) and is available from Left Bank Publishing, P.O. Box 94103, Richmond, B.C., V6Y 2A2.

Readers letters should be addressed to Collector's Item, R.R. No. 1, Lowbanks, Ontario, N0A 1K0.

ELAINE READE plays a young immigrant to Canada in 1907 who is separated from her family and sent back to Europe, when a routine medical examination reveals she has an infectious eye disease, in the NFB drama Strangers at the Door to be telecast on CBC-TV Sunday Sept. 10 at 9 p.m. The drama is one of a series focusing on significant events in Canadian history.

ABC RETURNING

21 'OLD' SERIES

ABC is ready to premiere a new fall schedule this year. It won't be a major revolution, though, since top network ABC will be returning 21 series from last year. Only five new shows will debut in September.

The ABC premiere week for new shows and old favorites starts Monday, Sept. 11, with "Mork & Mindy." However, ABC is holding its biggest property until Sept. 17.

"Battlestar Galactica" is the biggy. It premieres on Sunday, Sept. 17 with a three-hour special. Ratings experts are predicting it will be the smash hit of the season.

Set in the seventh millenium, in galaxies far, far away, the hour-long series depicts the exploits of a group of people who command the spaceship Galactica, aboard which are the last vestiges of their civilization. Struggling to survive in alien galaxies, constantly battling the evil warriors of the dreaded Alliance, they voyage in search of a new destiny and a new freedom — toward a new world known as Earth.

Richard Hatch and Dirk Benedict star as two resourceful fighter pilots aboard the Galactica. Lorne Green plays Adama, the Commander of the Galactica, with Maren Jensen as his daughter, Athena. The producer is John Dykstra, winner of an Academy Award for his special effects in "Star Wars."

Also from an outer galaxy is "Mork & Mindy," which will air Monday evenings and stars Robin Williams as Mork, from the planet Ork, and Pam Dawber as Earthling Mindy. Mork made his first appearance at the Cunningham household in an episode of "Happy Days." Now, returned to Earth in 1978, he is on a mission to observe earthlings and only young and lovely Mindy is privy to his true identity.

"Taxi" will be a half-hour character comedy about the personal and professional lives of a group of New York City cab drivers. This mobile comedy airs on Tuesdays. The Wednesday night ABC addition is "Vega$" with Bob Urich as private investigator Dan Tanna combatting crime in the city of neon lights and fast fortunes. Tony Curtis is also a regular cast member.

On Saturdays, ABC has lined up a Norman Lear entry, "Apple Pie." Rue McClanahan stars as Ginger Nell, a Depression-era woman who longs for her own family. She advertises for them all across the country and finds herself mother to crotchety but lovable Grandpa, Junior, Leo and tap dancing Anna Marie. And then there's Fast Eddie, the head of the house and the only voice of reason in this daffy family.

Spotlight on Movies

The Conjugal Bed, on 11 at 1 p.m. Italian-made comedy about a bachelor and his marriage to a bewitched girl who has only one wish—to have children. Ugo Tognazi (1963).

My Blood Runs Cold, on 5 at 3 p.m. Thriller about the supernatural. Troy Donahue and Joey Heatherton (1965).

The Art of Love, on 11 at 8 p.m. Comedy about an unpublished writer living in Paris and making a killing by selling his 'dead' friend's paintings. James Garner and Dick Van Dyke (1965).

Buffalo Bill and the Indians or Sitting Bull's History Lesson, on 8 at 8:30 p.m. The film debunks the heroic legend of William F. Cody. In this film, Cody is a womanizing egotist who claims to be America's National Entertainer. Paul Newman, Joel Grey, Kevin McCarthy and Burt Lancaster (1976).

The Critical List, on 5 and 13 at 9 p.m. Court-room drama made for television, about doctors beset by malpractice suits, and their romantic involvements. The movie is based on two novels by Dr. Marshall Goldberg (1978).

The Brothers O'Toole, on 4 at 11:30 p.m. Western about two drifters in 1890s Colorado. John Astin and Steve Carlson (1972).

Captain Video Returns to TV

NEW YORK (AP) — He was Captain Video, hero of hundreds of episodes of a popular 1950s television space show.

But when the show ended, so did Al Hodge's acting career, for no producer wanted someone so identified with one role.

Now Hodge is making an acting comeback as a Central Intelligence Agency agent in a new movie, his first role since his six-year run as the heroic space captain ended in 1956.

"I am tickled pink to be back," the 60-year-old Hodge said as he signed a contract with producer Irwin Schiff for the movie The Killing Season.

Captain Video, billed in the '50s as "television's most famous space show," featured a time machine in which Hodge travelled in each episode.

It had as much impact for young people in the 1950s as Star Wars or Star Trek has today, said Stan Epstein, who was assistant director of the weekday show.

As Hodge signed his movie contract, a tape of one of the old Captain Video shows was running. Only about six tapes have been preserved, the others discarded accidentally about 10 years ago.

"I think this is the first time I have seen the show since it went off the air in 1956," Hodge said.

Captain Video was filmed live five days a week from 1949 until 1956. Hodge was paid $60 a week for the Dumont network show, which was carried by 165 stations.

Hodge maintains his fine physique but his hair has greyed and his eyes show that the last 20 years have not been easy ones.

Hodge said he hopes the movie will lead to more jobs on television or in other movies.

'Bonkers' Really Is Bonkers

By BILL KAUFMAN
Washington Post

The title of the new television show is nearly as zany as its concept, but "Bonkers!" has already been accepted into the idiom if you go by the Random House unabridged dictionary. What does it mean? "Mad, crazy," among other things.

By all accounts, "Bonkers!" is indeed bonkers. If you're semantically inclined, and interested in knowing where the word originated, authorities have traced it back to England during World War II. As a British colloquial expression had it, if you were unfortunate enough to get a "bonk" (bang) on the "bonce" (head) the chances were you would go slightly mad; or, as the British put it, "bonkers."

More succinctly, Jack Burns, the producer of the ITC Entertainment series, said, "You won't have to be bonkers to watch 'Bonkers!' but it will help." The program, taped in England, stars the Hudson Brothers, a trio of comedians he describes as "a latter-day version of the Andrews Sisters with hairy legs who don't sing very well." The show co-stars Bob Monkhouse, a British comedian, who "has the charm and depth of a peat-moss bog on a foggy night," Burns said.

The preceding will probably convey a small taste of what can be expected on "Bonkers!"

By way of a more lucid explanation, it is a wacky series in the tradition of such comedy shows as "Hellzapoppin" and "Laugh In." However, "Bonkers!" will not just be a zany comedy series — it will feature lavish musical production numbers and celebrity guests each week.

It will also be witty, but not at all above slapstick. A pie-in-the-face, after all, has never lost its ability to make people laugh. The program is also not above exploiting another popular commodity — female pulchritude, which will be supplied each week by Linda Cunningham and a curvaceous chorus line known as The Bonkettes.

Interestingly, the staff that cranks out "Bonkers!" has a sterling track record. Jack Burns, along with director Peter Harris and a handful of others, were responsible for producing "The Muppet Show," one of the most creative and highly regarded TV offerings in recent years.

The Hudson Brothers — Bill, Mark and Brett — and three real-life siblings from Portland, Ore., who are taking another stab at a major television series.

In addition to headlining networks shows, they have done many guests shots. The young trio started off as a singing act, and its comedy routines evolved from the group's off-stage clowning. The brothers look strikingly alike and for many, the easiest way to identify who's who is to remember that Mark is the one with a moustache. The trio was spotted by Elton John in 1973, who signed them to record for his label. Their first hit was, "So You Are a Star!"

Spotlight on Movies

Rcommendation for Mercy, on 8 at 12:30 p.m. Canadian-made drama based on a true story about the controversial case of a highschool student convicted of rape and murder (1975).

SATURDAY
AM Network

2:05 p.m. Opera By Request — Host Bill Hawes plays listeners' favourite opera selections. Request should be directed to: Opera By Request, CBC, Box 500, Station 'A', Toronto, Ontario, M5W 1E6.

10:05 p.m. Anthology — Rough For Radio: The first production of a short play written and translated from the French by Samuel Beckett with a cast of Billie Whitelaw, Harold Pinter, Patrick Magee and Michael Deacon. The play provides a picture, both tragic and comic, of the agonizing creative process of the writer. The Poet's Voice: War is the theme of this selection from Shakespeare, Drayton, Wilfred Owen read by Derek Jacobi, Michael Jayston and Timothy West.

FM Network

2:05 p.m. Jazz Radio Canada — Today: Part 2 of the Jazz Piano Players based in Edmonton. Host Tommy Banks presents the Charlie Austin Trio, soloists Ted Borowiecki and the Wayne Feschuk Quartet. Also. John Morris presents Improvising on the Popular Song, with Eric Dolphy, Earl Hines and Sonny Criss.

7:05 p.m. International Concert — From 1978 Lausanne Festival, Orchestre Nationale de France conducted by Witold Rowicki; Claudio Arrau, piano: Overture to Oberon, WEBER; Concerto No. 4 for Piano, Beethoven; Pictures at an Exhibition, Mussorgsky Ravel.

11:05 p.m. The Entertainers — Host: Peter Kent. Tonight: Television is now king and private radio stations find a new base in inexpensive DJ programming and local advertising. Marketing becomes more selective; some stations seek the youth market, some black audiences. Rock 'n' roll is created from rhythm and blues music, popular with the young. Record companies like Columbia use big orchestras like Mitch Miller's to create "square" music that is pitted against rock 'n' roll in the battle of the generations. Hundreds of small record companies spring up and become successful just on the strenth of a single hit. Sloppy business, graft and buck chasing lead the way to a period of fast money and national prosperity.

SUNDAY
AM Network

1:05 p.m. The Life and Time of Sir Noel Coward — The Cabaret Years: in the 1950's, Sir Noel took a new career as a cabaret entertainer. Recorded at the University of Toronto. Today: Diary of One Who Disappeared, (Janet Stubbs, mezzo-soprano; Glyn Evans, tenor; Antonin Kubalek, piano).

9:04 p.m. Stravinsky: The Mind and the Music — Sixth of an 11-part series from U.S. National Public Radio. Host: Bob Lackenbauer. Tonight: The Creative Process visits the Stravinsky workshop for a rare glimpse at a great composer's working habits. Learn why Stravinsky preferred to think of himself as an "inventor" rather than a composer, what sort of things stimulated his imagination, and why, contrary to most of his published writings, there was a non-musical idea behind practically every piece that he wrote. Some of the methods that Stravinsky used to transform his raw materials into finished compositions are illustrated. Music: Divertimento from the ballet The Fairy's Kiss (Baden-Baden, 1955); Symphony in C (Baden-Baden, 1958).

FRIDAY
AM Network

8:04 p.m. Panning for Gold — A program of informed opinion and discussion about interesting books, movies, TV and some of the other lively arts. Contemporary with Many Features

This one-and-one-half-storey design has a wide range of convenience features guaranteed to please the most demanding of families — from the exposed beams over the wide entrance porch to the sunken fireplace pit in the family room.

The double-doored entry leads into a high open foyer, which leads to the right past the stairwell and into the living room. The living room features a high vaulted ceiling and raised hearth stone fireplace with build-in wood box.

The U-shaped kitchen separates from the breakfast nook via snack bar counter, and from the formal dining room via convenient pocket door. Two risers down from the nook to the sunken family room, which features a full-width brick fireplace surrounded by a sunken conversation pit, and sliding glass doors to a large rear patio. Off the nook is the large laundry/utility complex, which contains a two-piece vanity bath behind a pocket door and sufficient storage space to serve as a mud room with access from the double garage.

The four bedrooms are positioned upstairs and have rear exposures for excellent natural light. The master bedroom has a three-piece ensuite with shower and a full wall of closet storage space.

Adjacent to the master bath is a large linen storage area and an access door to a large enclosed storage space over the garage. The upstairs landing is an open balcony overlooking the front entry stairwell and the vaulted living room.

A full basement contains the forced air furnace and abundant space for the future development of a recreation room, wet bar, workshop and storage facilities.

An intelligent floor plan which derives the maximum of usable space and conveniences in a bold and appealing fashion.

Looking at Stars

By RUTH THOMPSON

Virginia Graham confided at a Sardi's soiree last winter that her overly long exile from TV could end soon . . . talk about a couple of projects were underway. And how right she was. As a matter of fact, both jelled and she started them the same day. She is already visible Mondays through Fridays on NBC's "America Alive!" magazine show as a supposedly "new" type gossip columnist. Her staff checks out all rumors but if the target personality wants to rebut, he or she is invited to do so. So there.

Virginia's second series, which is being taped for syndication, is less straight-on in intent . . . as the title tells. It's called "Double Talk." Well, whatever. Phi Beta Kappa Virginia has never been known to be stuck for words.

The fans who still cherish James Brolin as dear, clean-cut Dr. Kiley on the "Marcus Welby, M.D." reruns wouldn't recognize him as the scraggly, bearded hero of the movie, "Night of the Juggler," now shooting on location in New York's Central Park. He's still health-oriented, however, in his own way, when it comes to supplementing the surgeon's advice for mending the foot he busted in a car-chase scene. He phoned up a couple of pals who own a health-food store in Los Angeles for the mineral-protein combo that he swears shortened his convalescence when he busted an ankle five years ago in a motorcycle mishap.

Out-of-the-month-of-babes department. Ten-year-old Quinn Cummings figures that "Big Eddie," in which she briefly appeared with Sheldon Leonard, could have a longer run had CBS not "slotted" it against series already in the top 10 ("Sanford and Son"). However, Quinn's newest job could wipe out those old frustrations. She is being added to the cast of ABC's "Family" as a newly-orphaned adoptee nicknamed Annie.

Maybe I'm imagining it, but I think there's a wind of change in the air. People are starting to read more fiction, just as they're wearing more 100 per cent cotton and eating more wholewheat bread. The connection between these outwardly unrelated trends is our growing disenchantment with modern technology.

Is there anyone of intelligence out there who still believes that what's good for General Bullmoose is always good for us? Not ruddy likely; not after disasters like White Dog and Grassy Narrows, thalidomide and the cost of living index for the last five years, to name but a few.

Public consciousness takes its time about becoming aroused, but little things do add up. After a while some of us join protest groups; rather more of us start going to movies like Jaws, Saturday Night Fever and Star Wars, and reading escapist fiction.

A recent poll conducted by Weekend Magazine revealed that 56 per cent of young people between the ages of 18 and 24 claimed to have read a book within the last seven days. Only nine per cent claimed they never read at all. (Over 20 per cent of those aged 54 and up were non-readers.)

Mind you, these figures can be taken with a healthy pinch of salt (that would be sea salt, of course), because 49 per cent of everybody polled couldn't remember who wrote the last book they claimed to have read!

All the same, it's become a good time to be a writer of fiction. Major media figures such as Charles Templeton, Patrick Watson, Sylvia Fraser and Doris Anderson would certainly agree. So would Aritha van Herk, who recently won McClelland and Stewart's Seal Books first-novel competition and $50,000, the largest such prize given in North America. (Her novel, titled Judith, will appear this fall.) And so, apparently, would the editors of several of our popular magazines.

Witness Weekend's own departure, with its June 17 "Summer Fiction Issue," from its usual format. Lined up for our literary delectation were no less than 10 short stories, to the exclusion of all else but illustrations and brief biographies of their authors. These last enabled us to appreciate Weekend's scrupulously ecumenical taste: three were well-known Canadians, a fourth was a lapsed American now living in Canada, two were British and two more were unlapsed Americans. The remaining two — one English, one Canadian — just happened to be staffers at Weekend Magazine.

As I can only applaud the decision of Weekend's editors to plump for fiction, the less said about the stories they actually printed, the better. I'll just add that one does not have to be much of a cynic to wonder if every last one of them hadn't been hidden away in a bottom drawer for years, with good reason.

Bravo for old Chatelaine, which stood by the fiction writer during her (and his) darkest hour. Now that Chatelaine's under new management, however, one fears the worst. Its August issue was devoid of fiction for the first time in years and featured an umpteen-page spread on — what else? — "Toronto the Fabulous." Let's hope they take a poll of their readership soon and discover it isn't all manic-depressives with a mental age of four and a half.

Miss Chatelaine, on the other hand, is so keen on fiction it sponsors an annual contest. (Deadline Nov. 31, 2,500 to 5,000 words, for any Canadian under 35. Their '76 winner was Aritha van Herk.) The August issue included a short story by none other than Aritha van Herk, proving once again that nothing manages to succeed like success. (Snap judgment, based on scant evidence: An ethnic Alice Munro.)

Then there's Family Magazine, the digest-sized successor to Young Family Magazine which appears four times a year. It contains, in addition to the standard mix of food, sex, socialogy and fashion, a story by W. Gunther Plaut excerpted from his recent book, Hanging Threads. Excerpts are the easy way out for a magazine, but they're usually worth reading. This one is issue-oriented an forceful.

Last, and certainly not least, there's Saturday Night with its now customary one short story per issue. (A "summer fiction issue" here would have been a spendid idea.) The July-August SN contained a story by Jack Hodgins that I hope you'll find and read, whether you're 10 years old or 80. For the fun of it, and to show you, if you've let your imagination grow rusty reading all that non-fiction over the years, what you've been missing.

Humanity in Candlestick's Gleam

By ANTHONY JENKINS

Arnold Wesker has, in recent years, turned from plays to short stories. His latest collection, Said the Old Man to the Young Man, is made up of three mood-pieces centred upon a moment of illumination given by an older man to a younger one. Varied though these storjes are, they share a clarity of style, a depth of passion and compassion.

The title-story and the introductory piece are deceptively slight. An aspiring writer agonizes over the fact that he'll never be another Balzac or George Eliot since he can't understand his own life, let along the problems of humanity at large. A second young man is affected by his great-uncle's ironic stubborness as he tries to sort out his own personal loyalties and decide upon his future. Wesker is concerned less with plot than with a situation into which he can delve in order to explore the human condition.

"We delay facing truths, find what excuses we can forget them; and we're given straws, inevitably, or we make them, to clutch at and help us with our evasions." By the end of both stories, the young men have reached a fragile moment of equipoise before they are pushed on into further visions and re-visions.

Wesker's concern for his fellow men shines through the third and longest story, The Visit . . . Four old friends meet together after an absence of some years, picking up the threads of their lives and tenderly unravelling their weaknesses and fears.

None of the quartet is individualized to any extent. We're shown, instead, their fleeting moods, moments of tranquility, and outbursts of concerned love for each other and for their world.

It's the sort of atmosphere in which a person can be moved to tears by the flavor of music and words, or roused to anger by another's intellectual point of view.

In tracing the web of feeling between these four, Wesker provokes the reader into exploring modern politics and cultural standards. Surprisingly, a quotation from Ruskin, who despite his prejudices did illumine the aspirations of the human mind, provides the key link in the chain of argument:

"Men were not intended to work with the accuracy of tools, to be precise and perfect in all their actions. Let him but begin to imagine, to think, to try to do anything worth doing, and the engine-turned precision is lost at once. Out come all his roughness, all his dullness, all his incapacity . . . failure upon failure . . . but out comes the whole majesty of him also . . ."

The book's final image is a justification of Ruskin's words. One of the wives has been scraping congealed wax from an antique brass candlestick; by the end of the visit she has brought it to its former glow and must decide whether to coat it with a protective film which will immediately dull its burnish but will save future effort. For Wesker, the candlestick, like man, "had to be exposed. There was no protection . . . all that battering from the elements and then — all that work again."

In NO MORE INTO THE GARDEN, David Watmough's hero Davey Bryant falls from his childhood paradise in England to Vancouver, which he finds an emotional vacuum. All too 'trivial.'

To read The Visit is to share in a rare humanitarian vision.

On the other hand, I had to drive myself to get through to the final pages of David Watmough's No More into the Garden. The book has no resonance, and I could find no common ground from which to share Watmough's continuing fascination with his fictive alter-ego Dave Bryant.

The title points to the novel's binding motif. Davey falls from his childhood paradise in Cornwall; his sexual forays take him to Europe, America and finally to Vancouver where he finds himself in an emotional vacuum with no way back to that lost world. The image is universal, but Watmough is unable to detach himself sufficiently from Davey to make his story representative.

Even the first chapter, before-the-Fall as it were, is pervaded by the serpent of David/Davey's narcissism. We're meant to see a Christmas plunge in the Cornish waves as innocent and free; instead Davey's concern with his frail body and his conventional imagination reduce the symbolic to a grand day in a nice place during a nasty war.

I wish I could feel that Davey's limitations were presented ironically; they are sentimentally grieved over as each chapter begins with a purple-prose dialogue between the author and his reflected self.

Davey's pain at each new sexual encounter leads to nothing beyond itself. In one chapter Davey tussles with a creative-writing student in an Okanagan motel. The girl is a parody of the sixties-teenager and Davey's inability to meet the situation is only the logical result of his banal mind. Somewhere along the way, they talk of the blurbs on the cover of a novel by Jane Rule, whose books also examine the inability to commit oneself to others through love. Whereas the inadequacies of her characters touch against hidden corners in all of us, Watmough's Davey trivializes life.

It was a relief to pick up Henry Green's Caught which has just been re-issued. That novel, in some ways, also exudes regret for a lost world.

Written in 1943, the story of Richard Roe (as he marks time through the phoney-war waiting to fight the fires from the German attack which never seems to come) is set against an under-current of pre-war rural England. Green's densely woven sentences build into the quiet rhythms of a lost age:

"Each spring seems new, the first. It seemed to him it had been in April, but the afternoon she asked to be shown round his parents' country place was in July. The roses, when they come to the rose garden, were full out, climbing along brick walls, some, overpowered by their heavy flowers, in obeisance before brick paths, petals loose here and there on the earth but, on each bush and tree of roses, rose after rose after rose of every shade stared like oxen, and came forward to meet them with a sweet, heavy, luxuriant breath."

The leisurely impressionism is Green's own, but the style is also characteristic of the pervading mood of elegy in the English novel during the forties.

Looking back like this, one also sees how Green's work is a mannered precursor of our Absurdist writers. Caught pares away at the conflicts that build while the firemen and their girls await the promised blitz.

Roe, a volunteer auxiliary, has been sheltered by his upper-class upbringing, and is numbed by the recent death of his wife, so he sees far less of the tensions around him than the reader does.

The memory of the past invades the present in Roe's confused gropings towards some sort of stability in a collapsing system. This rapid cross-cutting between episodes makes Caught seem modern and experimental.

Green's novels, like Wesker's short stories, are reminders that, in depicting the flounderings of our bewildered society, a writer need not abandon elegance of mind and human understandings.

Good News for Wildlife Enthusiasts

By HAROLD HOSFORD

An unmistakable air of optimism runs through two recent books that have as a common theme, wildlife and its survival.

Between them they reveal that not all the entries in the ledger of human confrontations with wildlife are being written in red for the animals.

Between them they also reveal that despite human ignorance, apathy, greed, and avarice, some threatened animals, with man's help, and others, on their own, are not only surviving but in some cases doing quite well.

The more authoritative of the two books, Guy Mountfort's Back From the Brink— subtitled Successes in Wildlife Conservation — is an account of successful efforts of individuals and organizations, using the resources of the World Wildlife Fund and the Survival Service Commission of the International Union for Conservation of Nature, to save endangered animals throughout the world. The examples chosen reveal the complexity of the problems which, in many cases, required the resolution of often wildly conflicting human values.

Mountfort's break with the current litany of impending disaster also reveals that success can still be achieved by dedicated individuals as well as powerful international organizations.

His account of the single-handed victory of Billy Arjan Singh, whose personal crusade to save the Barasingha Swamp Deer and the tiger resulted in the establishment of the Dudwa National Park on the borders of India and Nepal, reads like a novel complete with "good" guys and "bad" guys and, through it all, the triumphant dedication of one man.

Equally engrossing are Anne La Bastille's successful efforts to save the Giant Pied-billed Grebe of Lake Atitlan in the Andes, Peter Scott and the story of Hawaii's Nene Goose, and the success stories of the men and women, and organizations, helping to bring the Arabian Oryx, the Peruvian Vicuna, the Orang-utan, the Asiatic Lion and that prehistoric relic — the rhinoceros, "back from the brink."

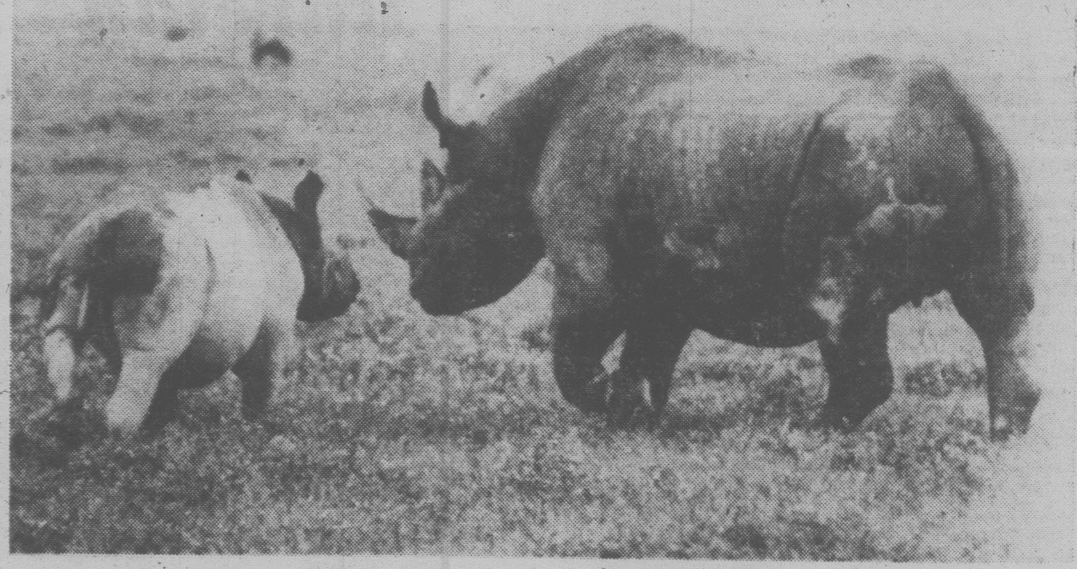
Mountfort is a realist. He recognizes that the future is not bright for many species, that saving a few when so many are threatened may be a hollow victory. But he is also an optimist with faith that, despite our destructive capacity, the unique intelligence of man will prevail and an accommodation with wildlife will be made.

In Eugene Kinkead's Wilderness Is All Around Us, the emphasis is on survival despite man with the dramatic success of the coyote in the United States as the prime example. Here again, despite steel traps, aerial hunting, shooting with cyanide guns, coursing with dogs, and poisoning — a program of persecution aimed at nothing less than the extermination of the species — the resourceful coyote has not only held its own but has spread from its original western homeland to include within its range such urban mazes as suburban new York.

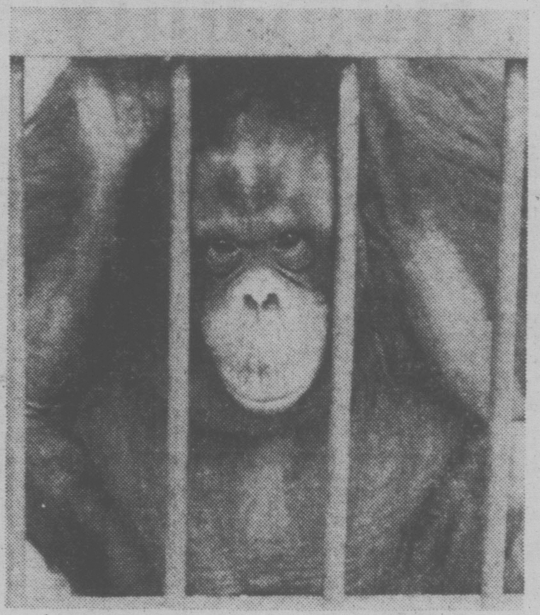
While the coyote story occupies more than half of Kinkead's book, his briefer accounts of a Steller's Eider near Boston, wildflowers in New York's Central Park, evidence of the Ice Age on Lower Manhattan Island, and the ubiquitous House Sparrow, emphasize his theme that nature will survive, in spite of man.

BACK FROM THE BRINK: Successes in Wildlife Conservation, by Guy Mountfort. Nelson, Foster and Scott. $15.50.

WILDNESS IS ALL AROUND US: Notes of an Urban Naturalist, by Eugene Kinkead. Clarke Irwin. $12.50.



The rhinoceros, above, and the orang-utan are among the species saved from extinction through the efforts of wildlife crusaders — sometimes with man's help, sometimes on their own. Other such species include the Barasingha Swamp Deer and the Arabian Oryx.



Killer Thriller Begins in Bar

By FRED BARNES

When a veteran woman Fleet Street reporter allows herself to be picked up in a bar in Atlanta, Ga., she proves that it is possible to fall into a richly-rewarding book while merely looking for a little relaxation.

For Sandy Fawkes, the reporter, was picked up by Paul John Knowles, who committed 18 brutal murders and taped the details for posterity. The two were together for six days while driving from Atlanta to Florida. Knowles had killed the day before he met Sandy, and was to kill again shortly after she finally left him.

Sub-titled Journey into Nightmare, the trip must have been one for Sandy Fawkes as she gradually realized what a character she was with, and found how difficult it was to get rid of him.

Although Miss Fawkes was married to Wally Fawkes, who is a celebrated cartoonist and jazz musician, and has three children, she doesn't seem to mind describing her sex life in great detail, and even feels some compassion for the now-dead rapist-mass murderer. "I was his karma," she concludes.

KILLING TIME, by Sandy Fawkes. General Publishing. $12.95.

Inuit Smoking Havanas!

When Indians and Eskimos trained in Cuba return to the Canadian Arctic to take over a drill-ship and demand their rights as ransom for refraining from flooding the sea with crude oil, the scene is set for a rather fanciful novel.

But having voiced that one warning, it must be admitted that Calgary lawyer John Ballem writes a bare-bones, fast-paced prose, liberally sprinkled with violence and sex, that can't help but hold any reader's interest.

In stark contrast, Ballem is an authority on Canadian energy and the author of The Oil and Gas Lease in Canada. A graduate of Dalhousie and Harvard law schools and a Queen's Counsel, Ballem's credentials are impeccable, and his writing ability a real surprise.

Unfortunately, in addition to being a bit fanciful, the novel winds up as rather shallow, due no doubt to a talented but busy individual attempting to accomplish too much. —F.B.

UNINSPIRED AND AWKWARD

By JAN ROSSLEY

The publisher of Margaret Craven's new novel reminds us she is the author of I Heard The Owl Call My Name, no doubt because her reputation rests on the success of this earlier book, a sensitive and moving, if not literary, piece of work.

When I received Walk Gently This Good Earth, I was looking forward to the same unpretentious and understated style as the earlier book.

Margaret Craven came late to the literary scene with the Owl publication. The simplicity and magic of that novel could not be called so much craftsmanship as inspiration. This inspiration is lacking in Walk Gently This Good Earth. Craven has tried to create that same spirit, but it is so cultivated it always appears false.

The novel follows the lives of an all-American family, the Wescotts, as they live and learn the ways of common sense and hard work. The message is to live wholesome lives and to trust in God. The characters are either good or bad, foolish or wise, the action is always predictable, and the values unchanging. The novel falls neatly into the category of inspirational fiction and will prove too narrow for most readers.

Even after one resigns oneself to the subject matter, there is still a self-conscious and awkward style.

It is an unfortunate disappointment.

WALK GENTLY THIS GOOD EARTH, by Margaret Craven. Longman. $8.95.

E. D. WARD-HARRIS

Delayed by sex-change surgery, final volume of Morris' British Empire trilogy tour de force

Nothing is more infuriating than to be kept waiting and waiting for the next book in an announced multi-volume series. This has occurred frequently with the official Churchill biography.

Another case in point, this time with fiction, which is even more maddening, is Herman Wouk's The Winds of War. The first volume came out in 1971 and the second is not due until later this year.

There are many other examples, including the Pax Brittanica trilogy by James Morris, the third volume of which has just been published — 10 years after the second one.

Normally, the reason for delay is not divulged, presumably because it is considered to be none of our business. I often make it may business to find out and then leave it at that, but the Morris case is so unusual that I think it warrants a public explanation.

When Morris began work on the Pax Brittanica trilogy he was the much respected travel writer for The Times of London, contributor to high-class magazines in Britain and the U.S., and author of a string of excellent travel books. After completing the first two volumes, he underwent sex-change surgery and altered his first name from James to Jan.

The experience was particularly traumatic for this sensitive father of a largish family, necessitating a period of mental adjustment. During this time Jan Morris published three fairly inconsequential books before plunging into the years of travel needed for research to complete the trilogy. To add to the confusion, but to maintain continuity, Jan has reverted to the name of James for the final volume.

As a long-time admirer of this writer's work it is a pleasure to record that the concluding volume, Farewell the Trumpets, is a magnificent tour de force which shows Morris back in accustomed form, which is to say that in scholarship, humor, command of language and emotive detail she has few equals.

The first volume, Heaven's Command, dealt with the haphazard evolution of the British Empire. The second volume, Pax Brittanica, was wholly devoted to an evocation of the empire, what it was and how it worked, at the time of Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee. Farewell the Trumpets moves from 1897 to the death of Sir Winston Churchill in 1965 and deals with the decline of this greatest of empires and its transformation into the Commonwealth.

It's a formidable theme, infinitely more complex than the history of the Roman Empire, and no doubt academic historians are wondering how they are going to be able to reduce it to manageable proportions. Morris had no such worry. As a world-traveller she is familiar with almost every part of the old empire and has been on more than nodding terms with many of the men and women, great and small, who manned its crumbling ramparts.

For this reason, and this applies particularly to Farewell the Trumpets, she was able to create a narrative picture of the imperial retreat from glory, an impressionistic evocation, subjective and often emotional. She has achieved this by largely ignoring what the British Empire meant and concentrating on what it felt like — to her, in imagination and in life.

One of the oddities about the empire is that the British people as a whole remained woefully ignorant about the far-flung possessions upon which the sun literally never set until these were granted independence one by one with indecent haste.

The reason for this was unbounded faith in the master-imperialists, dogmatists, prophets and executive of the creed of empire, and this was never more so than at the turn of the century. And yet, as Morris delightedly points out, scarcely one or two were English gentlemen as the world knew the breed. Some were cosmopolitans and some were un-English eccentrics. Some married foreigners. Some were foreigners.

Lord Salisbury, the prime minister, was an aristocratic original, an amateur electrician whose hobby was riding a tricycle around his estate, and who often didn't recognize his cabinet colleagues. Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, was a screw manufacturer, a Unitarian dandy who seized upon empire as a means of political advancement.

Lord Cromer, ruler of Egypt, was the great-grandson of a German merchant, and Lord Milner, High Commissioner in South Africa, was a German-trained lawyer of authoritarian principles. The Viceroy of India, Lord Curzon ("I am a very superior person") was an insatiably ambitious intellectual landowner of almost preposterous grandeur.

The army commander-in-chief was Lord Kitchener, a francophile who had spent so long abroad he knew almost nothing of English life. And Cecil Rhodes was a half-crazed visionary who wanted the entire world to be British.

These were the stars of the show, which was set to music by Edward Elgar, a devout Catholic, with words by Rudyard Kipling, a mystic married to a domineering American woman.

Morris conjures up the atmosphere of those imperial days wonderfully, both at home and abroad. It was taken for granted in 1914 that the entire multi-racial, multi-lingual, multi-religious empire would respond to the call to arms, but no one was told that the millions of India were committed to war by the viceroy without consultation with a single Indian. Arrogance? Not at all, my dear sir; merely gratitude for years of benevolent rule!

The empire emerged from the First World War intact, but things were never to be the same again. Morris shows how the thinned ranks of British public school men, the traditional nuts-and-bolts administration of empire, didn't want to go straight from the trenches to humid jungles and desert wastes; they wanted to go home and stay. The new men sent out to adminster the colonies lacked training and dedication and were quite unable to cope with the clever young rising nationalists. The end was in sight.

Britain clung tenaciously to her possessions for the next 20 years but the strain was telling and when, during the Second World War, Indian and Burmese nationalists, encouraged by the loss of "impregnable" Singapore to Asians, made it clear that they would be satisfied with nothing less than full independence, the grand illusion was all but over.

The end of the empire can be accurately dated. On August 15, 1947 at 8 a.m. India and Pakistan, containing three-quarters of the empire's population, gained full independence. That was it.

Anthony Eden's subsequent Suez venture put paid to any hope of clinging for a while to African colonies, and the realistic Harold Macmillan in his famous "winds of change" speech in South Africa virtually invited African leaders to ready themselves to take over their countries, which they promptly did. Others soon followed suit, the West Indies, Malta . . . Overnight, or so it seemed, the red on the map of the world had been scrubbed out.

All that remained to Britons was a human remnant, the aged Sir Winston Churchill, the last great imperialist, whose adult life was part of the fabric of the British Empire from its apogee to its nadir.

When he died the very memory of empire died with him and it was fitting that his funeral, televised to the world, should have been the last great British imperial spectacle. And fitting, too, that Morris should choose to close the story at that moment.

Morris has handled the tremendous historical theme brilliantly, making of it an engaging amalgam of travel, description, imagination, characterization and humor which evokes the whole of the imperial adventure, much as the empire-builders must themselves have experienced it.

The whole project, but particularly the last volume, is unique in style, a sort of aesthetic concept of imperialism, at once a celebration and an elegy, a salute to glory and a funeral oration, a tribute, an apology, and finally a tear and a lump in the throat.

FAREWELL THE TRUMPETS, by James Morris. Oxford. $17.65.

LIVE IT UP—Canada's first television 'How-to' guide to the good life, Live It Up, debuts this season on the CTV Television Network. Jack McGaw (left), Mary Lou Finlay and Alan Edmonds (right), co-host this weekly half-hour lifestyle program. McGaw, who is the producer of the show, says Live It Up represents a dramatic and innovative change in the tone of television public affairs programming. "This is a trend-setting blend of entertainment and information which will help people plug into the good life and lead happier, healthier and even richer lives".

CTV Introduces Many New Shows

former series will begin new roles this fall. Judd Hirsch, who played the unorthodox detective "Delvecchio" two seasons ago, is now a part-time New York City cabbie in "Taxi," a creation of Mary Tyler Moore Productions. The story tells of the diverse hopes and backgrounds of those who work for the cab company: the 20-year veteran, the actor waiting for his big break, and a struggling female artist.

Jack Albertson transfers from several seasons on "Chico And The Man" to "Grandpa Goes To Washington." He portrays a college professor with young ideas. When forced to retire, he causes a stir by charging certain administrative officials with corruption and dereliction of duty. Inspired by a political party campaign manager, Joe Kelley (Albertson) decides to run for — and wins — a seat in the Senate, where he becomes the honest voice of the people.

McLean Stevenson, veteran of a number of shows ("The Doris Day Show," "M-A-S-H"), becomes Father Cleary, a priest who lends assistance to an unconventional young nun in a Norman Lear concept, "In The Beginning." Priscilla Lopez co-stars as Sister Agnes, the nun whose liberal attitudes and karate expertise often clash with the priests more conservative ways.

Another Lear creation, "Apple Pie," is set in the Deperession and tells the tale of Ginger Nell Hollyhock (Rue McClanahan), who advertises in the newspaper for a family. The mixed respondents include: Junior, who wants to be a radio announcer; Anne Marie, a would-be tap dancer; a crotchety but loveable Grandpa (Jack Gilford); and Fast Eddie (Dabney Coleman), who becomes head of the household.

Football legend Joe Namath comes to weekly television as Harry Casey, coach of "The Waverly Wonders." They're a high school basketball squad, and Harry takes the position as their leader after he's cut from his spot as fourth string guard for the Toledo Torpedoes. However, part of the job is teaching history to a batch of disinterested students. Somehow, Harry manages to overcome the odds in this new situation comedy from the creators of "The Waltons" (which, incidentally, also returns to CTV with a new season of dramas).

Action and adventure will still be brought to the home screen by "Barnaby Jones," "Quincy," "The Hardy Boys" and "The Rockford Files," and several new entries will add to the excitement

Dan Tanna is a suave, handsome private eye. What really sets him apart from all the others is the glittering city from which he operates: "Vega$". Amidst the showgirls, entertainers and gamblers, there's enough crime and corruption to keep Tanna (Robert Urich) hopping. His exploits are another creation of executive producer Aaron Spelling, who's had a bit of experience in the detective series field (Charlie's Angels," "Starsky and Hutch," "S.W.A.T.").

Dack Rambo is a playboy who doubles as a crusading avenger by night in "Sword of Justice." Ron Leibman plays "Kaz," an ex-convict who studied law while behind bars and now practices it professionally, aided by another powerful and respected attorney (Patrick O'Neal).

"Lifeline" is a new step in television drama; its stories are real, and so are the people the episodes focus upon. No professional actors are used in this series about doctors and their handling of various crises, creating an authenticity rarely depicted in weekly television. "W-5" is also a realistic program, centering on people and issues as reported by hosts Henry Champ, Helen Hutchinson and Jim Reed. "Live It Up" will take a lighthearted look at our society and trends within it.

In the wake of science fiction's recent revitalization, CTV will continue to air "Project U.F.O." (with Edward Winter replacing William Jordan in the lead), as well as two new series. "Battlestar Galactica" is a futuristic adventure starring Lorne Greene, Richard Hatch and Dirk Benedict. If its appearance looks familiar, there is a reason: its producer is the "Star Wars" special effects creator John Dykstra. Also debuting is an adaptation of the H. G. Wells science fiction milestone "The Shape Of Things To Come." Its story pits Earth's residents against the dominating Mooners, who consider the advancement of technology above all else and need our planet's water for survival. Two young people (Nicholas Campbell and Koo Stark) travel through the universe, becoming involved in assorted adventures.
